No PUD Intended

By Linda Cicoira

Residents in Northern Accomack don’t want a Planned Unit Development (PUD) to come to Wattsville. They don’t want to share their water. They don’t want a sewage treatment plant. They don’t want congestion and more traffic lights. They don’t believe the developer’s estimates on the jobs it will bring. And they don’t think the proposal will ever come to fruition.

About 50 of them, mostly from surrounding areas like Atlantic and Greenbackville, turned out to show their opposition at a public hearing conducted by the Accomack Board of Supervisors Wednesday. Action was delayed until Nov. 20 as requested by Supervisor Laura Belle Gordy who was absent due to an illness in the family.

The county’s Planning Commission recommended the supervisors deny the Bridge Hill Conditional Rezoning Amendment requested by developer Chris Carbaugh and his lawyer, Mark Baumgartner. The commissioners said specific proffers requested by the panel were not provided, and the amendment is inconsistent with the 2006 rezoning and Comprehensive Plan.

Acting Commission Chairman George Parker told the supervisors of two issues of particular concern. He said while Baumgartner talks about 181 lots at Bridge Hill, there is nothing in the plan that limits the number. Parker also said, “Roads depicted are conceptual only. There wasn’t anything in here that tied graphics to proffers.”

Without a wastewater plan for the first request, the PUD application also was denied by the commissioners for what is now being referred to as Town Center at Wallops Island Spaceport.

Commissioners also found the “treatment facility size and scale is not in keeping with the Future Land Use Section of the Comprehensive Plan.”

Baumgartner told the supervisors he would stipulate the 181 lots and (Continued on Page 13)

Traffic Crashes Claim 3 Lives

By Linda Cicoira

Three men died in two collisions, and a third traffic accident injured 13 travelers last week on the Eastern Shore.

Irvin T. Costin, 65, of Onancock and Juan A. Escobedo Jr., 32, of Bowling Green, Fla., died in a crash last Friday near Painter, according to State Police spokeswoman Corinne Geller.

Gibbons was not wearing a seatbelt and was partially ejected. He died at the scene. Police believe the crash was (Continued on Page 3)
Tour of Williamsburg Hospital Gives Glimpse of What’s In Store for Shore

By Ron West

Riverside Health System officials offered a preview of the Shore’s new hospital when they conducted a walkthrough of their newest medical facility in Williamsburg last week.

The 110,000-square-foot, two-story medical complex, located on Route 60 is nestled between colonial Williamsburg and Busch Gardens. Outwardly, looking much like a shopping mall, the new Riverside Doctors’ Hospital is situated on a 380-acre site. It features a state-of-the-art emergency room, lab and imaging department, as well as spacious patient rooms that closely resemble what might be found in a hotel.

The Williamsburg hospital offers a food service where the patient can order from a menu and have food delivered when desired.

Many of the amenities at the newest Riverside facility will be incorporated in the new hospital to be built between Onley and Onancock, providing much improved medical services over what is currently available on the Shore. Groundbreaking is scheduled for Oct. 22.

The new hospital will be about one and a half times the size of its Williamsburg counterpart, having approximately 60 beds and three operating rooms, compared to 40 beds and two operating rooms.

With groundbreaking scheduled for later this month, the three-story Shore facility is expected to be open by the winter of 2015.

Still to be decided is what to do with the current medical facility in Nassawadox once the new hospital. No answers were forthcoming from the Riverside officials during the tour.

Nor did they address what will become of the wastewater facility that currently services multiple buildings in the Nassawadox area or what emergency-care facility will be available in Northampton County and where it will be located.
Committee To Address Deer/Dog Issue

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack supervisors voted 6-3 Wednesday to appoint an advisory committee to solve issues between landowners and those who hunt deer with dogs even though a 2002 committee with the same goals was scrapped without results.

Hunt clubs were urged to handle members who violate laws. The supervisors also advised the public to report illegal activities to police.

At a hearing earlier this month, property owners complained that dog hunters trespass with guns and intimidate them, and the dogs destroy property. Still-hunters also argued dogs run the deer off and confrontations between gun carriers could lead to injury.

The dog hunters contend using the hounds is the only way to control the large deer population and that the law allows them to retrieve their animals.

Supervisor Robert Crockett came up with the committee proposal as an alternative to asking the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries to ban hunting with dogs. The former sheriff said no one has complained to police about violations for two years.

Voting with Crockett were Chairman Donald Hart, Vice Chairman Jack Gray and Supervisors Grayson Chesser and Reneta Major. Supervisor Laura Belle Gordy was absent due to an illness in her family.

Gray said County Attorney Mark Taylor cleared him to vote on the issue. He wanted everyone to know he rents two parcels to hunt clubs and allows friends to hunt on other property. None use dogs, he said.

“I can’t go along with this,” Thornton argued. “We owe it to the people to protect their property rights.”

“I don’t have a dog in this fight,” said Wolff, who doesn’t hunt. “As a fisherman, there are a ton of regulations. … Hunting deer with dogs is like fishing in a barrel. I don’t see much sport in it. If you can’t get a deer … in Accomack with a dog there’s something wrong with you. They’re everywhere.”

Crockett said that before the hearing, he considered asking for requirements that dog hunters register with hunt clubs, use at least 200 continuous acres for the hunts, use tracking collars and limit the number of dogs to eight. But after hearing the speakers, he was convinced a committee could handle the problems.

“I think it’s worth a try,” said Crockett. “They have a duty to police their own,” he added about the hunt clubs.

Chesser, a former game warden who no longer hunts with dogs, said he doesn’t want to see the tradition end. “I think we should give (the committee) a chance … see if we can reach some kind of compromise.”

Crockett wants one of the supervisors to head up the committee. He was ready with the names of three hunt club presidents and three landowners to also serve on the panel. All are men. Other supervisors nixed his picks as they wanted to help select the representatives. Crockett suggested the committee meet before and after rifle season. The supervisors agreed to select members at their next meeting.

In the same 6-3 vote, the supervisors turned down Thornton’s motion to ask for the ban if violations are reported by February. The majority said the action would be premature.

At nearly 6:10 a.m. Saturday, Jeffrey Williams, 59, of New York was driving a commercial passenger bus south on Lankford Highway in Machipongo when it ran off the road and struck a ditch.

Fifty-four passengers from New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia Beach were on the Vision Tours Bus, which leases the bus from ABC Bus Leasing of Minnesota, Geller said. Thirteen passengers were taken to Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries.

In Wake of Embezzlement Arrest, Onley VFC Gets On With Mission

By Linda Cicoira

While the 82-year-old former Onley Volunteer Fire & Rescue treasurer charged with nine counts of embezzlement last week awaits trial, the company is moving forward with new officers and nearly a dozen young members.

“Our official position is we will not comment on the case,” Onley Fire Chief Bill Ferguson said Wednesday. “Our organization is focusing on serving the citizens of the community to the best of our ability, encouraging and training our cadets and retaining interest and enthusiasm of our veteran membership.”

Ferguson said the company now has 20 active senior volunteers and 11 cadets 16 or 17 years old who joined since last November and have been involved in training. Ten are CPR-certified; the other is working on becoming certified, Ferguson said.

“The majority of these guys and gals are going to attend the fire academy,” noted the chief. “My goal is to make us the best we can be.”

In addition, new officers were installed in September. They include President Dannehl Strautz, Vice President John Roache, Treasurer Tami Serio and Secretary John Burr. Larry Thomas and Rodney Beasley are at-large members of the company’s board of directors.

Authorities are closely guarding information about the charges against Morris. Court records show he is accused of “nine counts of embezzling funds intended for the operations of the fire station” between Jan. 1, 2008, and June 30, 2012. Last February, a source close to the issue told the Eastern Shore Post that between $400,00 and $500,000 is missing.

Stanley G. Barr Jr., a Norfolk lawyer who represents the fire company, declined to comment because he doesn’t want to “prejudice the outcome. It is a very unfortunate circumstance,” he continued. “It’s an ongoing matter; we don’t know the extent of the loss.”

In early 2013, Acomack supervisors unanimously voted to put sanctions on county spending for the company until irregularities in finances are resolved. Just before that action was taken, Ferguson wrote a letter to the board assuring it that reorganization has made the company stronger, response time has improved and membership has grown.

“As a result of a discovery (in November 2012) of possible financial irregularities ... immediate changes were (made) and proper corrective action was taken,” Ferguson wrote.

According to the county resolution, no payments will be made directly to the fire company and must be request-ed in writing by the company president and treasurer. Acomack Finance Director Mike Mason is reviewing payments. Bills must be certified as authentic, payments will be accounted against allocable money and for normally eligible items or services made to “similarly situated companies,” the resolution states.

Morris, who live on Coastal Boulevard in Onley, was released from jail on $1,000 bond after being indicted by an Acomack Grand Jury last week. As is the usual practice for Acomack General District Court, a hearing was scheduled to appoint a lawyer for Morris in case he cannot afford one. If he hires an attorney before 1:30 p.m. Oct. 23, the hearing will not be necessary.

The nine charges were broken down by six-month increments from Jan. 1, 2008 through June 30, 2012. The indictments were brought Monday, Oct. 7, but were kept quiet by the commonwealth’s attorney until Morris was arrested.
Police and Court Postings

By Linda Cicoira

Northampton Circuit Court

Her DNA was found on Korey Dan-tyay Taylor’s penis just hours after he was accused of raping the grandmother of his three children as she slept off drugs taken for a migraine headache.

But following 20 minutes of deliberation, a Northampton Circuit Court jury acquitted Taylor last Friday of the charge. The panel consisted of four women and eight men.

The alleged victim, Dorothy Williams Tazewell, is disabled with rheumatoid arthritis. Her daughter, who married the defendant two weeks after the alleged rape, cast her as a woman who lied to suit her purposes — one of which was to sabotage the upcoming wedding.

The evidence included topless photographs of Dorothy Tazewell that Taylor, 34, of Indiantown Road in Eastville claimed she emailed to him. He also told police she enticed him.

She denied sending photos or seducing him. Tazewell said she took photos of herself and saved them to her cell phone because she had skin irritations that she wanted to show her physician.

Jurors were told of Tazewell’s theft conviction nearly three decades earlier. They weren’t told that Taylor is a registered sex offender who was convicted in 2010 of taking indecent liberties with a girl younger than 15. He used larceny of more than $7,640 in cash and checks from Shore Stop of Cape Charles where she worked on Dec. 26, 1986. She was 32 years old when the incident occurred. She was given five years, with all but nine months suspended, and ordered to make restitution.

Tazewell, 59, of Bay View Apartments near Cheriton, admitted that earlier in the afternoon the two had a disagreement about seating at the wedding. “I told him I was not going to the wedding. It was just a thing I said because I was mad,” Tazewell said.

When she went to the bedroom to sleep, Taylor stayed in her living room watching TV and promising to lock up before he left.

At a January preliminary hearing, she testified that she went to police about Taylor in 2001 after he “pinned me between the kitchen and the table. He was trying to get my clothes off and he bruised me all over so I went and complained about that.”

Charges were never made against him in connection with that incident. Her daughter has been seeing Taylor since high school.

In the first case, Taylor blamed his teenage cousin for sending lewd text messages to the girl from his cell phone. She was a basketball player on the team he coached for the Northampton Parks and Recreation Department. Taylor was sentenced to five years in prison with all but 12 months suspended. Probation was ordered for five years, until 2015.

Had he been convicted in his mother-in-law’s case, Taylor would have automatically gotten life in prison.

Tazewell testified that on Sept. 22, 2012, she had taken a couple of Floralin with codeine pills before lying down in her bedroom. She said she awoke to a pain in her stomach that she realized was Taylor having intercourse with her; her pants and underwear had been removed. She said she pushed him off and managed to roll off the bed, but he grabbed her from behind. She stomped on his feet to get free before escaping to the bathroom and locking the door. Evidence showed she suffered “blunt force trauma to her cervix.”

“I washed up … I was in there crying. I sat on the floor just waiting for my back door to close,” she testified. Tazewell said she called her grown children (including her daughter) and her husband from whom she’s been separated for more than a dozen years. “I told her what happened … I tried to protect her. I offered to swear on my Bible. I wanted her to talk to him, let him know not to come to my house no more.”

Tazewell said she didn’t call police right away. She feared being denied visits with her grandchildren.

Forensic scientist Gloria Hill said the DNA from only two people was found on Taylor — his and the victim’s.

A nurse who specializes in sexual assault testified, “The abnormal findings (bruises and cervical bleeding) that I found were consistent with Mrs. Tazewell’s story.” Another expert said she suffers from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder because of the incident.

Dorothy Tazewell also used the Alford plea regarding a charge of grand larceny of more than $7,640 in cash and checks from Shore Stop of Cape Charles where she worked on Dec. 26, 1986. She was 32 years old when the incident occurred. She was given five years, with all but nine months suspended, and ordered to make restitution.

A November preliminary hearing was set.

In another case, David Ira Smith Jr., 46, of Scarborough Neck Road in Belle Haven was charged with possession of cocaine on Oct. 11. Depute S.E. Henning of ACSO investigated. No bond was set.

Maryland authorities are seeking extradition for Andrew Moore, 46, of Cedar Drive in Hornet. Moore is being held in Accomack Jail without bail. He is wanted on a charge of fourth-degree burglary. Depute N. Bogan investigated.

Accomack Sheriff’s Office

Robert James Northan Jr., 28, of Onley is being sought by police in connection with a shooting in the Whitesville area Sunday, according to Accomack Sheriff Todd Godwin.

The incident on Church Street near Parkesley was reported to Godwin’s office at about 4:40 a.m. Deputies arrived at the scene and found a victim who was taken by Parkesley Rescue to a local hospital. The victim, who Godwin did not identify, was listed in critical but stable condition.

Shots were fired following an altercation between at least two people, Godwin said. The suspect fled before police arrived.

Northan was charged with malicious wounding, use of a firearm in the crime and possession of a firearm by a felon. Northan is “known to frequent the Parkesley and Tasley areas of Accomac County,” Godwin said.

Godwin asked anyone with information about the shooting or the whereabouts of Northan to call his office at 787-1131 or 824-5666. Tips may be submitted through the department’s website, www.accomackcountysheriffsoffice.org.

Accomack Grand Jury

Quiet indictments made public this week include:

• Harry (Peaches) Earl Pinkard, 46, of Lankford Highway in New Church, on counts of eluding and driving after being declared an habitual offender on Nov. 24, 2012, and possession of cocaine on July 20, 2013. Trooper S.N. Kulick investigated.

• Calvin Nathaniel Nock, 35, of Boston Road in Painter, on counts of hit and run with property damage of more than $1,000, driving without a license and failure to stay in the lane, occurring June 30.

• Noe Escalante-Velasquez, 31, of Dreamland Court in Accomac, on counts of stealing a vehicle belonging to Steven Silva, hit and run with property damage of more than $1,000, driving without a license and driving a vehicle “closer than is reasonable and prudent” on April 28. Trooper J. Ferayus investigated.
By Linda Cicoira

A majority of Accomack residents are willing to spend $6 million in tax revenue for a new library, according to an email survey conducted recently by the Eastern Shore Post. The same group narrowly agreed using nearly $2 million for a roundabout in Tasley is a waste of money.

More than 58 percent of those who participated in the poll favor spending the library estimate. About 33 percent are opposed and around 9 percent like the concept, but not the pricetag. Fifty-two percent are against building a traffic circle at the intersection of Parksley and Tasley Roads.

Don Amadeo lives down the street from the roundabout project. He said he was speaking for “many Tasley residents” when he called it a “huge waste of time and taxpayer money and a major inconvenience” to travelers.

A traffic light would have been a better solution for less money, he contended.

Amadeo said it would have taken only a few days to install the light at a cost of $200,000. “Four months to build this thing?!” Really?!!! The NYP&N Railroad could lay a mile of track down the Eastern Shore in a single day in 1884!”

“Businesses (are) suffering due to detours. Traffic (is) backed up at the 4 Corners traffic light (and there is) difficulty in crossing the highway” due to detours, he continued. It would take 400 years to see electric cost savings to justify it, Amadeo said.

Amadeo favors the library, but wants the proposal scaled down. “Enough money is wasted by the county,” he said. “Money spent on a new library would be money well spent.”

“I don’t understand the point of it,” Linda Nicola of Onancock wrote about the roundabout. “Seems like a lot of expense for nothing. A lot of businesses have been harmed because of the shutdown of the road.” She would vote for the library spending. “This library is of critical importance for the future of the county.”

“I have had experience with roundabouts and I’m not a fan,” wrote Sharyn McQuaid of Melfa. “I think it is an enormous expense for something that people will wish to have removed in short order.”

A member of the Friends of the Eastern Shore Public Library, McQuaid continued, “I would vote in favor of spending $6 million.” She said more space would allow the collection of books to grow and more room for computer users. “It would accommodate public meetings … the parking lot of the current library is often completely full and yet, I think the change in location would increase user traffic considerably and the larger parking availability would make access easier.”

“Roundabouts are chaotic and hectic,” Chris Stewart of Painter contended. “The only thing a roundabout does is look nice.” He favors $6 million for the library. “Parents (and) students need a way to get some work done. Students need more access to books and (the) Internet. This is a good investment.”

William Bannon of Greenbush is opposed to spending $6 million for the library and to building it in Onley. “I can understand renovation and upgrades to the existing building, but not for that pricetag,” he said.

Dan Hillman of Locustville said he likes roundabouts, having seen numerous towns up north use them. “They proved to be very effective.” He favors a more up-to-date library, “but given the economy, it seems to me that $6 million is a bit extravagant.” He also questioned the location because of future hospital congestion.

“This is a joke and a total waste of money when a traffic light is all that was needed,” said Shirley Christian of Melfa, who complained about Tasley detours. Christian worries a new library would increase taxes. “With the economy as it is people are not in a position to take on more debt.”

Jack Mason of Metompkin Bay called the roundabout “beyond insane.” He said it will “provide mortuaries with increased business and emergency rooms with more overcrowding.” He helped raise money for the current library, but would probably vote against a new facility “unless it were located between the community college and Nandua High School.”

“What a waste of money!” Al James of Quinby said about the Tasley intersection. “If they were worried about accidents before, wait ‘till confused motorists enter a roundabout.”

“As much as I love the library, I don’t think county government should fund it,” James continued. “If they can’t get it done with private donations, then they should stay where they are.”

“Ridiculous!” was how Kim Smith of Harborton described the intersection construction. “We spent money on a roundabout on a secondary route when we still have very dangerous areas on Route 13.” She isn’t sure about spending for a new library. “I seldom use the library anymore. With technology in this day and age there are so many better and easier ways to investigate, reference and read right from home.”

keep traffic flowing and prevent misunderstandings,” she wrote. “I would support some of my tax dollars going toward a new county library, but am not sure about the figure. We are all very conscious of personal budgets right now.”

“I guess it’s better than a stop light,” Karen Simpson of Quinby said of the Tasley intersection. “But won’t actually know until it is finished and I have used it.” She favors spending for a new library. “YES! YES! YES!!! Cut paying health insurance for supervisors, cut paying state troopers overtime for sitting in their marked cars during highway roadwork. Cut free breakfast/lunches in schools.”

Deborah Russell of Parksley agreed the roundabout is a “waste of time and taxpayers’ money.” Regarding the library, “I don’t see why they didn’t let Accomack supervisors help purchase the old McMath building. Seems we have enough dilapidated buildings on the Shore going to the dogs.”

“The roundabout on Chincoteague has been a good thing,” said Donna Mason of the island. “Libraries are a valuable resource but … $6 million is a lot of money. I would scale back the size and scope and try to salvage the character of the current library. Maintaining some of the older structures is, in my opinion, a good idea. We took an old barbershop in Chincoteague and with donations of land and fundraisers made a very historical, very unusual, modern library that serves the community well and maintains the heritage of the Island.”

Shirley Zamora of Onancock saw no problem with the roundabout and also compared it with the one on Chincoteague where traffic is heavier. She is against spending for the library. “The county has too many mandated, unfunded liabilities to take on this amount of discretionary debt … the library needs to research more grant funding … it has spent money on two sets of plans to accommodate the ‘gift’ of ‘free’ land. That has cost over a million dollars … it is not just $6 million and 20 years of debt. It is also increased annual operating costs that are significant … they need to discuss working with the community college on a joint effort.”

“I hope that everyone will learn traffic-circle etiquette once it is open,” said Janet Rochester of Onancock, a library supporter. “A new library is an investment in the community … for those who have limited access to books and computers” and those “who need them for school work, employment opportunities and personal growth.”

Kenny Ainsworth Jr. of Horsey said the roundabout is “nice but unnecessary.”

He favors the library “because it is the right time to build based on the cost of construction and money … there is a need. … It should be more central to the county, not in the southern half.”

Dorothy Bonney of New Church said “no” to the library and the roundabout for economic reasons and because other unnamed projects are more important.

“This may cause more accidents and confusion than the blinker or a traffic light,” wrote Carol Callander of Bloxom of the road circle. She favors library spending. “Attempting to refurbish the current structure would be more expensive than starting new.”

Rupert Humer of Pungoteague said the roundabout shouldn’t have been approved. He likes the $6 million library plan. “The county needs a new library and with a tax increase of only $15 per household, it was very affordable.”

J.W. Jeffries of Chincoteague Island is opposed to the library plan. “Absolutely NO. Spend the $6 million on our teacher salaries and health insurance. Accomack County already has a library.”

John Hickman, another islander, favors the traffic circle. “Roundabouts are very effective ways to efficiently manage traffic. He wants a new $6 million library because “Accomack is the home of some of the oldest records in the country and they should be maintained in a state-of-the-art building.”

“They take getting used to, but do keep traffic flowing,” Evan Clements of Onancock said of the roundabout. “I had hoped a four-way stop would work in Tasley. That would have been my first choice.” He approves spending for a new library. “We have spent a fortune on so many other things … why not on something that benefits all? The facility should be built to last and be flexible as … needs change. I hope we don’t have committee after committee or end up building an inferior project.”

“The roundabout will prevent accidents,” said Robert J. Peters of Horsey. He favors the library “to further education and access to the world of books and now computer technology.”

Charles Heath of Greenbackville said he is indifferent to the traffic circle and is against a new library. He “would rather see the money spent on economic development or infrastructure.”

“It took them 11 years to start the project,” Lynn Gillingham of Onancock wrote of the roundabout. “I hope it doesn’t take them 11 years to finish it. The detours are inconvenient.” Regarding the library, Gillingham added, “Spend the money, for goodness sake. Libraries are priceless.”

Ashley Mapp of Onancock said the detours “are very dangerous” and a better plan is needed. She favors library spending. “Updating the local library would bring excitement (and) that would bring in the children … even if it starts just out of curiosity.”

“Our current main library is outdated and worn out and completely inadequate to deliver the services we need,” Laura Lucas of Onancock wrote. “We can afford it. If the county obtained a bond that allowed interest-only payments for the first two or three years, the principal would begin to be paid at the same time that the school bond debt is significantly reduced. Therefore, a tax increase should not be necessary.”
The Boys and Girls Club of the Eastern Shore will hold its Sixth Annual Swine and Wine event at Central Green in Painter Saturday, Nov. 16.

Hacksneck Nurse Dies

Zoe Nicole Bryans, 49, of Hacksneck died peacefully on Saturday, Sept. 28, 2013.

Zoe was born in Geneva, Switzerland, and experienced a culturally rich childhood in Europe. Curiosity and openness allowed her to embrace people whose paths she crossed and places where adventure took her. Zoe was a caring friend to many where she settled in Rockbridge County and on the Eastern Shore.

Zoe was a graduate of the University of Virginia and received an RN degree from Dabney Lancaster Community College in Clifton Forge. She was a nurse at Heritage Hall in Lexington and subsequently a palliative nurse with Rockbridge Area Hospice for eight years. She then worked as a critical care nurse at Augusta Medical Center in Fishersville. In 2010, Zoe joined Home Health and Palliative Care, a unit of Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital in Nassawadox.

Dear to Zoe’s heart was her work as a volunteer nurse and translator on several medical missions to Haiti sponsored by Lexington Presbyterian Church. She loved books and birds and was a passionate gardener. Many warmly remember the culinary pleasures and camaraderie of outdoor meals with Jake and Zoe. Zoe was a loving wife to Jacob “Jake” Piersol for 23 years.

Zoe was the daughter of Bronwyn Bryans of Charlottesville and the late Peter Bryans, and sister of Mark Bryans of Atlanta, Ga., and Andrew Bryans of Cincinnati, Ohio. Zoning

The 28 zoning districts have been whittled down to 15. Where 6,800 cells had showed what could or could not be done in the county, the proposed draft cuts that by 75 percent and dramatic decreases the need for Special Use Permits (SUPs) for those who wish to build on their property or start a new business. Instead, a large number of activities would be allowed “by right.”

McSwain showed maps depicting the parts of the county that will remain in protected status, as approximately 66 percent of the land in the county is in Agricultural and or Conservation designated areas.

The draft ordinance has been added to the county’s website and is available for review prior to public information sessions that have been scheduled for Nov. 21 and 25.

A joint public hearing of the Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors has been slated for Dec. 10 to receive comments on the proposal.
Robert Tittle of Captain's Cove has been on furlough for two weeks from NASA due to the government shutdown. He envisions the hotel, stores and apartments at the Atlantic Town Center as “Boomtown in the old cow-boy days.” If they built and all the government workers go away like they do in southwest desert towns, it will be for nothing, he said. Then, Tittle added, economically disadvantaged folks will move in and prey on local retirees.

NASA’s been closed down and things seem to go on, he said. But if new residents complain about poultry smells they could want to close down plants.

Captain’s Cove folks also complained about issues they had when their sewage system was closed.

Supervisor Ron Wolff was against the development too. “You’ve done Bupkis,” Wolff said, using the Yiddish word for “nothing” as he referred to Carbaugh’s other local housing developments. Wolff contended that if there were a need for this project, other developers would be competing.

“There’s not enough who want to go through the process,” said Baumgartner of the six years of trying to gain permits and approvals.

While Orbital Sciences is here to launch their rockets, workers “come in two-week stints. They don’t live here. They don’t want to live here,” Wolff said.

The supervisor also noted that a proffer for the Bridge Hill site includes giving $10,000 per phase to the county’s Parks and Recreation Department. Yet, the previous development that never took off on the site proffered $500 per unit to the Atlantic Volunteer Fire Company. “You’ve not turned the first shovel of dirt on any of them,” Wolff said.

Steve West of Wattsville objected to the treatment plant being built on the headwaters of Mosquito Creek. “I live within a mile of that,” West said. “How long until my well goes dry and who’s going to pay for it?” he asked.

Supervisor Grayson Chesser predicted large flocks of geese at the infiltration ponds that are close to NASA’s run-way. “USDA will have to come in and gas them, I guess,” he said, adding he is concerned about saltwater intrusion.

Baumgartner said the FAA and NASA gave approval for the ponds, which will be dry.

Peter Bale, chairman of the Eastern Shore Defense Alliance, favored the development for its potential. He looks forward to his three children being able to stay in the area for future jobs. “NASA, NOAA and Navy — nowhere to support those people who come to work here.”

Bill Chandler of Onancock, a local real-estate broker, also spoke in favor. “We don’t have much industry here on the Shore,” he said. This project could help keep people who work at Wallops from living and spending in Maryland.

Ronnie Thomas of Atlantic has been fighting the development for years. He reminded the board of the 150 residents who signed a petition against it. “Anytime you can get 150 people to agree to anything, they can’t be all wrong.”

After discussion in a closed session, the supervisors voted to send a Utility Service Area Map to the planning commission for inclusion in the county’s Comprehensive Plan. A diagram included areas in and around Accomac, Tasley, Onley, Onancock and Melfa.

“The purpose of the map is to show the general areas … in which the board believes that it may offer utilities,” County Administrator Steve Miner said. “It does not speak to how these utilities will be provided.”

The supervisors also agreed the Wallops Research Park manager’s job should be full-time. Miner said duties are increasing as the project moves forward. He estimated the new salary range to be $50,000 to $55,000 annually or twice that of the part-time position.

Thornton complained about federal flood insurance costs. She said prices recently went up 25 percent and are expected to increase 10-fold. Thornton wants the county to investigate banks that are forcing people with mortgages to get insurance on the whole house, not just what they owe.

S hedding my Redskins sweatshirt before I went to town was a seminal moment for me. Let me say I think political correctness is often taken too far.

But I don’t feel I can tell people what should or should not offend them. And the controversy over the name for the football team in our nation’s capital is rooted in the ever-growing sense that the name “Redskins” offends a segment of our population.

Last April when I was at the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame, I visited the gift shop and found a sweatshirt with “Redskins” in large letters across the front, “NFL” in smaller letters above the name, and “Football” below the nickname, with the Redskins logo of an Indian at the bottom of the front.

It was NFL merchandise and quality material that was on sale for $8, reduced from $35. Knowing a bargain when I saw one, I bought two and gave one to my son, also an avid Redskins fan.

When I say I am a lifelong Redskins fan, I mean I liked them long before the Super Bowl years with Joe Gibbs. I remember such obscure players as Ralph Guglielmi, quarterback for the hapless Skins in the late 1950s, and Eddie Lebaron, a 5’7” quarterback about the same time. A few years later, Bobby Mitchell, the first African-American to play for Washington, was traded to the Skins and helped the team to be respectable.

Only when George Allen came to the Redskins and formed the Over the Hill Gang did the team begin to have any degree of success.

Of course, Gibbs elevated the team to the upper echelon of football and won three Super Bowls with three different quarterbacks.

I have always been a Redskins fan and will remain one, regardless of whether the name is changed or remains the same.

According to the owner, Dan Snyder, there is no chance the name will be changed, although a recent letter to fans states he “respects the feelings of those who are offended by the team name.”

I understand his sentiment about maintaining the tradition of a great franchise. I have been at RFK Stadium when the ground seemed to move below me as the crowd roared. I have been at FedEx Stadium when it seemed all of the 85,000 people there were singing “Hail to the Redskins,” the best fight song in the NFL.

I know and even expressed the arguments that the name “Redskin” is not offensive in any way, but is instead a badge of honor.

I have heard of a football team on an Indian reservation that uses both the name “Redskins” and the same logo used by the NFL team.

For many years I worked alongside Greg Merritt, a sports editor on the Shore for almost a quarter century. Greg was a New York Giants fan, but he is also of Indian descent.

We sometimes had discussions about the name “Redskins,” with Greg expressing the view that it is racist. I have to admit that I listened then and dismissed it as coming from a Giants fan. If he were a Redskins fan, he would understand.

I realize now it was never about partisanship, but about a word that is defined in Webster’s as “usually offensive.”

There are those who point to the Atlanta Braves, Cleveland Indians, Kansas City Chiefs and Chicago Blackhawks. But those are names that honor a group of people, although the logo of a laughing Indian for Cleveland also is considered offensive by some.

I ask myself what is the Redskins equivalent of a name for other ethnic groups, including African-Americans, Hispanics or Anglo-Saxons, like me, and would I want those names for my football team. I think not.

Several national sportswriters and broadcasters have pledged not to use the name “Redskins” in their reporting. Even Roger Godell, the commissioner of the NFL, has said it is time to listen to all parties about the name “Redskins.”

I have never been a fan of Dan Snyder. I believe he has been too meddlesome and often used the team as his personal fantasy squad, although he has relinquished control in recent years.

But I don’t believe for a minute that Snyder, who is Jewish, intends any disrespect to Indians.

However, a number of college teams have seen fit to change their names in response to objections, including the Stanford Cardinal, who were the Indians, The St. Johns Red Storm, who were the Redmen, and the Miami of Ohio Redhawks, who were the Redskins.

I agree that the rich tradition of the franchise is a strong motivating force to retain the name. But I also suspect money is another motivation. It usually is. The name “Redskins” is a longtime trademark of the team.

Of course, the argument can be made that a new name would mean sales of new merchandise. But that would probably be offset by the disenchantment of a portion of the fan base.

The basketball team in town was once known as the Bullets but are now the Washington Wizards because the former nickname could be perceived as promoting violence.

Like I said, I would root for the team if they were called the “Warriors” or the “Redhawks.” I will still root for them if they remain the Redskins.

If there were a poll of Redskins fans, I would be in the majority of those who would want the team to keep its name. But I am not sure the majority rules in this case. And it is not just about Redskins fans; it is about what is right.

One day last week when I had been doing chores around the house wearing my Redskins sweatshirt and needed to go to the hardware store, I stopped for a moment and decided to change to my Baseball Hall of Fame sweatshirt.

I am not even sure why, but the chance I might offend a single person seemed to bother me at that moment. My strong feelings for the team are being weighed against the sensibilities of a group of people, and I sense a shifting in the sand where my opinion stands on this issue.

You might see me in my Redskins sweatshirt tomorrow, but the rising din of this controversy is not going away.

And although there was a period in our history when even in newspapers players were referred to as Dagos, Italians and other ethnic designations we would not use today, that time has passed.

And maybe it has too for the name of my favorite football team.

Arcadia Wins Fourth Straight with 39-6 Win Over Jackets

Arcadia won its fourth consecutive game with a 39-6 win over Northampton Friday night.

Despite the convincing score, the Firebirds knew they were in a game and took a 16-0 lead with only 1:54 remaining in the first half.

“I give that team a lot of credit,” said Arcadia coach Tony Nock. “They played hard and gave us a good game. They might not have won a game, but they came out and battled.”

Northampton engineered a good drive in the first quarter with the aid of a 12-yard pass from Dyshawn Beckett to Keondre Ames, but Arcadia’s Tyler Major stopped the drive with an interception. Josh Sanns then hit Eric Grinnage for 22 yards for a Firebird touchdown late in the first quarter.

Northampton stiffened and held Arcadia out of the end zone until late in the first half. Tyler Major burst through the line for a 45-yard run to the Jacket 8-yard line, then John Wright scampered for a score on the next play to give the Firebirds a 16-0 lead going into the locker room at halftime.

Midway through the third quarter, Sanns found Taylor Major in the end zone on a 24-yard scoring strike. Sanns scored the 2-point conversation for a 24-0 Arcadia lead.

Northampton responded with its best drive of the night as Darius Townsend took a short pass in the flat from Beckett and streaked to the Arcadia 3-yard line, where Beckett then scored up the middle to put the Jackets on the scoreboard.

Sanns then hit Taylor Major with another touchdown pass of 18 yards in the corner of the end zone before Jamaz Clark finished the scoring with a 49-yard dash in the fourth quarter. Sanns kicked the extra point.

Tyler Major led the Firebird rushing attack with 91 yards on only seven carries. Wright picked up 16 yards on 10 carries. Contrel Brown had 45 yards on nine carries from his fullback position. Clark had 59 yards on three carries. Arcadia amassed 332 yards on the ground.

Sanns only completed three passes, but all were for scores on a 3-for-12 night for 76 yards.

Tyler Major led the Firebird defense with seven tackles, while Brown, Wright, and Taylor Major had five each. Sanns and Clark had four.

Nock said Rivera punted well for the Firebirds.

In addition to the Taylor Major interception, Peter Rivera also had a pick. Clark recovered a fumble.

For Northampton, Beckett completed four passes for 68 yards. Coach David Farlow said Darius Townsend, Daniel Jean and Hakeem Berry had a strong night running the ball. “As usual, Chris Lewis, Austin Brady, Jake Smith and Keondre Ames led our defense that just plays their hearts out,” said Farlow.

“We played probably our most complete game tonight but still left a lot of mistakes on the field. We are young, working to improve and are seeing the results,” added Farlow.

Arcadia, 4-2, hosts Washington, 1-5, tonight for its Homecoming in a 7 p.m. start.

Nock said his Firebirds need to gear up for a four-game season-ending stretch that brings a rematch with Nandua next week on the road before traveling to Kent County and then ending at home with Northampton.

“We need to get all parts of our game working so we can finish strong,” said Nock. “We’ve got the opportunity in front of us to have a really good season. We just need to stay focused on each team we play.”

Broadwater Hosts Northampton for Homecoming

The Vikings host Northampton tomorrow at 1 p.m. for Homecoming.

Broadwater is currently ranked second in the Virginia Independent Schools Athletic Association for Division 4 schools. Blessed Sacrament-Huguenot, the defending four-time state champion, is ranked number one.

The two teams met last season in the state title game. The higher ranked team after the semi-finals on Nov. 9 will host the state championship game on Nov. 16.

Northampton will be seeking its first win at 0-7.
Nandua erupted for 21 points in the first quarter en route to a 42-22 win over Snow Hill Friday night as Tyreim Blake threw for two touchdowns and ran for another in gaining 115 yards on the ground.

“It’s always nice to win at Homecoming,” said Nandua coach Chris Miles. “But it’s also good that the players have rallied after a four-game losing streak. They realized the gravity of the situation and are now playing closer to the potential that this team has.”

Anthony Smith scored two touchdowns, including an 80-yard kickoff return and a 26-yard run on a counter.

Blake had touchdown passes of 46 yards to Trevon Pitt and 25 yards to David Wright.

Montrae Armstrong opened the scoring with a 1-yard run to give Nandua its first lead.

Blake was 5-of-10 passing for 118 yards, in addition to leading the rushing attack with 115 yards with a touchdown run on three yards. Armstrong added 58 yards on seven carries.

On defense, Jamar Jones and Keshawn Drummond each had a team-leading 13 tackles, while Mahagee Wise, Will Farlow and Montrae Armstrong added 11 each. Trevor Wessells contributed 10, with Blake getting nine from his linebacker position.

Wright was 6-of-6 on extra points.

In addition to Smith’s 80-yard return of a kickoff for a touchdown, Jakorah Parker had a 68-yard return to set up a short scoring drive.

Miles said his team was still committing too many penalties, with 10 for 100 yards against the winless Snow Hill team.

Nandua traveled to Colonel Richardson last night in a game played after Post deadlines. Next Friday, the Warriors host Arcadia in a key Shore District game. The Firebirds won the first matchup.

Nandua Ends District Season Unbeaten with Sweep

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

Nandua defeated Northampton in three sets Monday night to conclude an undefeated 9-0 district season in volleyball.

After barely edging Northampton in five sets in two previous matches, Nandua swept games by 25-21, 25-14 and 26-24 scores Monday.

Both Nandua and Northampton hosted opening-round Shore District tournament games last night, with the Lady Warriors taking on fourth-place Chincoteague and the Lady Jackets playing third-place Arcadia in semifinals action. The winners will meet Monday at the gym of the higher seeded team.

Tsara Nock was honored as the lone senior on the team on Nandua’s Senior Night. Balanced play from the Warriors, with strong play from Nock, Sarah Puchalski, Amanda Baylis, Caroline Harvie, Carington Hinton-France and Ashley Fisher helped the Lady Warriors earn the sweep.

For Northampton, Bobbi Dunton and Kennedy Webb had two aces, with Briana Williams getting four kills and Whitney Metz adding three kills.

Shana Harrison and Olivia Boswell had five aces each to lead the team, while Williams and Taylor Webb added four each.

Metz and Harrison were the team leaders in kills with seven; Williams and T. Webb each had five.

Northampton coach Cathy Doughty said, “This was Senior Night for us, and I was very pleased with the performance from each of them. Shana Harrison had a strong performance both at the net and from the service line. Whitney Metz had a hot hitting hand and put in a fantastic effort. Olivia Boswell had a solid night from the service line, and Kaylyn Wright put in a strong display of grit, finally returning to us from the injured list.”

Broadwater Wins Pair in Volleyball

Broadwater’s volleyball team defeated Alliance Christian Academy 3-0 with 25-12, 25-11 and 25-10 wins Thursday night at home.

The Lady Vikings were led by Kathleen Kraft with 11 kills. Arie Olivetto and Rachel Fox had four each. Olivetto had eight aces, with Savana Davis adding six.

Jenna Hare had two digs and Davis had 18 assists to lead the team in those departments.

Outen Wins Speckled Trout Tournament

In fishing news, puppy drum are “storming the beach at Kiptopeke with reports of catching and casting until you can’t cast anymore,” said Chris Snook of Chris’ Bait and Tackle.

The big question, according to Ron Greaser at Don’s Tackle Shop, is “Has this coastal storm run the redfish out of the inlets with the strong high tidal surges? Redfish had covered up the marsh grasses and oyster bars from Gargatha south to Oyster. Casting Mirrorlures, plastics and topwater baits has produced the best redfish angling in years.”

On the bayside, fair numbers of speckled trout started to show prior to last week’s coastal storm.

Rockfish are still in the creeks, but you will have to wade through a number of throwbacks before getting 18-inch plus fish. Cast topwater plugs or cast plastics to marsh points and off sandbars to find the stripers.

Bruins Remain Unbeaten in Street Hockey Action

The Bayside Conference-leading Bruins notched overtime wins over the Blues and Red Wings of the Seaside Conference in the Eastern Shore Street Hockey League, as they remain the only team in the league still without a loss. The Blues moved into sole possession of first place in the Seaside Conference with three big points in the weekend series.

Sabres 5, Hurricanes 2
Zach Mills, Derek Hail, Phil Luettgen and Dustin Palo all scored for the Sabres in the win, with Colton Moyer and Coach Nathan Metzger earning assists. Jesse West and Chris Love netted the goals for the Canes.

Bruins 5, Blues 4
Scott Millikin and Coach Donnie Williams Jr. scored the overtime markers to notch the win for the Blues. T.R. Hoyt and Robert Haeusser added regulation goals for the Bruins on an assist by Matt Ayers. Scoring for the Blues in the overtime loss were Bryan Applegate, Henry Chew and Steve Sharo.

Blackhawks 4, Hurricanes 3

Capitals 4, Coyotes 2
Hannah Mills, Zach Underwood and Coach Pat Luckenback got the goals for the Caps in the win, with Robbie Parker and Connie Stephano getting assists. Guy Shover netted both Coyote goals in the loss.

Bruins 4, Red Wings 3
For the second time, the Bruins notched a clutch overtime win on a goal by T.R Hoyt. Hoyt also scored in regulation, along with two goals by Coach Donnie Williams Jr. in the Blues win. Josh Hail led the Wings in the loss with a hat trick.

Blackhawks 3, Capitals 2

Blues 7, Sabres 5
Blues newcomers Tim Edwards and Ben Wagner led in the win, with Edwards earning a hat trick and Wagner getting three points. Henry Chew and Bryan Applegate added goals for the Blues on assists from James Haley and Coach Mark Stapleton. Zach Mills scored three goals for the Sabres in the loss, with Michael Garbacz and Nate Metzger also scoring.

Red Wings 5, Coyotes 1
Lane Spangler and Josh Hail netted a pair of goals to lead the Wings in the win, with Coach Brandon Stapleton adding a goal on assists from Poncho Loredo and Wes Stapleton. Cody Williams got the lone goal for the Coyotes.

The ESSHL will be in action on Sunday, Oct. 20, starting at 1 p.m. at the Parksley Town Park. Go to the league’s website at esshl.org for the latest.

WANTED: People to Know
The Church is compromising negative alternatives to Halloween, what I call Candy Harvest/Ween. For they let the children eat all the candy they can. The word Cain means GET. Let’s fill the children with the good words. Like John 10:27, “My sheep hear my voice, To get a child saved, the Rod of the word”, Romans 10:17. Faith commeth by hearing...not a mouth full of Bubble Gum. When that sugar kicks in. U have A wild Child. Not A Holy Child. When the sugar wears off, NOW WHAT?? I’m angered! You’re not teaching the word, 3 out of 20 I found out about children: Proverbs 22:6 “Train a child in the way he should go...” Ephesians 6:1-4 “Children, obey your parents...” Deuteronomy 11:19. Teach them to your children...All commandments. CUT & GIVE TO YOUR MINISTERS.

Your Servant, Post Angel.

Dear Editor:

I am a law-abiding citizen, a taxpayer, and Army veteran with four years of honorable service, a retired educator and a farmer. I am not allowed to buy guns in Virginia.

Because I refuse to obtain a photo ID, I am being treated like a naughty child and having my privileges withheld. The problem is that gun ownership is a RIGHT, not a privilege. In my opinion, the only reason for photo IDs is to gain even more control over the people.

My letters and emails to Sen. Ralph Northam and Gov. Bob McDonnell go unanswered. I still pay my taxes and I feel that I have been reduced to slavery. I regard these arrogant politicians who are taking away my rights as my enemies. In my opinion, Ralph Northam can’t be bothered by any problems a citizen such as myself has with an overbearing government and I shudder to think of him as lieutenant governor. If elected to the higher office, he could then be rude and disrespectful to even more constituents, veterans and taxpayers. His entire agenda seems to pander to a certain group, with no care as to the majority of his constituents or such items as the economy, jobs and reducing taxes.

Let’s face it, Folks. Our leaders are bent on making all our former rights into privileges; take, for example, the Salt Water Fishing License.

Dear Editor:

My daughter, Cindy (Smith) King, was diagnosed with polio at the age of 3½ months. In her early years, she used braces and crutches and was later placed in a wheelchair.

A 1972 graduate of Parksley High School, she went to the treatment center in Fishersville, Va., where she met Lloyd King, whom she married. She is the mother of one son and grandmother of two.

Despite now living alone and being confined to a wheelchair, Cindy cooks, bakes, custom-crochets items for sale, teaches Sunday school and holds prayer meetings in her home.

On March 28, she suffered a knee injury and underwent three months of rehabilitation. Cindy, who is also the daughter of Bill Smith of Salisbury, Md., is back home now.

I want to express my pride in my daughter for her determination and all of her accomplishments. I am eternally grateful to the members of her church, Church Alive International, as well as her neighbors and friends for their love and support.

Cindy is a perfect example of courage and perseverance, inspiring us all that we don’t have to be “limited by our limitations.”

Judith Shaw, Hallwood

Recently I was yearning for the perfect treat and found an unexpected one. My thought was dessert. Instead I got the circa 1970s “Welcome to the Eastern Shore” pamphlet that was stuck between the browned pages of my mother’s favorite old cookbook.

It managed to stay there undetected, its front and backboards missing and the binder holding on for dear life.

Reading through the eight pages of “information for new residents” sure was a memory booster. My family moved to Painter in 1968, so at first I automatically assumed the publication’s information dated back to that time. Wrong. I can only guess that there wasn’t a booklet 45 years ago and that Mom grabbed one up when it came out about a decade later.

It was back in the day when we still had our vehicles inspected every six months. UGH. I drove a bomb and went through a major panic waiting for something wrong to be detected. Accomack County was also “dry” in the ’70s. “Any alcohol over 20 percent must be purchased at a state A.B.C. store,” the pamphlet states.

The employment office was still on Main Street in Exmore, where a funeral home now conducts business.

Folks didn’t call 911 in those days for assistance. Instead they dialed the sheriff’s departments in the respective counties. State Police officers were dispatched from the Melfa barracks.

The “new modern hospital in Nas-sawadox” was called Northampton-Accomack Memorial (NAM) Hospital. Accomack supervisors still met on the third Wednesday of the month, but the session started in the morning. There was a phone number one could call to get the correct time. Now that number just rings and rings and rings.

There was only one store at Four Corner Plaza in 1968 and that was Acme Market. Peebles was in downtown Exmore, which was a bustling place to be on a Saturday. Believe it or not, it was a chore to find a parking space there at times.

There was no Nandua High or Middle School. Central — my alma mater and the school left to abandonment on what is now called Lankford Highway in Painter — and Onancock were rivals. The latter team’s mascot, the Blue Devil, was burned at the stake before the homecoming game, which was always on Thanksgiving night. And the football players chose their girlfriends to be on the cheerleading squad.

Teenagers at Central put a now nearly 60-year-old man’s pants up the flagpole. It was part of the high-school initiation, which seemed to have thankfully stopped around 1972. I was a freshman that year.

There are so many other things I remember. There was no need to travel far to get every little thing one needed. Bundick’s Variety Store in Painter had it all. I wore out many a pair of shoes from that place. My first vanilla Coke was bought at Gladden’s Drug Store just down the block from the hide-n-go-seek tree in the front yard of our house on Main Street. The glorious porch was closed in on the place and not long after, the tree was cut down. That happened after we moved from the rental so the owners could call it “home.”

The speed limit on the highway was 60 miles per hour, including in Onley and Exmore, where the current limit is 45. A large farm was located where my husband and I live on the bayside of Painter.

And that very important woman in my life, Mom, was feeding us bologna and mayonnaise sandwiches, because she read an article about how full of protein the lunch was.
