Accomack Budget Does Not Raise Taxes

By Linda Cicoira

Balanced budgets and no real-estate or personal-property tax-rate increases, that’s what election years are made of.

In an 8-1 vote Tuesday, Accomack supervisors passed a $53.2 million fiscal 2015-16 county budget. Only Supervisor Wanda Thornton voted against the plan and only she has announced she won’t seek re-election in November.

Just after deadline last week, during a joint meeting with the School Board, the supervisors voted to 4-3 to approve a seven-year phase-out of a controversial school retirement incentive. That program allows school workers with 30 years of service in Virginia, 15 of which must (Continued on Page 5)

Man Charged With Hit and Run Fatality

By Linda Cicoira

An Accomack County man was found dead Tuesday morning on the median of Lankford Highway in front of Perdue Foods about five hours after a bus allegedly struck him.

State Police Sgt. Michelle Anaya identified the victim as Brice Sauver, 66, who lived less than a mile away at Dreamland #1.

Anaya said that around 3 a.m. Tuesday, a southbound 2001 Vanhool Charter Bus struck a man attempting to cross Lankford Highway.

“The driver, Jihua Chen, stopped the vehicle and made a quick search around the immediate area of the bus before leaving the scene,” Anaya reported. “Leads were obtained and the driver and vehicle were located.”

Chen, 36, of Flushing, N.Y., was brought back to Accomack County and charged with hit and run, the sergeant said, adding that Alcohol was not a factor. Secured bond was set at $15,000.

The bus is owned by United Bus & Travel, Inc. of Fresh Meadows, N.Y.

Northampton Budget Would Raise Taxes, Cut School Spending

By Ron West

The Northampton Board of Supervisors conducted a public hearing Tuesday on the proposed tax rate to fund the FY 2016 budget.

Nearly a dozen of the 100 residents in attendance voiced their opinions on what and where funds should be cut or added. The vast majority of those in attendance urged the supervisors to allocate more funds for the school system for the coming year.

County Administrator Katie Nunez opened the session by presenting the $41.1 million budget proposal, including the tax increases that would be needed to fund it — raising the real-estate tax rate from 67 cents to 70 cents per $100 assessed value and increasing the rate from $3.85 to $3.90 per hundred for personal property.

While no department would receive all the funding it requested, the school system would face an especially steep cut. Educator Justin Wheeler gave an impassioned plea to restore funding for the schools. “The kids will be the future of the county. Do you blame people for leaving the county?”

School Board member Jo Ann Molera noted that the population boom that some citizens worried would over-burden the county has never occurred. She contended that people would want to live in the county if there were good, well-maintained schools. “Give the kids an education that makes them want to be long-term learners,” Molera said. “They will be people who can pay taxes and who will want to send their kids to our schools and not end up filling our jail.”

A black cloud seemed to prevail at last week’s session of the Northampton County School Board as members considered the likelihood that the Board of Supervisors will follow through with deep spending cuts recommended earlier in the month.

Superintendent Eddie Lawrence and Finance Director Brook Thomas presented a bleak outlook for the school system given the limitations of the supervisors’ proposed FY 2016 budget. Lawrence noted that in 2008, the county provided local funding for the schools of $8.4 million. Five years later that amount had decreased by over $400,000 to $8 million. The current FY 2016 of $8.5 million, while roughly the same as the 2008 spending package, actually provides less about $1.2 million less when inflation is figured in.

Thomas listed the items that are expected to be lost from the coming school term, including the National Defense Cadet Corps, fees for duel enrollment at the community college, the high school’s tennis and golf teams, one of the school buses planned to be purchased, field trips, travel for some away games, additional pre-kindergarten classes, and teacher salary raises.

Following the budget discussion, Northampton educator Heather Marsh presented recommended changing the grade scale for students in the county from the “7-point” grade scale to a “10-point” scale. The difference of three points would change letter grades, which are used as the basis for the grade point average that is a major factor considered by college admission officers.

Marsh noted that the community college, as well as Accomack County and Broadwater Academy already use the 10-point scale.

Supporting Marsh’s recommendation, parent Kathleen Curry pointed out that retaining the old 7-point scale penalizes students in Northampton County. Under the current plan, it takes a 94 to equal an “A” while under the proposed 10-point scale, a 90 would equal an “A.” The 10-point scale would mean that a 60 would now equate to a “D,” rather than the 75 that is currently needed to receive a passing mark.

The Virginia Department of Education does not mandate what grade scale a school system is required to use.

School Board member Mickey Merritt commented that he does not have an issue with the 10-point scale but he does not believe a grade of 60 should be considered a passing mark. The board agreed to take the recommendation under advisement for additional discussion at its work session in April.
Accomack County Presents Onancock With Sewage Ultimatum

By Linda Cicoira

One small step for Onancock or one giant leap for Accomack, that’s what it’s coming down to.

County officials blamed Onancock Town Council Tuesday night for keeping quiet and not voting on the issue of sewage. They said no action from the town cast Accomack leaders as the “bad guys,” despite their efforts to come to an agreement on sewage disposal.

So county supervisors have given the town an ultimatum: take one of the several options the county has offered to solve the sewage debate or come up with another. But do it by May 1 or risk Accomack town an ultimatum: take one of the severest options the county has offered to solve the sewage debate or come up with another.

According to county documents, the sewage plant last month treated 23,187 gallons per day.”

Tuesday, County Attorney Mark Taylor advised the supervisors to move forward. “Each locality speaks through its governing body,” he said. “I know you people; if the shoe was on the other foot, you would have called a special meeting. You would have done something. The town gave you no such courtesy. … Don’t back down from them simply because their negotiating process is silence.”

“We need to be solid,” said Supervisor Donald Hart. “We are all here for the County of Accomack … I don’t like how I feel we’re being treated. Why isn’t Onancock … coming up with their own idea and sending it over here?”

“Yes, the rates would be a little bit higher” with a new plant, “but where’s the other team? Not even on the field. … Accomack County is going to get caught and we’re not going to have a choice … let them say ‘yes’ or ‘no.’ … I hope the press and the political parties will go put some pressure on them.”

Onancock Councilman Josh Bundick took a step that some county officials said kept them from voting for a new sewage plant last month. At a county session, Bundick said, “I’m simply here on behalf of the town to offer an olive branch.” He said there have been “breakdowns in communication … not clear why those occurred.” Apologizing if it was his fault, he said it is “no secret the town needs the user base from the county … for solvency. We don’t need new infrastructure. We are ready. Let’s do this.”

According to county documents, Onancock proposed in November to charge the county $15.47 per 1,000 gallons for the first 600,000 gallons treated each month, $13.50 per 1,000 gallons for 600,001 to 1,200,000 gallons. Taylor said the county uses about 800,000 gallons per month.

At their meeting in December, the supervisors agreed to tell Onancock they would accept the rates if the town replied within 30 days with a financial plan. But the answer in January did not include such a plan.

At the crux of the matter is Onancock’s annual $200,000 to $300,000 deficit. Onancock hopes to get about $112,000 a year from the new hospital and $40,000 to $60,000 for pump-and-haul sewage services.

Supervisor Wanda Thornton later predicted a new county sewage plant with land discharge would eventually take in Onancock’s treated sewage that had nowhere else to go as the result of regulations.

The board unanimously agreed to send a letter to the town, asking it to “explain to us how they are going to close the deficit. We need to know that. We are going to be paying it if we don’t.”
Murder Case Sent to Grand Jury

Probable cause was found Monday in Accomack General District Court to certify first-degree murder and related firearms charges against Marcus Mitchell Davis, 28, of Nocks Landing Road in Atlantic to a county grand jury in the death of Jacques DuVual Fauntleroy last year.

Judge Gordon Vincent said there wasn’t enough evidence to also certify a robbery charge, but noted that Assistant Commonwealth’s Attorney Matthew Brenner “makes a strong argument” regarding “the high level of suspicion. ... There is no indication other than the rumors that he (Fauntleroy, 35, of Atlantic) had the money or the drugs. ... I don’t feel that is enough to certify.”

Two witnesses testified that they saw the defendant with a “wad” of money and crack cocaine late Sept. 17.

Davis told police that any number of people could have killed Fauntleroy since the victim was a drug dealer who liked to flaunt his money. He admitted to Accomack Deputy Vincent Lee that he “did get into a verbal altercation with victim. ... Davis said he didn’t have any money (and) asked ... for $10. Victim would not give him any money and told him to get his own money.”

Lee said Davis told him that Fauntleroy was “a big time drug dealer. He’s got rims on his car because he’s a show off type. I would never do nothing for him for no five or ten dollars. Anyone could have popped him.”

The officer said he was involved in a search of Davis’ grandfather’s house where shoes splattered with blood were confiscated. No gun, money or drugs was found.

Blunts — hollowed-out cigars filled with marijuana — and loose change were found at the victim’s house the day after his body was found on the floor of a dark bedroom.

A count of brandishing a firearm also was dismissed since a deaf witness who spoke through two interpreters could not say for sure if Davis had a gun when he saw the defendant kick down the victim’s front door.

The names of the witnesses who testified in the case are being withheld by the Eastern Shore Post at the request of Brenner, who said they fear for their lives.

Norfolk defense lawyer James Broccoletti also argued the deaf witness did not mention seeing the flash of a bullet ejecting from a firearm. The witness was adamant Davis was wearing a white T-shirt that night. Another witness testified about seeing a man wearing a white T-shirt coming from the victim’s house just after shots were fired.

Fauntleroy died from gunshot wounds to the torso, according to the medical examiner’s office. The murder weapon, a 45-caliber handgun, was not recovered.

Investigator Chuck McPherson of the Accomack County Sheriff’s Office said the door to Fauntleroy’s house on Gretta Road was barely hanging on when police were called to the site.

Another door inside also was kicked in. A casing was found near the front door and in the bedroom with the body were 10 more casings, several bullets, blood and holes in the floor. All the casings and bullets were the same caliber, indicating that only one person was involved in the killing, according to testimony.

The grand jury will meet April 6 to decide whether to indict Davis, who is being held in Accomack Jail without bond.

Accomack Circuit Court

A Wattsville man was sentenced last week in Accomack Circuit Court to more than 10 years in prison for drug offenses.

Billy Deedion Harmon, 30, of Hill Top Drive was sentenced for distributing cocaine on Oct. 9, 2012, to five years, with all but eight months suspended; for distributing heroin on Nov. 6, 2012, to five years, with all but nine months suspended; and 30 days for possession of marijuana on Dec. 4, 2012. charge of distributing cocaine on Nov. 6, 2012, was not prosecuted.

Harmon was put on supervised probation for three years. He was remanded to jail.

In another case, William Shertenlief, 51, of Belinda Lane in Sanford pleaded guilty to manufacturing about 13.6 ounces of marijuana on May 20, 2014. Shertenlief was allowed to remain free on $5,000 unsecured bond until a presentence report is completed.

Keith Thomas Lilliston Jr., 25, of Nelsonia Road in Nelsonia was sentenced for burglary to five years, with all but 60 days suspended, and 30 days for assault and battery of a family member. He was ordered to take anger management classes. Lilliston was remanded to jail.

Accomack District Court

A Hallwood man was charged this week with possession of cocaine, according to records filed in Accomack General District Court.

William Thomas Wise Jr., 40, of Dutch's Court is accused of the March 28 crime. Secured bond was set at $1,500. Sgt. C.S. Wade of Eastern Shore Drug Task Force investigated the case.

Wolff, Lewis and Thornton wanted the incentive to be discontinued immediately.

“You want to penalize them now because they stayed?” Crockett said of the school workers. “A new plan has been proposed. ... Let's not criticize those who have experience. ... We need to be careful with the message,” Crockett added.

Meanwhile, some employees of other county departments were disgruntled that they were not included in the incentive. “What's good for the goose, is good for the gander,” 30-year veteran Sheila Savage-West said.

Thornton tried to bring hope to those county employees. She wanted to spend $130,000 for half their health-insurance costs to compensate for the school plan. She said the funds could come from possible surplus funds left at the end of the current fiscal year.

“I just think it’s unfair that we can give the school employees early retirement for seven years, but not give our employees anything,” Thornton said.

Hart noted that the fund balance would not be known until around September. He motioned that the issue be tabled until then or sooner if more information becomes available. Only Thornton and Lewis opposed that action.

Superintendent Eddie Lawrence told the supervisors that unless they put funds back into the budget, the schools will lose a number of programs. (See story on Page 2.)

Ken Dufty of Wardtown spoke in support of funding the school program. “The schools will be the economic engine that funds our county.” In addition, Dufty urged funding for two staff members that had previously been cut from the county’s EMS Department as well as adding equipment requested for the county’s solid waste facility in Eastville. “We need to use some of the fund balance to help meet these needs,” he said.

According to previous board discussions, the county’s reserve balance is currently in excess of $8 million, about twice what is recommended by the state. Parks and Recreation Director Laura Jenrette spoke of the need to maintain funding to keep the gym at the former middle school in operation for an evening basketball program that serves up to 1,000 participants annually.

Yvonne Bagwell presented a list of residents she had contacted who are opposed to raising the tax rate. “Our county’s support of funding the school program. Dunham, an attorney, urged the supervisors to be creative with regards to funding $28,000 to paint the interior of the 8-year-old courthouse. “Why can’t we use inmates to paint at the courthouse? We have qualified carpenters and teachers in the county who could do some of the things we need done.” Dunham urged the supervisors to fund what the schools requested.

Former Supervisor Spencer Murray said the projected cost of $1.2 million to over $5 million to renovate the former middle school is unacceptable. “Why spend millions on a building without students, spend $100,000 a year for utilities for it, and possibly another $600,000 on it for repayment to the USDA (U.S. Department of Agriculture) when the county needs money to replace the high school. We don’t need another county complex. We have too much county property now. We don’t need to put the County’s Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Department in the former middle school.”

Dr. William Marshall, radiologist with Peninsula Radiological Associates (PRA), has joined Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital.

He serves as the new radiology medical director for the hospital and is board-certified by the American Board of Radiology. Dr. Marshall and has been in practice for 16 years. A magna cum laude graduate of Howard University, he earned his medical degree from George Washington University Medical School. He completed his internship at William Beaumont Army Medical Center and then completed a residency in diagnostic radiology at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. He also completed a fellowship in musculoskeletal radiology at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. Marshall served in the U.S. Army from 1983-94 and received numerous awards, including the Army Achievement Medal, Army Commendation Medal and a Meritorious Service Medal.

With the addition of its partnership with Riverside Shore Memorial, PRA provides radiology services to all Riverside hospitals. This partnership with PRA allows Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital to bring an increased level of value, service and quality of care to patients. While Riverside Shore Memorial has provided a wide range of diagnostic imaging procedures, including MRI, CT, X-Rays, Ultrasound, SPECT nuclear medicine, bone density screenings, fluoroscopy and sentinel lymph node biopsy, Dr. Marshall brings the additional service of ultrasound-guided biopsy of breast masses.

If Dr. Marshall is not available or the patient’s need is outside his area of expertise, his PRA colleagues can access images via secured computers and can read the image.

“I am so pleased to join a team that is already so dedicated to local access and to updated digital imaging technology,” said Dr. Marshall. “Most diagnostic images can be done right here on the Shore because Riverside Shore Memorial offers MRIs, X-rays, fluoroscopy, and ultrasounds with biopsy capability close to home.”

In his spare time, Dr. Marshall enjoys running, reading and cooking, as well as teaching. He lives in Virginia Beach, but said he loves working on the Shore because of the wonderful people and pace of life.

Twin power reigns at Northampton High School, where three sets of identical twins make significant contributions to a number of girls’ varsity athletic teams.

Those twosomes include Taylor and Kennedy Webb, Erica and Angela Head and Alex and Hayley Marshall.

The day before I interviewed the twins, Taylor Webb scored three goals and Erica Head added a pair to lead the Jacket girls’ soccer team to a 6-0 win. Kennedy Webb drew praise in that same game from her coach for the way she controlled the ball at midfield and distributed it to the forwards.

The Webb twins, now juniors, have been starters and team leaders for the Northampton volleyball and soccer teams since they were freshmen. Angela Head joins the Webbs as a starter on the volleyball team. Erica is a starter on the soccer squad. Both of the Heads, also juniors, see significant minutes on the basketball team. Angela is on the tennis team, last year joining her sister Sarah, two years older and now a freshman at Virginia Tech, to form the number one doubles team for the Jackets. She is the number one player for the team this year.

Last fall, Erica Head was an all-conference midfielder on the field hockey team. Then, with little practice, she won the girls’ cross country district race, placed 11th in the region and was in the top 30 in the state.

The Marshall twins, only freshmen, made All-District in cross country and also captured conference honors in field hockey.

With the Marshalls returning for three more years of competition and the Webb and Head twins coming back for their senior year, the coaches of girls’ sports at Northampton are thankful they are often seeing double at practice.

In addition to excelling in athletics, these twins set the pace in academics as well.

“They are all outstanding students,” said Dr. Rich Wilfong, athletic director at Northampton. “Each one is at or near the top of her class.”

Oddly enough, the twosome who has the most definitive answer on where they wish to attend college is the Marshalls, just over three years from graduation.

“I want to go to Oxford because I have always been interested in Great Britain,” said Hayley.

Alex added, “I’ve had my heart set on the University of Virginia since I was a little girl.”

Both the Webbs and Heads said they are still making up their mind on college choices. Neither set of twins is sure they will attend college together either.

“We will look at colleges, and if it happens we want to go to the same place, we will. But it’s not something we are set on doing,” said Erica.

The Webbs both hope to play volleyball in college. In addition to being named the top defensive player (Taylor) and top offensive player (Kennedy) on the Shore, with both copping All-Region honors, they travel many weekends and during the summer to compete in travel volleyball tournaments, including two-person formats where they form a team.

And though they have been teammates since playing T-ball at the age of 5, they could see going to different colleges but have not ruled out being teammates beyond high school either.

One thing they all agree on is there is a special chemistry or bond between twins. “We have played together so much we seem to always know what the other one is going to do,” said Taylor.

Erica agreed, “On the basketball court we have a way of finding each other when we pass the ball.”

She even notices it among the Marshall twins. “In field hockey we often pair up one-on-one in practice, and usually Alex and Hayley go against each other. They look like they can keep it going all day.”

Erica also pointed out that each set of twins is a mirror image of each other, meaning one is left handed and the other is right handed.

Mike Myers, principal at Northampton, said the twins make contributions to the school in more ways than athletics. “They are all great kids, exactly what you want in student athletes. I wish we could clone them,” he said, not overlooking the fact that in a sense they already are.

According to the Heads, they discovered the

Chincoteague Takes Two From Broadwater

Chincoteague swept a double header at home over Broadwater on a day more suited for football last Saturday, winning 9-0 in the opener and holding on for an 8-7 victory in the nightcap.

Trey Fisher pitched five scoreless innings as the Ponies scored four in the first inning, added a single run in the second and four more in the third frame. Fisher struck out eight, allowed two hits and gave up two walks.

Daniel Rhode and Casey Wescoat had the two Viking hits.

Ponies Win Finale

Chincoteague used a six-run second inning to take an 8-7 decision, aided by six Broadwater errors in the finale.

Trevor Reed earned the win, with Trey Fisher coming on to get the save after winning the first game of the double header.

Fisher also had two RBIs with two singles. Reed helped his cause with a pair of singles. Collin Derrickson and Joe Thornton each had a single. Dustin Holloway had a stolen base.

For Broadwater, Ben Farlow had three RBIs with two hits. Major Morgan had an RBI single, and Thomas Scott had one of the Vikings’ four hits. Cortland Bunc scored two runs and had an RBI walk.

Farlow, Morgan and Jared Bell shared the pitching duties.

BA Whips Williamsburg Christian

Broadwater defeated Williamsburg Christian 12-3 Monday as Justin Shaffer and Austin Murphy combined for five scoreless innings and Ben Farlow knocked in three runs and had two hits, including a home run and a double.

Major Morgan had two hits, Cortland Bunc had an RBI and John Gordon and Daniel Rhode each had a hit.

The Vikings scored three runs in each of the first three innings.

Broadwater lost a 7-1 decision to Atlantic Shores Tuesday at Ballard Field in Exmore.

Ben Farlow started for the Vikings and pitched 4 2/3 innings, striking out six while taking the loss. Austin Murphy pitched the final 2 1/3 innings, allowing no runs.

Cortland Bunc had the lone Broadwater hit against a tough pair of Shore pitchers. Justin Shaffner scored the Viking run by walking and stealing second and third before reaching home on a Seahawk error on a sacrifice bunt.

Jacket Soccer Falls

The Northampton boys soccer team lost 2-1 to Washington & Lee Monday. Jesus Maldonado scored the Jacket goal.

Hunter Taylor Smacks First Collegiate Homer

Nandua graduate Hunter Taylor hit his first collegiate home run Sunday in a South Carolina 8-5 win over Georgia.

The freshman Gamecock catcher was 2 for 3 and had a pair of RBIs. His home run broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning.

“When I hit it, I felt like it had a pretty good chance to clear the fence. It felt awesome,” said Taylor following the game.

Taylor has started 16 of the 28 South Carolina games this season and is hitting .270.

At Nandua last season, the 5-11, 210 pounder hit .554 with 12 homers and 39 RBIs while being named the 2A Virginia Player of the Year and was rated the No. 6 best high-school prospect in Virginia by Baseball America.
Broadwater, Chincoteague Split Frosty Pair

Broadwater and Chincoteague split a double header Saturday that was moved from the high-school field to a nearby Little League complex due to high winds and low temperatures buffeting the island.

Broadwater won the opener 8-1 as Natavia Wharton held the Ponies to a single run while striking out three.

The Lady Vikings were led at the plate by Parker Murphy with a bases-loaded triple, and singles by Elizabeth Floyd, Anna Sexauer and Olivia Kellam. Palmer Smith and Wharton had RBIs.

Natavia Wharton pitched the first 4 1/3 innings of work. Her decision. Trailing by five going into the sixth inning, Broadwater scored three runs to take the lead. Taylor Nadeau had three hits and three RBIs, including the game winner. In the eighth, Michaela Lewis was 4-for-6, including a double. Sarah Weber was 3-for-4 with two RBIs. Makayla Wilson was 3-for-3, and Cassie Nadeau had a 3-run double in the fourth.

“We were resilient today. I am proud of my team for fighting to the end to pull out a victory,” said Northampton coach Devin Allen.

For Broadwater, Anna Sexauer had a three-run homer that cleared the fence, Elizabeth Floyd had two doubles, Olivia Kellam had two hits, Parker Murphy had a triple and RBI, and Palmer Smith and Heather Custis each had a single. Greta Bunce had two hits and stole three bases.

Murphy took the loss on the mound.

Ponies 15, Vikings 9

In the second game, the Lady Ponies’ 11-run fifth inning led them to a 15-9 decision. Trailering by five going into the final inning, the Ponies used a two-run homer by Kristin Fox, who had four RBIs in the game, to take the lead. Ronney Malone was 2 for 4 with three runs scored, Madison Hodgins was 2 for 4 with two runs scored, and Nicole Howard was 2 for 3 and scored two runs.

Emily Haugh, who struck out eight in the first game, came on to get the save in the nightcap after Matty Tindall started and Hudgins relieved.

“Before that last inning, we talked about practicing in the cold weather all spring and asked each other when we were going to start getting some hits. Then we went out and put it all together,” said Pony coach Jimmy Bloxom.

For Broadwater, Anna Sexauer had a three-run homer that cleared the fence, Elizabeth Floyd had two doubles, Olivia Kellam had two hits, Parker Murphy had a triple and RBI, and Palmer Smith and Heather Custis each had a single. Greta Bunce had two hits and stole three bases.

Murphy took the loss on the mound.

“Chincoteague refused to go through the motions on that last at-bat. There was no quit in that team,” said Broadwater coach Noble Palmer.

Broadwater Tops AC

Broadwater stopped Atlantic Christian 14-4 Tuesday at the Viking field. Natavia Wharton was the winning pitcher, allowing two hits while striking out six and not giving up a run in three innings of work.

Parker Murphy was 2 for 3 and scored three runs while Anna Sexauer was 3 for 3 with a double. Greta Bunce went 3 for 4 and scored three runs for the Lady Vikings.

Lady Jackets Edge BA in Extra Innings

Northampton pushed a run across the plate in the bottom of the eighth inning to take a 14-13 win over Broadwater Wednesday afternoon at the Jacket field.

The Jackets trailed 8-3 before a six-run fourth inning gave them the lead. Taylor Nadeau had three hits and three RBIs, including the game winner. In the eighth, Michaela Lewis was 4-for-6, including a double. Sarah Weber was 3-for-4 with two RBIs. Makayla Wilson was 3-for-3, and Cassie Nadeau had a 3-run double in the fourth.

“We were resilient today. I am proud of my team for fighting to the end to pull out a victory,” said Northampton coach Devin Allen.

For Broadwater, freshman Anna Sexauer was 4-for-5 with a double, triple and five RBIs. Eighth grader Parker Murphy knocked in four runs and had a bases loaded double. Natavia Wharton was 3-for-5, and Palmer Smith was 2-for-5 and scored three runs.

Wharton pitched the first 4 1/3 innings before Parker came on in relief.

Northampton Tennis Now 2-0

The Northampton girls’ tennis team won its first two matches of the season, topping Essex 7-2 last week and defeating Franklin 8-1 Monday night.

In Monday’s match, the number one doubles team of Angela Head and Haley Potts won 8-1, Sarah Gildo and Elizabeth Fernandez won 8-0 and Morgan Cranck and Cindy Early won 8-0.

In singles, Haley Potts won 6-2, 6-1; Sarah Gildo won 6-2, 6-0; and Elizabeth Fernandez came out on top 4-6, 6-3 and 6-1 in a tiebreaker. Morgan Cranck and Cindy Early also won their matches by 8-0 scores.

“We are off to a great start,” said Northampton coach Mike Varricchio. “We are undefeated in doubles.”

Twin Power

Webbs in the sixth grade when they were first classmates. “We’ve all been good friends because we know what it’s like to be a twin,” said Angela.

Kennedy said, “It’s good to know there is someone to always support you and knows what you are dealing with.”

All agreed there are times it is frustrating when others confuse them with their twin, and they take great pains to dress differently. Said Taylor, “If we discover in the morning we are wearing the same outfit, one of us will go back and change.”

There’s also increased competition among the twins when it comes to making good grades. “If Angela makes a 95, I want to make a 96,” said Erica.

“We help each other, but we both want to do just a bit better.”

“You can’t blame the teacher when you make a bad grade because usually your sister did just fine,” said Hayley, whose mother is a teacher at the school.

The Webb twins said they receive congratulatory texts from their older brother, Tyler, when they win a district title or a big game. Tyler, who had an outstanding career as a pitcher at the University of South Carolina and is now vying for a spot on the New York Yankee pitching staff, has said his sisters may be the best athletes in the family. They also have another older brother, Hunter, attending the University of South Carolina.

The Heads, like the Webbs, are the youngest in their family and have an older brother, Chris, who is attending VCU, in addition to their older sister, Sarah.

The Marshall twins have a younger sister, 9, who, coincidentally, has the same birthday.

The Heads say they were due on the same day as their slightly older sister, but were born six weeks early.

Despite their success, the twins get rave reviews for not being prima donnas. Tabi Webb, who coaches the Webbs and Erica in soccer, said they are “humble, work hard, ask questions and are team players, all the things that make a player great and a coach lucky to have them.”

Other Jacket coaches sing similar praises about all the twins, a treasured commodity at Northampton.
VMRC Reduces Cost of Fishing Licenses

The Virginia Marine Resources Commission (VMRC) has decided to reduce the cost of recreational saltwater fishing licenses, effective April 1.

“Now is the time of year when saltwater anglers dust off their fishing gear and tune up their boats, and I’m pleased to announce the cost of a saltwater fishing license is going down,” said Commissioner John M.R. Bull.

The VMRC voted unanimously to roll back a license increase that was enacted in January because of a budget reduction. However, the new state budget passed several weeks ago gives the VMRC sufficient funds to offset the budget reduction. As a result, the license increase is no longer necessary. While the new state budget goes into effect July 1, the VMRC felt it was important to roll back the license increase now in order to save anglers money right away.

The cost of an individual recreational saltwater fishing license will drop from $22.50 to $17.50. A license to cover everyone on board a boat for a year will fall from $53 to $48. Temporary 10-day licenses for both residents and non-residents have been reduced from $15 to $10. Other recreational saltwater licenses will decrease as well.

“Virginia is blessed with spectacular fishing opportunities and I’m sure recreational anglers are itching to put the grueling winter behind them and go catch some fish,” Bull said. “And now they can do so without having to pay as much for a saltwater license.”

Anglers and charter boat captains who bought their licenses in January, February or March at the higher fee are not eligible for partial refunds, under state law.

Northampton Competes in State Indoor Track

Northampton girls tallied 12 points and finished 15th among 22 teams in the state 1A/2A Indoor Track Championships at Lynchburg in early March. The boys garnered 4 points.

Nia-imani Richardson placed fourth in the 300-meter finals in 44.87, while the 4x200 relay girls’ team, consisting of Richardson, Tylor Campbell, Desha Fitchett and Keona Smith, also placed fourth in 1:55.55. Marquel Fitchett finished fifth in the men’s 55-meter hurdles in 8.81 and Quintara Lyons was seventh in the women’s 55-meter hurdles in 9.85. The boys’ 4x400-meter relay team, consisting of Fitchett, Michael Jones, Daniel Jean and Rickiece Poulson, finished ninth in 4:04.13.

Northampton, a 1A school, is one of the few schools of its size to compete in indoor track and goes up against much larger schools in the state competition, which includes 2A schools. The team is coached by Oliver Bennett.

Locker #1 - Jack White

By Joe Vaccaro, Commander American Legion Post 56

Members of American Legion Post 56 attended a funeral this past Sunday. It was the funeral for our friend and fellow legionnaire, Jack White, who passed away last week. Jack’s passing had many of his friends and family remembering all the good works he performed and the various committees on which he served. They also recalled his great passion for the people of Northampton County and the Shore in general but for me, it was a little more personal.

Over a decade ago I was a fresh arrival to Cape Charles from another garden spot of the world where I recently served. It took about two months to get back into the swing of things and somewhere during that period, I had the honor and privilege to meet Mr. Jack White at Rayfield’s. As I recall, he was living close to the beach and I was invited into his home to chat about my recent overseas adventures.

It was during one of these conversations that I learned that Jack served in the military during World War II with the Army Air Corps, the forerunner to today’s Air Force, but what he really liked to talk about was his brother who was a former POW in Germany. Jack’s eyes beamed when he spoke about his brother and he made it an emphatic point that his brother was in a “stalag” prison camp, just like one depicted in the movie, “Stalag 17.” Jack was proud of his military service and loved everything that America represented, so it was just a matter of time before I’d see him at the newly revived Legion Post.

After lying in slumber for some 40 plus years, Post 56 was re-opened in 2007. One of the first people to attend the meetings and events at this fledgling American Legion Post was Jack. He was there when we pre-opened the Post to the general public in May 2007 and he sat at the end of the bar that afternoon, delighted to see old friends and neighbors. These were tough financial days and Jack asked me how he could support the Post, especially since it had more bills than members in those days. So it was decided right then and there that Jack would rent a locker space at the Post, where he could leave a bottle of gin to accompany his tonic. Determined to lead the way, Jack rented Locker Number 1 at Post 56. He also enthusiastically encouraged other legionnaires to understand that the locker rentals were for a worthy cause. So it became evident that besides all of his other organizational expertise, Jack was also a master salesman for Post locker rentals!

That was Jack — there was never a small project for him if it meant helping other people or an organization. He was the type of gentleman who always found the time to say hello to you no matter where he met you and usually addressed you by your military rank. He had a knack for making you feel like you had known him for dozens of years and remained buoyant despite his declining health.

After the funeral service on Sunday, I went back to Post 56 and asked the bartender to look into Locker Number 1, where she discovered that Jack left a small bottle of gin. We didn’t move it and probably won’t for a long while. After all, Locker Number 1 was Jack’s locker and it’ll always be Jack’s locker whether that bottle of gin is in there or not. Over the years, I have discovered a multitude of traditions and cultures on the Shore. Most of all, there’s a healthy respect for the people who try to make this area better than they found it. Mr. Jack White was one of those people and we’re going to miss him a great deal at Post 56. Locker Number 1 will always belong to him.

Please Oppose Offshore Drilling

Dear Editor:

We are unalterably opposed to drilling in the Atlantic Ocean near the Eastern Shore’s coastline. It’s far too special a place to risk the inherent damage that could be done to our environment. The costs far outweigh any possible gain.

Back in the ’80s, Brown and Root, a Halliburton subsidiary (enough said), was exploring for oil off the same coast. Finding none after a lengthy search, they gave up, folded their tents and left. Why try again?

Our stretch of undeveloped coastline from the Maryland border to the tip of Virginia’s Eastern Shore is a major flyway for shorebirds and song birds alike. They are already seriously threatened; don’t exacerbate their plight further.

Our $50 million aquaculture industry is thriving, so too our commercial and recreational fishing sectors. Both are major assets, as are NASA and Wallops.

The commercial aspect of rocket launches adds another facet to our great tourist industry. I believe the Navy does not want drilling rigs interfering with their operations. Their location gives them an invaluable unobstructed view of the horizon and beyond, important to our defense.

It’s time to increase our renewable energy sources and cut back on fossil fuels that pollute our environment. Adding possibly futile oil and gas exploration seems unnecessary to me, considering all the negatives involved in the proposition.

When we moved here almost 25 years ago, the magazine Virginia Wildlife devoted its entire February 1992 issue to “The Eastern Shore: A Delicate Treasure.” It was filled with beautiful photos as well as local and editorial commentary. The issue was dedicated to the conservation of Virginia’s wildlife and natural resources. The Shore is referred to as “this land of sea and sand and marsh, such a rare and delicate treasure. In this place of such natural changes, we can’t help but hope it really never changes.”

Another quote: “Virginia’s Eastern Shore is this other world. Somehow it has retained just enough of Nature’s generosity to remind us that concrete and grass cubes aren’t man’s natural habitat. It reminds us of where we came from. Sadly, this may be the greatest threat to the Shore. Its very appeal just may be its undoing. Virginia’s Eastern Shore may just be the East Coast’s last battleground in the war of development versus habitat.”

Let’s do our part and not let that happen. Not permitting oil and gas exploration would be a good place to start. Secretary of the Interior Sally Jewell has continuously said, “Some places are just too special to drill.” We wholeheartedly agree 100 percent!

However, she did not include our Eastern Shore in her “special places.” Contact her at the Department of the Interior. Also contact the Assateague Coastal Reserve, Berlin Md. They may be reached online or on social media. Also contact Virginia Shorekeeper Jay Ford (who is vehemently opposed as are we), Gov. McAuliffe and Lt. Gov. Ralph Northam, our federal and state senators and legislators and anyone else you can think of. It’s truly critical!
