Onley VFC Sanctioned for Financial Irregularities

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack supervisors unanimously voted Wednesday to put sanctions on county spending for Onley Fire & Rescue until irregularities in the company’s finances are resolved.

It could be “one to two years before the investigation is settled,” Supervisor Laura Belle Gordy said Fire Chief W.R. Ferguson advised her earlier in the day.

Ferguson did not attend the session and refused to comment when asked Tuesday about lost funds. A source close to the issue said between $400,000 and $500,000 is missing.

In a letter sent to supervisors last week, Ferguson said the company is stronger as the result of a recent reorganization, response time has improved and membership has grown.

“As a result of a discovery (in November) of possible financial irregularities … immediate changes were made … and proper corrective action was taken.”

Ferguson took over as chief. Chris Davis, who recently retired as a Norfolk fire captain-paramedic is assistant chief. His wife, Karen, CEO of Hospice of the Eastern Shore, is the new treasurer. A lawyer and a new bookkeeper were hired, paper records were transferred to computer, by-laws were rewritten and a board of directors comprised of civic leaders is overseeing operations. Ferguson said the last five years of financial records have been reconciled, a reorganization task force was formed and an operating budget and plans for an audit were made.

“Place trust in our … changes and continue to fund our organization,” he wrote. “Please do not place restrictions on our funding. As you can see, not only have we corrected the errors of the past … we have made greater than expected changes (that) can be a model of sorts for others in the fire-rescue community.”

He asked officials to meet with his new team. “In the spirit of complete transparency you may have access to any and all of our records at any time or openly discuss any concerns or issues that you may have,” Ferguson promised.

According to the resolution, no payments will be made directly to the fire company, and they must be requested by the company president and treasurer in writing. Finance Director Mike Mason will review all payments, bills must be certified as authentic, payments will be balanced against allocable money and made for normally eligible items or services purchased by “similarly situated companies.”

In other fire-company news, Bloxom residents and fire-and-rescue volunteers urged the supervisors to continue to provide a 24-hour emergency medical technician (EMT) at the town’s station. They said the help has improved morale, increased membership and provided additional safety for the area during the recent surge in arsons. Public Safety Director Jeff Terwilliger said that while Bloxom has a need, the help was temporary and could be better used at Oak Hall, where it also will serve Bloxom and other areas like Saxis.

No Tax Hike in Proposed Budget

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack Administrator Steve Min- er proposed a $51.3 million fiscal 2013-14 county operating budget Wednesday. The plan is balanced without tax in- creases, includes an 11 percent decrease in capital spending and cuts more than $223,000 from School Board requests.

“T’d like to give (more) to the schools, but I think there are other needs,” Min- er told the Board of Supervisors. “If you want to give them more … there has to be something less” somewhere else.

Finance Director Mike Mason said the school system gets about 52 percent of all tax revenues. The total local share of school expenses is $16.2 million.

The 472-page budget also includes $182,000 for a 2 percent salary hike for county workers, “assuming the state will provide matching funds,” said Mason. Delinquent personal-property taxes are a reason to keep spending down, he said. A collection measure through the DMV was recently restarted by Treasu- rer Dana Bundick and resulted in the collection of $50,000 in less than four weeks, said Mason, adding that the tool had not been used for 2.5 years. Bundick did not attend the session.

The plan also includes $771,000 for the Rainy Day Fund, a portion of money for construction of the Wachapreague Convenience Center, two litter clean-up positions, a litter vacuum truck, $7,500 for the Economic Development Authority to market the industrial park and $63,343 for Star Transit.

In other business Wednesday, a peti- tion signed by about 100 residents op- posed to deer hunting with dogs was submitted to Accomack supervisors. They did not discuss the issue took no action on the request to stop the practice.

Petitioners said the hunters tress- pass on private land, violate a county ordnance that requires loose canines to be under the control of their owners, leave carcasses behind for property owners to remove, threaten those who confront them, and shoot across roads endangering pedestrians and motorists. They fear that someone will get hurt and there are not enough game wardens to handle the problem.

Students Hurt in Bus Accident

By Linda Cicoira

An unidentified Accomack school-bus driver was charged with reckless driv- ing Tuesday after she lost control of her bus, with 32 children onboard, and ran into a pole, according to State Police.

Four of the students were taken to Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury, Md., for what appeared to be minor injuries, Trooper Brian D. Cipko said in an email. The accident occurred at about 7:30 a.m. on Sign Post Road in New Church.

The bus was going west and picking up students on the way to school. Cipko reported it “ran off road to the right, entered a ditch and struck a utility pole.” Units from Oak Hall, Greenback- ville and New Church took the children to the hospital.

School Transportation Supervisor Frank Hurst also responded to the scene. A prepared announcement faxed from the school system stated he “im- mediately contacted the school board office to initiate our Emergency Crisis Plan … principals and staff members from several northern schools as well as central office staff responded to the scene. EMTs assessed students and several students were transported by ambulance to a local hospital.”

The driver was charged with reck- less driving – general. State Police and the school system did not identify the driver by press time Thursday.

Superintendent Dr. Bruce Benson said in an email Wednesday, “I can tell you that the driver … was a substitute driver, as the regular driver was out. According to our documentation … six students were transported to the hos- pital. Kegotank’s principal and I trav- eled to the hospital late morning. Upon arrival, we were informed that our stu- dents had been released.”

They are against state-mandated ultrasounds for women seeking abortions and a ban on smoking in vehicles when children are passengers. And they oppose mandatory jail terms for parents convicted of assaults on school property.

Those were the responses of the majority of Accomack and Northampton residents who participated recently in an email survey conducted by the Eastern Shore Post.

About 71 percent of the survey-takers object to the ultrasounds. Twenty-seven percent favor the move and another 2 percent are undecided. Regarding jail terms for parental assaults at schools, 70 percent oppose the bill, 19 percent favor it and 11 percent are unsure.

Sixty-three percent of participants are against making it illegal to smoke cigarettes in a vehicle when children are on board.

Jill Wilt of Onancock said mandatory ultrasounds are “an abomination. Once again the ultra-right does an end-run around hard-fought and won existing laws,” she added. “If this was truly designed to inform us … they would educate not invade. If they want their daughters to learn about respecting their bodies and choosing a time to conceive and have children, Wilt said she is “truly tired of all these attempts to govern morality.”

Sharyn McQuaid of Melfa said the ultrasound bill. “There is every good reason to assure that the woman is making an informed decision.” She said the smoking bill would be “totally unenforceable — we don’t even do very well with seatbelt laws.”

Hal Koenig of Exmore called the ultrasound bill “a travesty and a gross infringement. … The irony is that it comes from a political party that says it wants less government intrusion.” The former educator also wrote, “Assault is a crime. Added or special punishments are unnecessary.” Koenig favors the smoking ban “as long as it is only a traffic fine.”

“Deciding to have an abortion is a tough choice,” said Eveline Cropper of Horntown. “Although I don’t condone abortion, I think it is a decision that must be made by the persons involved.”

Tom Sharpley of Greenbackville is opposed to the ultrasound and smoking bills. Of the latter, he said, “I feel that this would infringe on individual person’s rights. How would it be policed? We need our law enforcement community concentrating on more serious crime issues like the Accomack arsonist — not chasing down smokers.”

Theresa Adams of Belle Haven is against requiring ultrasounds. “The government should concentrate on the economy and stop invading our privacy. We are losing our rights every day.” She wants punishment to depend on the situation for school assaults. Adams called the smoking ban an “invasion of my rights. Children are not owned by the government.”

“I’m not a supporter of abortion for contraception purposes at all, but I am for individual rights,” said Patrick Belote of Onancock. “I do believe a fetus is a living being and as such deserves a checkup before being put to death. A law though? I’m not fond of 99 percent of new laws that get passed. I’d have to think long and hard on this.”

“Why more laws?” he said of the assault bill. Belote called the cigarette ban “more unnecessary nanny-state legislation. This is exactly what I don’t want my elected representatives to do.”

Amy Riggin of Exmore opposes the ultrasound and cigarette bills. She favors mandatory jail time for parents who commit an assault on school grounds. “Children don’t need to see that kind of violence.”

“Women have a right to choose what to do with their bodies,” said Mel Walker of Greenbackville. “Making them have an ultrasound is manipulative and cruel.” He agreed with the smoking ban. “Smoking is everyone’s right,” he said. “Endangering the welfare of a child is not.”

Betty Mariner of Pungoteague asked, “If the state pays (for the ultrasound) and the process preserves the privacy of the patient, what harm is done? At the same time, I ask … is this supposed to make women who have gone through an agonizing decision process feel more maternal and change their mind and then have a loving relationship with this previously unwanted child?”

Of the cigarette bill, she said, “The reasoning is scientifically sound as second-hand smoke is more harmful to a body than inhaled smoke.” But it would be a waste of “precious police time. … I’d hold out for greater education efforts … going as far as considering a health warning in driver’s education materials.”

Bobby Carroll Huether of Pungoteague favors the ultrasound bill. “It is not a foreign growth,” he argued. “It is a child.” He agreed with the ban on smoking with kids in the car. “Second-hand smoke kills.”

Rhet Tignor of Hacks Neck said the ultrasound bill “is a bunch of old guys telling a woman and her doctor how to practice medicine because they can.” He’d rather leave jail terms “up to a judge” and favors the vehicle-smoking ban.

Gary Callaway of Accomack is “1000 percent absolutely, positively” for ultrasounds before abortions. “Maybe after the expecting mom saw a picture of her unborn child and heard the heartbeat … she would decide to keep her gift from God and not become a statistic like one of the 333,964 women … last year,” he wrote.

Callaway, a deputy sheriff, opposes the smoking bill. “Who the heck is going to have time to enforce this … when there are much more important things … to deal with than a parents’ stupidity… where does common sense come in?”

Jeanne Whaley of Accomac said the ultrasound proposal “is absolutely hideous. That is a decision that should be made by the woman and her medical care provider. An unwanted vaginally-invasive ultrasound is rape. Even an abdominal ultrasound should only be performed for medical information … it should be the woman’s choice about including anyone else in her decision. It is HER body.”

She is opposed to the other bills too. “Mandatory sentences limit the ability of conscientious court systems,” she said. “Families … involved with assaults on school property need more than a 30-day sentence. Family violence anywhere injures children and probably requires a multidiscipline team approach. A mandatory jail sentence is not even a Bandaid,” Whaley added. “I don’t think smoking in a car should be legislated against, but only an incredibly stupid, selfish person smokes in a car with kids in it.”

Linda Schulz of Cape Chares opposes an ultrasound requirement. “The use of any medical procedures should be decided by the patient and doctor, not by legislative fiat.” She also opposes mandatory jail terms. “While well-intentioned, mandatory sentences do not allow a judge to take into consideration the first-time offender, differentiate the deviance level of the offender” or “allow the judge to tailor punishment to each individual case.”

Glenn Muhle Jr. of Greenbackville said instead of an ultrasound, “there should be a law” to stop attempts “to intimidate and make a woman feel guilty.”

Muhle, a teacher, is against mandatory jail time for those who assault on school property. He said 30 days “is too much and could put a family in financial distress. I favor a community service project with a minimum of 100 hours of service.”

Muhle agrees with the cigarette ban. “Kids don’t have a choice as to be around their parents when they smoke,” he said. “Mom and Dad can wait until they get out of the car.”

Evelyn Dodge of Gargatha said, “It’s child abuse to smoke around any child. Too many children suffer from asthma from parents smoking in a car in anywhere else. It should be illegal.”

Billy Graham of Fox Grove likes the ultrasound requirement. If a woman “does not take the … responsibilities seriously regarding her trysts, then she should, at the very least … be aware of the child whose life she is ending.”

“There is too much regulation already,” Graham said of the smoking bill. “Adults should know better than to inflict second-hand smoke on their kids. Does the government want to regulate when a diaper should be changed?”

Regarding the ultrasounds, Debra Bergner of Hacksneck wrote, “They need to balance the budget, not worry about my personal issues.” She favors the school assault proposal and “more if it’s committed against a child or a teacher/principal trying to protect a child.”

Bergner opposes the cigarette bill. “I quit smoking seven years ago; however, it is my car, my children, my business. When they start paying all my expenses and provide me with housing, a car, and money to do with as I please from birth to death, they can tell me what to do. This is not a dictatorship.”

“I think it is a good choice to have the ultrasound,” wrote Dan Hillman of Locustville. “But the government should not be dictating this procedure. If an abortion is being considered, every bit of information … and its purpose should be made available to the parties involved.”

For school assaults, Hillman said, “There should be some sentence associated … but it must be appropriate … the extent of an assault could suggest a year or more in the pigeon coop!”

“Why don’t we just make it illegal to smoke anywhere, anytime???” he continued. “Once again, government wants to over-control our lives.”

After leaving the service he returned to Blacksburg and completed his bachelor’s degree in building construction in 1949. He then worked as a general contractor for more than 40 years, constructing buildings up and down the Shore, from Capeville to Princess Anne, and took ownership of Northampton Lumber Company in 1982.

He was a deacon and lifelong member of Red Bank Baptist Church. In recent years, he enjoyed gardening, reading and spending time with his family.

As I write this, we have one more week for Virginia’s 2013 General Assembly Session. Other than a one day return in April for the constitutionally mandated veto session to consider the governor’s amendments and vetoes to the bills we passed during the session, we will not be in Richmond, again this year, unless called in by the governor for a special session.

Work on various legislative studies, as well as legislative committee meetings continue off-session, but the actual legislative process is confined to our official session and any specially called sessions. It is always possible that a snap with the budget conference process could result in an extended session; however, everyone works to avoid that. If everything goes according to schedule, we will gavel in at noon on Saturday, Feb. 23, and then adjourn sometime that afternoon.

Still remaining is the need for an agreement between the House and Senate on a compromise version of the amendments on Virginia’s budget. The two versions do not seem to be as far apart as they have in some recent years; the largest issue is how Medicaid expansion is approached in Virginia. The House version of the budget delays expansion and places emphasis on reforms; the Senate version puts expansion in place and works on the reforms simultaneously. The issue of Medicaid expansion is complex. For example, under The Affordable Care Act, Shore Riverside Memorial Hospital stands to lose $1.2 million. If Medicaid were expanded, the cost would be borne completely by the federal government and the hospital would gain $1.8 million. Expansion of Medicaid is expected to pump millions into the healthcare sector of Virginia’s economy and create 30,000 jobs. The concern, of course, is what happens in the out years when we incur gradually a portion of this cost, and also what happens if the federal government ceases to meet its financial obligation. It is projected that in the out years, incurring up to 10 percent of the cost of Medicaid expansion could cost Virginia approximately $160 million annually. It is also important to remember that folks not qualifying for Medicaid now are having their healthcare paid for by the rest of us in some form, directly or indirectly. Again, this is a very complex subject.

The second large, looming issue is the conference committee that is trying to work out a compromise on the House and Senate versions of a transportation bill. The Senate version contains a nickel increase in the gas tax, a 1 percent rise in the wholesale tax on gasoline, and the indexing of gasoline for inflation going forward. It also raises the titling tax by $15. Should Congress fail to pass the Internet sales tax — which would mean more money for Virginia from Internet sales — then the bill provides for another 1 percent increase in the wholesale tax on gasoline. The wholesale tax is not the gas tax paid by the consumer at the pump, but is paid by sellers at the rack. In addition, the Northern Virginia and Hampton Roads planning districts are allowed to impose upon themselves up to a 1 percent increase in their sales tax. The whole Senate transportation package would likely yield about $1.4 billion a year in new revenues for transportation. There is a substantial difference between the House and Senate versions, most notably the gas tax. It may be that single issue which derail any agreement on transportation during this session.

I hope to be appointed as a conferee on HB 2048, the governor’s bill to, among other things, move the Soil and Water Conservation Districts into the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) from the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR). Our agricultural community is, with good reason, very much opposed to this move. Discussions continue among interested parties in advance of any formal Committees of Conference being appointed. It is my hope that the House version of the bill, which retains locally important Soil and Water Conservation District functions within DCR, will prevail and I will be working toward that goal.

As with most short sessions, this has been a hectic one and we have at least touched upon many complex issues in a very short period. It is time to come home and I am looking forward to returning.

Casey Paglia is ready to get on with the next chapter of his life, but he wrote a storybook ending to the current one with his third state championship Saturday night at the Group A wrestling tournament.

Following his championship win, Paglia leaped into the arms of his coach, Will Leland, and then hugged his mother, Karren Paglia, who at last year’s state tourney was confined to a wheelchair due to effects of a rare form of brain cancer. This season she was next to the mat taking photographs for the Jacket squad.

“Last year was special and I was more nervous because of how my mom was doing at the time, but this year was great because it was my last match of my high-school career. There would not be a second chance,” said Paglia.

Paglia said he was somewhat concerned at the beginning of the season because he was wrestling at three weight classes above the 126 weight class in which he won a state title as a junior.

“I think I used my quickness as an advantage,” he said, “but I came up against some stronger opponents than I have faced at lower weight classes.”

Paglia said the battle is won in the mind as much as it is in the physicality of the match.

“Away from the mat, wrestlers from all the teams develop great relationships and share a bond,” he said, “but on the mat you have to be mean. There’s no other way of saying it. You have to be mean to win. If you relax for a second, you are likely to get beat.”

Coach Leland describes Paglia as “a grinder who has an ultra-aggressive mindset. He sees what he wants and then he goes after it.”

Paglia said Leland “is like a second father to me. And Coach (Matt) Evans (Northampton assistant wrestling coach) has helped me in so many ways. I can talk to him about anything — life in general, not just wrestling.”

Of course, like most wrestlers, Casey had tremendous support from his parents, Mike and Karren Paglia, who attended every meet and helped the team in various ways.

They surely appreciate the fact Casey is attending American University — where the tuition is a bit north of $50,000 — on an 80 percent scholarship to wrestle for the Division 1 program.

“There are incentives where I can get to 90 percent scholarship the second year and eventually have an opportunity to earn a full scholarship,” said Paglia.

And one can be sure that if Casey sets his mind to a goal, he will achieve it through sheer will.
Paglia Wins 3rd State Crown; Jackets 5th in State Wrestling

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

Northampton duplicated from last year a fifth-place finish in the Group A Wrestling Tournament in Salem last weekend. Although fifth among 50 teams that qualified for the state finals is a noteworthy achievement, Coach Will Leland had higher expectations for this Jacket squad.

“It is what it is, and I am certainly proud of this team,” he said, “but we were looking to improve on our fifth-place finish last year with eight wrestlers qualifying for the state tournament compared to six last year.”

The one constant for the Jackets was Casey Paglia, who was crowned state champion for the third consecutive year, a feat never before accomplished by an Eastern Shore wrestler. Former Northampton wrestler Nick Cardone, a two-time champion, was there to greet Paglia after his win. In 1994, Leland was the first Eastern Shore wrestler to win a state crown.

Paglia finished his season at 42-1 and had an overall career mark of 165-17. He finished second in the state as a freshman. Paglia’s two previous titles were won at the 119 weight class as a sophomore and 126 as a junior. This year he wrestled at 145.

Next fall, Paglia will be wrestling for American University in Washington, D.C., a Division 1 program that was ranked in the top 10 nationally last year.

As much as any sport, wrestling is about dynasties, and Grundy added to its legacy with its 17th state title, only one short of the record for all sports. The Great Bridge wrestling program has 18 state titles in Group AAA.

Grundy compiled 143 points, followed by Strasburg with 128, Manassas Park 121, Rural Retreat 90.5, Northampton 86 and Parry McCluer 80.

Northampton, which dominated its competition at the region meet, sent eight wrestlers to the states.

Charlie Demarino (113), a junior, finished third in the state while teammate Ryan Bono (106) finished fourth. Malik McCaskill (120) placed seventh and Justin Elting (132) placed eighth.

Other Northampton wrestlers qualifying for the state tournament were Aden Ingram (126), Raul Gildo (160) and LaQuan Hairston (285).

Nandua’s Maurice Tolliver (152) and Bryan Wade (170) and Arcadia’s Zach Sepelak (220) also competed in the state tournament.

Paglia defeated wrestlers from the state’s two strongest programs to win his title. In the semi-final, he met Strasburg’s Todd Dean and suffered only his second takedown of the season in the first period and trailed early. But Paglia roared back to claim a 25-13 decision to move to the championship finals.

“Dean was stronger than I expected, but once I got my mind right, I knew I had the match under control,” said Paglia. “Wrestling is more mental than physical. You have to approach every match with the thought you are the better wrestler on the mat.”

In the finals, Paglia was never in trouble as he stopped Grundy’s Elliot Pedigo 10-3.

Coach Leland said he recognized early that Paglia had what it takes to be an outstanding wrestler. “Back in the eighth grade I could see that Paglia had what it takes to be a great wrestler. This past season he was lifting weights at 5 a.m. and doing two-a-day practices. His work ethic is phenomenal, and his will to win is what makes him an outstanding wrestler. I will miss him, but will also enjoy following his college career.”

Next year will be a different scene as Group A splits in six divisions with Northampton in Division 1 and the top three finalists this year in Division 2.

“I hate to say it will be watered down,” said Coach Leland, “but that’s what it will be. There will be about 30 schools in our division with a wrestling program. Obviously, it gives us a better opportunity to win a state title, but as a wrestler, you want to compete against the best. I’d rather they leave it like it is.”

Nandua Notches Tourney Title To Go With Season Crown

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

Nandua surged from behind in the fourth quarter to win the Eastern Shore District championship 52-46 over Northampton last Thursday night at the Warrior gym.

The Warriors had captured the regular-season title with a 7-3 record, including a split with the Jacket.

Homecourt advantage proved pivotal as the visitors lost all five meetings of the two teams this season. But it appeared Northampton was going to break the trend, holding a 7-point lead with just under four minutes remaining in the game.

However, full-court defensive pressure resulted in steals and layups by guards Austin Heenan and Darius Holden. A 3-pointer by Heenan also helped to bring the Warriors back. In addition, 6-foot, 5-inch Issac Taylor muscled his way for 7 points in the final quarter to complete the comeback.

Taylor had a team-high 20 points. Tyreim Blake added 12 for the Warriors, while Heenan chipped in with 11 points. Taylor also had eight rebounds to lead the team.

Taylor had 10 points in the first half, but only 3 in the third quarter when the Warriors were held to 4 points, losing what was once an 11-point lead. At the end of three quarters, the score was knotted at 34.

“I told our players to get the ball into Issac after that third quarter,” said coach Cedric Cooper following the win. “I reminded them that we got the lead with Issac scoring on the inside, and no one on the court had gotten taller since the beginning of the game. We had a long scoring drought there, but in the end we found a way to get it done.”

Between Nandua scoring 20 points in both the first and fourth quarters, the Warriors managed only 12 points in the second and third quarters combined.

Nandua was playing without its leading scorer, Trayvon Snead, who had injured his hand.

Jab Onley, selected Player of the Year in district voting last week, scored a game-high 21 points and was the only Jacket in double figures. Shyheim Nock and Onley each had 14 rebounds.

Coach Wayne Bell said the lack of scoring support for Onley contributed to the defeat. “I was hoping to get more production from our guards,” he said, “but they had an off shooting night. We fought to the end and I’m proud of the team. We’ve dealt with numerous adversities this year, but for the guys who stuck it out, I believe it will make them better individuals.”

Nandua had a bye in the first round of the region and will play Northumberland at home tonight at 6. (See Page 20 for early round region results.) A win would put the Warriors in the region finals tomorrow night at Lancaster.

Nandua and Northumberland split games this season, with Nandua losing to the Indians 43-40 on the Warrior court and then winning 59-53 at Northumberland.

Chances are it will be a close game. Nandua, 10-9, lost eight games this season by 6 points or fewer. Northumberland, 13-11, had eight games decided by 3 or fewer points, winning three.
Northampton Takes Tourney Title; Vies for Region Crown

The Northampton girls’ hoop team added the Eastern Shore District tournament championship to their regular season title last Thursday night with a 64-42 win over Nandua.

The Lady Jackets drew a first-round bye and played the winner of Northumberland and Sussex last night in a game played after Post deadlines. A win last night would put them in the 6 p.m. finals on Saturday in Lancaster and also guarantee them a spot in the state playoffs.

After compiling a perfect 9-0 regular-season title, the Northampton girls took a 13-5 first-quarter lead last Thursday and stretched it to 31-20 at halftime before pouring in 21 points in the third quarter to seize control of the game.

Katelyn Weber led the Lady Jackets with 16 points, including four 3-pointers, one that Nandua coach Kim Giddens described as “from NBA range.” Whitney Metz added 12 points. Nine different Jackets scored as Coach Leo Owens has utilized a deep bench all season. D’errica Toppin had a game-high 23 points for Nandua.

Kesi Harman of Northampton was named Player of the Year in the Eastern Shore girls’ basketball district by league coaches last week.

Also on the first team were Whitney Metz and Katelyn Weber of Northampton and Khadijah Robertson and D’errica Toppin of Nandua.

Named second team All-District were Brianna Williams of Northampton, Patrice Glover of Nandua, Lili Tuialuluuluu of Arcadia, Jennifer Spicer of Nandua and Shyneqwa Warren of Northampton.

Awarded honorable mention were Daju Smith of Northampton, Ciara Bailey of Nandua, Jasmin Holden of Arcadia and Chelsea Pitts of Chincoteague.

Harman, a senior, gave the Jackets a strong rebounding game and an inside presence that helped Northampton record a perfect 9-0 record this season and win the tournament crown easily.

Whitney Metz led Northampton in scoring, registering a season-high 30 points against rival Nandua late in the season. The junior guard often scored with steals, converting the turnovers into baskets on the Jacket end of the court.

Katelyn Weber, a senior, was the Jackets’ point guard and directed the Northampton attack. Her outside shooting from the 3-point line opened up the inside game for the Lady Jackets.

D’errica Toppin of Nandua is only a freshman, but was asked to assume a leadership role for the Lady Warriors. She averaged 12 points a game for Nandua and will be counted on again next season.

Khadijah Robinson of Nandua, a sophomore guard, averaged 10 points a game this season. Coach Kim Giddens called her an outstanding defensive presence for the Lady Warriors.

Northampton exhibited superior depth this season and got double-figure scoring from several players throughout the season.

Six Lady Jackets in all received All-District honors, with three on the first team, two on the second team and an honorable mention selection.

Coach Leo Owens will return Briana Williams and Daju Smith in addition to Metz next season. Nandua returns all its key starters.
Shore All-District Team Named; Jab Onley Player of Year

Jab Onley of Northampton was named Player of the Year in the Eastern Shore District and was joined by Trayvon Snead and Issac Taylor of Nandua, Bryant Savage of Chincoteague and Tyler Warner of Arcadia on the first team.

Named to the second team were Darius Holden of Nandua, Raquan Anderson of Northampton, Tony Holden of Arcadia, James Goldrup of Chincoteague and Zeb Carter of Northampton.

Honorable mention honors went to Tyreim Blake of Nandua, Shyheim of Northampton, Wayne Bell said Onley led by example. “He worked hard in practice and in the game. Jab always displayed a positive attitude and had the ability to get others to follow him. Jab has been a pleasure to coach and I feel that he will be successful in his future endeavors because he works hard and knows how to listen.” Onley plans to attend Norfolk State University in the fall.

Trayvon Snead, a junior forward for Nandua, led the team in scoring with a 13.8-point game average, and shot 51 percent from the field on 2-point attempts. Nandua coach Cedrick Cooper said Snead was a leader on the floor. “Trayvon was a high-energy player who played hard on both offense and defense. His hustle was a great example to his teammates.” Snead missed the tournament with an injured hand and hoped to be ready for the region tourney.

Bryant Savage of Chincoteague, a senior, led the Ponies in scoring and scored a season-high for all district players with 41 points in Chincoteague’s lone win over Holly Grove in the final game of the season. The son of Pony coach Jay Savage, Bryant will be missed by Chincoteague next season.

Issac Taylor, a Nandua sophomore, was a 6-foot, 5-inch center who showed a soft touch around the basket and could shoot the 15-foot jumper. “We have watched Issac mature as a player this season,” said Cooper. “It’s exciting to see him develop into a top post player who will only improve next year. He stayed after practice and worked on his game throughout the season.”

Tyler Warner, a senior, averaged 14 points a game for Arcadia and handled the ball in the Firebirds’ attack. His quickness led to numerous steals on the defensive end. Coach Alvin Jutis said Warner will be “sorely missed next season.”

Shore Teams Drop Regional Openers

Northumberland got off to a torrid start against Northampton Wednesday night and brought a halt to the Yellow Jacket season with a 93-53 win. The Indians scored 23 points in the first quarter and never looked back. The Indians will now face Nandua tonight at 6 p.m. in Onley.

Jab Onley led the Jackets with 18, followed by 12 from Raquan Anderson and 10 from Shyheim Nock.

The Nandua girls were walloped 78-20 by Lancaster, the top team in the Northern Neck District, Tuesday night in the opening round of region play. The extremely young Warriors were no match for Lancaster, now 22-5 on the season.
Three Vikings Named All-Metro

Broadwater’s Michael Riopel and Brendon Burrows were named to the boys’ basketball Metro Conference first team and Kristen Lewis was named to the girls’ first team by league coaches. Riopel, a junior, was named to the first team All-Metro for the third consecutive year. The 6-foot, 4-inch point guard led the Vikings in scoring with a 16.8-point average. Coach Eddie Spencer said Riopel was equally adept at hitting a 3-pointer or driving to the basket when challenged. “Michael sets a great example both on and off the court,” said Spencer. “I have coached him since he was about 6 years old and have enjoyed watching him develop into a quality player.”

Burrows led the Vikings in rebounding with 12.3 rebounds a game and averaged 16.1 points a game. “Brendon gave us a physical presence inside, but he can come down and hit a 3-pointer too. He works hard on his game and is among the first to arrive to practice and the last to leave,” said Spencer, who noted both Riopel and Burrows also worked hard in the classroom.

Lewis led the Lady Vikings with a 13.7-point scoring average and led the team in assists. Coach Ralph Dodd said, “Kristen was one of our co-captains and a leader on the court. She was a very good ball handler, and we relied on her for her ability to score.” Lewis also was named to the All-Metro volleyball team and was All-State in cross-country earlier this year.

Broadwater Boys, Girls in Metro, State Tourneys

Both the Broadwater boys’ and girls’ basketball teams began play last night in the Metro Conference tournament. The games began after Post deadlines. The second-seeded Viking boys (13-3) were meeting seventh-seeded Hampton Christian (4-12). Semi-finals and finals were scheduled for Friday and Saturday, respectively, at Denbigh Baptist. The boys are ranked sixth in the state in Virginia Independent Schools Athletic Association (VISAA) Division 3 and were tentatively slated to host a state playoff game next Tuesday.

The fifth-seeded Broadwater girls (9-7) played fourth-seeded Atlantic Shores (10-5) last night. Semi-finals are scheduled for tonight at Williamsburg Christian, with the finals at Denbigh Baptist Saturday. The girls were ranked seventh in the state in VISAA Division 3 and will likely travel for a state playoff game next Tuesday.

The Broadwater boys concluded their season last Friday night with a 68-48 win over Portsmouth Christian. Tied at 15 after the first quarter, the Vikings quieted the always boisterous Portsmouth Christian crowd by taking a 7-point halftime lead and then stretching it to 16 after three quarters. Brendon Burrows had a double-double with 20 points and 13 rebounds. Michael Riopel added 16, while Jake Golibert and Matthew McCaskill had 11 each.

The Broadwater girls fell to Portsmouth Christian 59-37 after managing only 2 points in the opening quarter and falling behind by 14.

I am generally of the belief that any reminiscence I might have about my childhood would find little common ground among Eastern Shore readers.

But with more and more newcomers discovering the Shore, I actually might relate to a few of you out there now.

To begin, I realize I could have swapped out the word “newcomers” for come ’er’s, but I always have found the term a bit dismissive. Being one myself, I am of the opinion that any group of people that warrants a title all its own is being kept apart intentionally. And that never was my preference.

Anyway, please proceed without trepidation. I promise not to subject you to all manner of sensitive opinion or stridently foreign references to an ethnic childhood.

No, this is about snow.

My childhood memories are steeped in the stuff, until that year in my adulthood when the thermometer didn’t rise above freezing for weeks and weeks. It followed the season of 200 inches of snow.

And we were out of there.

Ah, but as a child, a heavy snowfall — no, make that a blizzard — meant that we would rise early, ostensibly to get ready for school, but actually riveted to the radio which would announce whether school would be closed.

Now, just because the schools in Buffalo were closed didn’t mean that the ones in Niagara Falls were. And just because the Niagara Falls public schools were closed didn’t mean that our Catholic one was. So it was a very exacting process of winnowing out our precise nugget of luck.

Perhaps that is where I first honed by keen sense for discriminating news.

In any event, a snow day meant a bit more in my family than in most because both of my parents taught school. Therefore, when I was very young, a particularly heavy snowfall could hold the whole family happily hostage.

I recall a particular February blizzard which lasted a week. Because it included my birthday, I always felt quite proprietary about the event, as if it were specifically for me. And as we continuously shoveled the driveway to keep transportation possible, we were able to make snow angels standing up!

But in all my snowbound years, I never did find a solution for cold toes. No matter how many pairs of socks, nor how new the boots, my toes would go numb in no time. Now numbness may sound like a blessing, but the way back from numbness to feeling involves a whole lot of pain.

And I never mastered the art of ice skating. Though my friends and I dreamed of the perfect rink, and often flooded our backyards to freeze them, I would spend the entire afternoon sliding on my ankle bones … with frozen toes!

While a few inches of snow might bring life on the Shore to a standstill, such was never the case in western New York. If it had been, we never would have gone to school or the grocery store or church from November through March. You just learned how to cope with the nuisance of snow banks to climb over and frozen jaws to talk through.

Now my mother always loved the snow. She found much more discomfort in heat and humidity than she ever could in piercing cold. I always have considered it appropriate that it snowed non-stop during the four weeks that she lay dying.

But there never was a more inviting refuge as a child than coming home in the early dark to warmth, the aromas of dinner, fogged windows above the stove, and the voices of family. Hang the crusty mittens on the radiator, find a pair of dry socks, and experience the very essence of peace.

We Need To Solve Debt Problem

Dear Editor:

The national debt is getting way out of control, and if we don’t do something about it soon, the country could collapse. Most politicians only complain about the debt when their party is out of power, but when they regain power, suddenly the debt is OK. When George W. Bush was in office, the Democrats screamed about the debt being out of control, and now they won’t even pass a budget. Today, partisan politics are killing us, and we better start learning how to work together or else.

President Obama’s stimulus package has been and still is pushing all these green-job companies such as Solyndra, and they have all gone broke. Most of the time when the government lends money to a company that goes broke, it’s set up so that they get paid off first. Not this time; the investors get paid off and the taxpayer gets stuck with the bill. I guess it’s just a coincidence that most of the investors are Obama backers? Yet what if he had spent that money on our aging infrastructure for better highways and uninterrupted Super Bowls?

The federal government has had a deficit since the late 1800s. I don’t remember them ever paying it off; it just got bigger each year with a few exceptions where they managed to balance it. Thirty years ago, the national debt was just over $1 trillion and now it’s around $16 trillion and four of those years the budget was balanced. Obama has added almost $6 trillion in less than four years. That tells me he must have forgotten how to manage money, or just doesn’t care. We have got to stop spending money in this country like a bunch of drunken sailors on Saturday night liberty.

That’s why I am for a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. It would help keep the politicians honest, if that is possible. It also would end the free lunch that they hand out that really isn’t free after all. That way when they give you the so-called bridge to nowhere, they also hand you the bill. Then you decide whether you want the bridge or the extra tax that you will have to pay for it.

‘Sorry, Bluejays’

Dear Editor:

I’ve always hated bluejays around the bird feeder in the winter. They seem very aggressive toward other birds.

I recently spoke to my son at Virginia Tech, where he is majoring in forestry and fisheries. He told me that bluejays plant more seeds in the forest than squirrels.

I’m familiar with carbon footprints and how Nancy Pelosi and Al Gore have planted trees to offset the jet fuel they have burned flying round the world. Now I can assume that bluejays have a greater impact on the world’s carbon footprint than the squirrels, Nancy Pelosi and Al Gore combined.

I want to apologize to the bluejays.
