They watch over us with love, kindness and protection as they set examples for our future behavior. Celebrations and remembrances of Eastern Shore mothers will be an important part of this weekend from Kiptopeke to the Maryland state line. After all, those women helped make many of us who we are today.

Sons and daughters told the Eastern Shore Post a little bit about their powerful matriarchs.

“I didn’t get to get to know her very long,” Mary Morse of Accomac said of her late mother, Cathy Morse from Pungoteague. “But from the five years I got with her, she was amazing. All the memories I have with her are good. My mother was a great woman and I’m proud to be her daughter.”

“My mom, Elizabeth Crockett, is 87 this month,” said Karen Crim of Fox Grove near Parksley. “But from the five years I got with her, she was amazing. All the memories I have with her are good. My mother was a great woman and I’m proud to be her daughter.”

Mae Fitchett of Florida talked about her mother, Elizabeth Fitchett Upshur, who passed away a few years ago. “We lived as a family in Painter, a.k.a. Lil Boston to many who lived there. My loving memories of my mother are filled with her kindness to all who encountered her, and her gentle smile that warmed many hearts,” said Fitchett. “Her grace gave me hope for more love and peace in this world.”

“My mother’s name is Caren Martin and in my opinion she is the greatest mother and woman I have personally ever known,” Philip Smith of Harborton wrote. “My Mother cares for others first and she would give you or me the shirt off her back. At 70 ... she never quits moving, sick or well, she just keeps on trucking. Everyone, I believe, on the Eastern Shore knows or loves her, between being so personal and outgoing and working to the restaurant (Island House) and both Parksley and Exmore shirt factories.”

Smith, 53, said he’s been laid off, divorced and recently broke his leg and ankle. “But guess what? She has taken me in, fed, clothed, kept a roof over my head paid for all my medications and doctor visits and waited on me hand and foot while I was on a walker for almost five months,” Smith said. “She has always been there for me ever since I can remember! I will get back on my feet eventually, but I would never have made it this far without her!! She is just simply Awesome! She is by far simply MY BEST FRIEND.”

Connie Burford of Bloxom said her mom (now Dot Burford Turner of Hallwood) married her dad at a very young age. “She had my brother, my sister and me before her 19th birthday. I have often wondered how she ever survived all three of us as toddlers at

In an 8-1 vote Tuesday night, Accomack’s School Board voted to approve a personnel list that included internal transfers of top administrators as part of the reorganization process announced earlier this year.

The action regarding the administrators, who are part of Superintendent Dr. Kregg Cuellar’s cabinet, came as no surprise since an announcement about the changes was made last week. However, the vote made it all official.

Facilities Coordinator Mike Tolbert was named chief operations and management officer, Director of Special Education Dr. Nancy Lewin was made chief academic officer, and Middle School Instructional Coordinator Jason Baldwin will be chief of staff. The jobs will begin July 1.

The vote came after an hour-long closed session. Dr. Ronnie Holden, who was participating in the meeting via a conference call, was the only member to vote against the appointments. There was no public conversation regarding why Holden was opposed.

Other official changes included naming Diane Gladstone director of special populations. She is currently in charge of migrant, English as a second language and Title III programs and new teachers.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Rhonda Hall will be the director of school improvement and federal programs.

Director of Finance and Chief Operating Officer Beth Onley will become director of budget and finance, and High School Coordinator Tamara Sterling will become director of secondary schools, which includes coordinating high schools and middle schools.
Beach Access Claims Spotlight

Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge Manager Kevin Sloan told Chincoteague officials recently that after a new beach is opened on Assateague, he hopes to keep seasonal access to the existing sunbathing area available on Beach Road.

Town Planner Bill Neville said Wednesday the next step for the proposed Comprehensive Conservation Plan (CCP) is a 30-day public review period that would begin in late June or early July. Then it would go to the regional director in Massachusetts who could take up to another 30 days to sign it.

The recommendation is still going to be to relocate the public beach a mile north of the current one, Neville said, adding that the town has been assured “there won’t be any down time. They will keep the current one open until the new one is ready.”

Neville said a road to the new access would go to the left just after the tollbooth. “The new manager proposed that Beach Road would remain open at the circle and still allow off-season access to the old beach for walking, hiking and surf fishing from September to March,” Neville said, adding that the regional director would have to approve that suggestion.

Neville also discussed the town’s adjustment of building requirements. Council voted Tuesday that measurements will start at two feet above base flood elevation for structures in the flood plain and agreed to allow construction to go to 36 feet at the midpoint of a slope or pitched roof.

Also this week, Chincoteague Town Council:
- passed a resolution designating May 9-16 as Spring Clean-up, Paint-up and Fix-up Week in coordination with Chincoteague’s Mother Earth Day May 9;
- approved the application of $5,000 in Virginia Department of Transportation funds for recycling efforts for clean-up projects;
- proclaimed May 24-30 Hurricane Preparedness Week since Chincoteague Island “is vulnerable to the devastating effects that a hurricane or tropical storm can cause;
- approved a proclamation recognizing the 20th anniversary of Chincoteague Library, which started on July 4, 1995, with “a mere 3,600 volumes” and has grown to the “current collection of 12,704 items … with programs for all ages, outreach services, literacy initiatives, job search and small business resources, expanding information services, computer use, Internet access and other means of community support and enrichment.”

Linda Ryan, president of the library board, said an open house is among the many celebrations the facility is planning for its 20th year. The event, scheduled from 3 to 5 p.m. June 13, will include refreshments, slide shows, and tours.

Traffic has been delayed on the Chincoteague causeway as workers make upgrades.

Chincoteague Youth Leaders Offer Suggestions for Town

Chincoteague needs a wastewater treatment plant, new regulations regarding roadside parking in inclement weather, better advertising for the historic downtown area and bike trails along Maddox Boulevard.

That’s how Chincoteague High School students saw it after taking on the jobs of various town officials Monday.

“We spent the day going around to local businesses and thinking what we would like to see,” said student Mayor Emily Haugh. She proposed that recycling bins be put up near trashcans throughout the town to give tourists an opportunity to recycle.

Student Councilman Hunter Leonard, son of Councilman J. Arthur Leonard, said a regulation “during inclement weather” should be adopted to prohibit cars from parking on the side of the road when plows or other emergency vehicles need road access. “It’s something the town could look at,” he added.

“What I’d like to talk about is a little pricey,” Student Councilman Reid Thornton announced. He wants a wastewater treatment plant that would start with service to Maddox Boulevard and Main Street. “I don’t like substations in downtown Chincoteague because it’s historical,” he said.

“It would open the door for more restaurants to come in and take a building that is already there,” Thornton explained. “It’s something that is going to happen eventually. … In 10 or 20 years this is going to be something that is going to have to happen … it’s still going to be 10 or 15 years until it becomes fully effective … but it could become mandatory and we would have nothing.”

Student Public Works Director Matthew Lindsay was concerned about downtown businesses that could be suffering after the Chincoteague Bridge was moved. “Signs need to be larger for advertisement” to the historic district, Lindsay said. “At historical downtown Onancock and Berlin (Md.), it’s very clear and obvious where you’re going.”

Student Town Manager Jake Rickman said parking needs to be prohibited on Maddox Boulevard. “It’s a hazard,” he added. Bikers ride along the sidewalks because despite the numerous bike rental shops, there is nowhere to safely ride. “I just don’t see the point of them parking at all there,” Rickman said, adding that the parking lanes could be used more safely for bicycles.

“These young ladies and gentleman took this very seriously,” said Councilman Ben Ellis. “It was a very valuable experience for them.”

Councilman Leonard agreed. “It was amazing the way some of the lightbulbs were going off. … Hopefully, we’ll see some of them up here” in town government in the future.

Northampton Rallies for Better Schools

By Ron West

Just over a week ago, parents, educators, and students held a rally at the State Capitol in Richmond to draw attention to the need for the government to funnel more funding and resources into public education.

At last week’s session of the Northampton School Board, parent Andy Teeling spoke of the need to do just that at the local level. Teeling said the county needs to recognize that education could become the economic engine to help revitalize the area. To this end, he said he intends to address the Board of Supervisors at its next session May 12 and urged the public to come together there to gain the support of the supervisors.

Northampton High School assistant principal Kinsey Bynum apprised the School Board of recent improvements in the school’s academic program. Technology upgrades in business classrooms and changes in the Building Trades Department and auto mechanics classes have been made to prepare students for their future.

Lastly, Bynum spoke of the Job Shadowing program to be held June 8-9 to provide students an opportunity to spend a day with local businesses and government agencies and thereby learn if that job is something they might wish to pursue. Bynum urged business and government leaders who have an interest in the Job Shadowing program to go the Northampton High School website and complete an application. There is no cost for the businesses.

Mothers

She married my stepdad when I was 18 and he fit our family like a glove. We have enjoyed many family vacations together and for that I am thankful. My Mom is as happy at an amusement park with her grandkids, (she has seven) as she is sitting in a lawn chair watching her two great-grandchildren play ball. I remember her always saying that she had her children when she was young so she could grow up with them. My Mom is still growing up. And that is what I love most about my Mom.”

“My mom, Lola East Spence, taught me how to be a thoughtful, caring person,” wrote Wanda Mears of Onley. “She also taught me how important family is. We always had dinners for holidays and birthdays. My mom also taught me to be me. Mom is in her early 90s and lives in Southside Chessonnessex in the home her father, Dial East, built.”

“My mom’s name was Joyce Mears,” said Penny Steele of Wachapreague. “She lived in Keller. She’s been gone for a few years, but when I remember being with her in the kitchen, she’s right here. My most favorite memory is all the baking I did with my mom, especially at Christmastime. We would bake for days and on Christmas Eve we all got to sample everything. I really miss those days,” said Steele.

Said Chris Truckner of Painter, “I love everything about my beautiful mother,” Teresa Cartwright of Exmore. “I wouldn’t be the person I am if it wasn’t for her. I love you, Mom!”

“The thing that I love the most about my Mother (Naomi Cathell of Parksley) is that she loves her Lord and Savior so much and she taught me to love Him as well,” wrote Jani Savannah of Melfa. “She always practiced what she preached and I am so very thankful that she taught me to live by faith, knowing that no matter where I go, no matter what is going on in my life, I am never alone and always loved! Thank you, Mom! I love you to pieces!!”

Louis Sanders’ mother was born Lola Drummond, daughter of Louis and Minnie Drummond of Keller. She was valedictorian of the first graduating class of Central High School in 1929. Sanders, who lives in Norfolk, said his mother went to business college in Baltimore and came back to keep books for Duer & Sons during the Great Depression and war years. She moved to Norfolk in the early 1950s and met and then married his dad. Years later, they moved to the Pungo area of Virginia Beach, which, according to Sanders, allowed the couple to “return to their country roots ... they lived out their lives there until Lola succumbed to ovarian cancer in May 1986. Her funeral was on Mother’s Day of that year.”

Accomack District Court

A member of the Virginia Defense Force (VDF) from the Eastern Shore was convicted of misdemeanor embezzlement from the agency, according to records filed in Accomack District Court.

Briekem Bailey, 23, of Estate Lane in Parksley initially was charged with felony embezzlement between April 5 and July 19, 2013. He was arrested in August 2014 and found guilty of the lesser charge Monday.

“Bailey ... was responsible for the Voyager Card assigned to the unit’s bus during the time period in question,” State Police Special Agent S.E. Griffith wrote in the court documents. “This card was to be used to put gas in the bus to transport members in training and other assignments.”

“The bus was last used in Oct 2012,” Griffith continued. “Between April and July 2013 the card was used to purchase gasoline on numerous occasions in several locations in Accomack County. The unauthorized charges total more than $200. Mr. Bailey admitted that the card was in his possession ... and he used the card to put gas in his personal vehicle for personal use.”

He was sentenced to seven months in jail, with all but a month suspended, and fined $150.

The VDF is the Commonwealth’s military reserve.

Michael (Mike) Paul West, 36, of Horse Point Road in Hayes, Va., was charged with stealing property belonging to Wesley Williams on Jan. 5.

“Williams was on Saxis Island buying oysters from watermen” when he caught West “in the cab of his truck,” according to court records. West told Williams he was “just checking out the truck ... it was a nice truck.”

But when Williams got home, he noticed eight $100 bills were missing from the bank bag he kept in the truck to pay watermen. Williams called West who admitted he took the money and said he would repay it when he got his tax refund.

Bail was set at $5,000. Sgt. David Smullin of Accomack County Sheriff’s Office (ACSO) investigated.

Sage Surrenders a Bit of Its Spice

By Ron West

Violent incidents in recent years have brought unwarranted attention to the Sage Restaurant in Exmore.

According to Exmore Police Chief Angelo DiMartino, that may be changing. A recent altercation well after midnight April 18, involving gunfire, malicious wounding, a dozen or more combatants, and a high-speed police chase that extended well into Accomack County yielded a number of arrests.

As a result of that event and others at the restaurant, an agreement has been reached to shut down the bar at the establishment. DiMartino noted that alcohol may continue to be served with meals in the dining area.

In a related area, council agreed to replace a police vehicle damaged the evening of the incident. Town Manager Robert Duer noted that insurance will cover most of the cost.

DiMartino stated that with spring has come an increase in criminal activity in the area, resulting in a rise in the number of calls and arrests.

Duer presented a laundry list of items needed to attract more visitors to the town, including improvements to the town’s parking lot across from the municipal building, completion of the Railroad Museum on the east side of town, and the addition of a multi-purpose building at the Town Park.

Duer reported that only one bid had been received to construct the 48’ x 64’ building. Council was split 3-3 on accepting the offer, with Councilmen Chase Strugis, Bryan Heaster, and G.W. Adkins voting against it. The mayor broke the tie, voting to move forward with the building. Council then agreed to advertise for bids over the next two weeks, and if none came forward, to accept the one already received. Council hopes the building can be open to the public by early fall.

Adkins introduced Jim Welch and recommended that he manage the farmers’ market, which has been proposed. Council agreed to offer Welch a three-year contract to manage the market once it is up and running. While no decision had been formally made as to the site of the market, an area near the Railroad Museum is being considered.

With respect to the Railroad Museum, council agreed to provide $4,000 to complete it and get it open at the earliest possible date. The Town owns the museum and the surrounding property.

With regards to the parking lot, Utilities Director Taylor Dukes said an offer of $11,500 had been received to resurface it. He noted that a previous estimate of nearly $500,000 had been received to pave it with asphalt, but funds are not available. Council agreed to seek other bids for the project prior to making a final decision on the one bid offered.

During the public comment session, Wardtown resident Ken Dufty addressed a proposal that has been made regarding the construction of chickenhouses in the southern part of Accomack County. Noting that the eight houses could hold more than 250,000 chickens, he voiced concern about the amount of manure they would produce and the water they would use. He warned that current efforts to loosen the Northampton zoning policies might allow chickens to be raised there. He concluded, “We need to make some changes to the current zoning ordinance, but limit the bad parts.”

Residents of Nassawadox

The deadline for purchasing Nassawadox Town Decals has been extended until May 16, 2015, without penalty. All residents of Nassawadox are required to display the town decal on each vehicle and trailer owned by the resident. Decals may be purchased at the Northampton Free Library in Nassawadox. The fees are $33.00 for vehicles and $18.00 for trailers. Decals should be purchased immediately to avoid a possible fine of $100.00 for violating the law, and/or a stop on drivers’ licenses or vehicle registration renewals through the DMV, in accordance with other incorporated towns’ policies.

SPRING FESTIVAL of SHORE WIDE OPEN HOUSES

MAY 9TH FROM 10AM-2PM

An Independently Owned and Operated Member of Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates, Inc.
By Sen. Lynwood W. Lewis Jr.

The 2015 Virginia General Assembly ended at 4:13 p.m. Friday, April 17.

What had been a fairly civil, low-key session, ended in the same spirit. The constitutionally required, reconvened session, also known as the “Veto Session,” began Wednesday, April 15, recessed and concluded, finally, on Friday, April 17.

Wednesday’s session went into the night, finally recessing at 8:20 with one large piece of business, House Bill 2070 and Senate Bill 1424, the “Ethics Bill,” unresolved. While there was no controversy surrounding most of the provisions of the bill and the governor’s amendments to it, the process of addressing those many amendments was thought by the majority of the senators and delegates to best be left to a separate day.

The budget, which passed the Senate unanimously, and is usually the subject of extensive amendment by Virginia’s governors, was signed by Gov. McAuliffe without an amendment or line-item veto, which is very unusual. The final budget amendments contained money for a new Eastern Shore Community College and operating money for the Mid-Atlantic Regional Spaceport.

As with past governors, I agreed with some of Gov. McAuliffe’s vetoes and disagreed with others. The subjects of the governor’s vetoes included, among others, a bill requiring legislative approval by the Virginia legislature before adoption of the Common Core curriculum for K-12 public education, a bill which I had supported. I believe that it is an important issue which, no matter how you may feel about Common Core, deserves consideration by the legislature. I voted to pass the bill, but the governor’s veto was sustained.

For a number of years, I have voted against the “Tebow Bill,” which would allow home-schooled children to participate in public school athletics because I thought that it was not good policy for a number of reasons. I voted against it again this year on the Senate Education Committee. When it reached the Senate floor, however, an amendment was adopted, which had never been offered or adopted before, and which allowed each school district to determine whether home-schooled children should participate in public school athletic programs. While I continue to believe that it is generally not good policy, with so many elected school boards, it seemed to me best to leave it to local authorities to determine if a locality could or should develop a plan or system by which home-schooled children could participate in public-school athletic programs. The governor vetoed the bill with the local option amendment and the veto was sustained by the House of Delegates; therefore, the governor’s veto action did not return to the Senate for a vote.

The Ethics Bill, on which we returned to Richmond on Friday to vote, has as a centerpiece additional reporting requirements for elected officials as well as a $100 cap on “gifts” during any calendar year and also applies to immediate family members. Gifts can be anything from books or meals to trips sponsored by outside organizations. This bill establishes some bright line rules which will improve transparency and accountability and hopefully lead to greater public trust. In addition, an Ethics Advisory Commission will determine whether the trips paid for by outside parties have sufficient educational value for legislators to be allowed under this new limit on gifts.

I have returned to my office in Accomack and can be reached at 787-1094 or toll free at 866-787-1094, P.O. Box 760, Accomack, VA 23301, or district06@senate.virginia.gov

By Del. Robert S. Bloxom Jr.

The 2015 General Assembly reconvened on April 15 to consider the governor’s vetoes and recommendations. The House considered 84 pieces of legislation and we worked an additional day to complete the ethics bill.

Gov. McAuliffe accepted the budget as prepared with no amendments. We adopted a conservative, balanced budget that spends $1 billion less from the general fund than previous years, and funded pay raises. State-supported local employees and university faculty will receive a 2 percent increase, 1.5 percent for teachers and $4 million for Virginia State Police overtime. Eastern Shore Community College was granted funding to build a new administrative academic building in this budget as well.

The General Assembly required an extra day of session to complete work on the governor’s amendments to the ethics bill. This legislation significantly strengthens Virginia’s ethics, transparency and disclosure laws. As of July 1, all elected officials will have a $100 aggregate annual gift cap, be required to seek pre-approval for travel and must file all disclosures online for easy review by the public.

On a more important note, I was fortunate enough to participate in the 2015 Model General Assembly as an alumnus legislator while in Richmond for the reconvened session. MGA was designed to introduce high-school students to the legislative process of Virginia. Legislation is debated in committees and on the floors of the Senate and House of Delegates.

The Eastern Shore was represented well, with more than 50 students from Chincoteague High School, Nandua High School, Tangier Combined School, Arcadia High School and Broadwater Academy traveling to participate in this program. The students presented a wide variety of legislation which included topics such as disability rights, vaccinations in public schools, unmanned aircraft and more. This program is an excellent lesson in civics that allows our youth to find their voice through debate, become leaders of their generation and hopefully spark interest in future careers.

It is my honor and privilege to serve my friends and neighbors of the 100th District in the Virginia House of Delegates. If there is ever anything I can do for you, please do not hesitate to let me know. I can be reached at my district office at 824-3456 or by email at delrbloxom@house.virginia.gov

The Virginia Marine Resources Commission (VMRC) recently released the 2015 blue crab winter dredge survey, which showed moderate improvement in the health of the stock, despite a very cold winter that killed an inordinately large number of crabs.

“This is a step in the right direction but we are not out of the woods,” said VMRC John M.R. Bull. “Responsible management dictates a cautious approach as we continue to work to build a healthy crab stock and to maintain a sustainable fishery.”

While juvenile and spawning age female crab numbers increased a bit and last year’s harvest remained under the target fishing removal rate for the seventh consecutive year, the total abundance of crabs was only the 11th highest in the past 25 years.

The long, abnormally cold winter appears to have resulted in one of the worst overwinter mortality events since the start of the winter dredge survey in 1990, causing the death of 29 percent of all adult crabs in Maryland.

Despite that severe setback, the crab stock improved.

A baywide 10 percent crab harvest reduction enacted last year by the VMRC, Maryland, and the Potomac River Fisheries Commission to combat low crab population and boost a dangerously depleted female spawning stock appears to have been effective.

“It’s likely the collective management actions since 2008 enhanced the population’s resilience despite a severe environmental disruption,” said Rom Lipcius of the Virginia Institute of Marine Science.

This year’s overall baywide crab abundance increased from 297 million crabs to 411 million, a 38 percent increase. Juvenile crabs jumped from 199 million to 269 million, a 35 percent increase, and now comprise the bulk of the crab stock.

Spawning-age female crab levels emerged from depleted status, increasing from 69 million to 101 million, a 46 percent increase, but remained well below the healthy-stock target of 215 million. Spawning-age males increased from last year, but their abundance of nearly 44 million remains the third lowest in the past 25 years.

Although the overall number of crabs in the bay improved, the stock remains just above pre-2008 levels, when a coordinated baywide stock rebuilding program kicked off.

“The increase in blue crab numbers is a positive sign toward the commitment of the 2014 Chesapeake Bay Watershed Agreement to rebuild long term sustainability of blue crab populations,” said Peyton Robertson, chair of the Chesapeake Bay Program’s Sustainable Fisheries Goal Implementation Team.

This year’s abundance levels would seem to preclude the possibility of reopening the winter crab dredge fishery, which has been closed annually since 2008.

“The survey results show an increase in overall blue crab abundance but female abundance is still below the 215 million target. This suggests maintaining a precautionary approach to managing the population” said Joe Grist, chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Stock Assessment Committee.

Charles Carpenter of Delaware with his 6 lb. 11 oz. flounder that won two tournaments out of Wachapreague and $4500.

Brandon Parks of Belle Haven caught a 6 lb. 3 oz. flounder that took second place in Captain's Zed flounder tournament.

One Valuable Flounder and Looking Back

Want to know what a $4,500 flounder looks like?

That’s what Charles Carpenter of Delaware is holding in the photo at bottom left. His 6-pound, 11-ounce doormat won both Captain’s Zed 25th annual Flounder Tournament and the Wachapreague Marina Flounder tournament concluded Sunday.

Captain Zed’s tournament offered a $2,500 first prize this year in honor of the 25th year of the tourney. Carpenter won that and also the $2,000 first prize for second place and $600 in Captain’s Zed tourney. He is pictured below.

See Page 27 for complete results of both tourneys and information on upcoming flounder tourneys on Chincoteague.

Talk of a $4,500 fish, great weather and reports of a few flounder being caught up and down the seaside had ramps full this weekend. There were reports that not a parking spot was available at Folly Creek, and Blake Johnson of the Island House said things were hopping at Wachapreague Saturday and Sunday.

Flounder has long been a staple of the seaside. I can recalls as a sports reporter on the Eastern Shore in the 1970s going to Wachapreague about 3 in the afternoon and watching the party boats come in to the marina and unloading their catches.

There were no bag or size limits then. In fact, I can recall one old-timer scoffing at me for even suggesting there might one day be limits on the number and size of flounder caught.

The day’s bragging rights went to the boat landing the most flounder, and usually it would take well over 100 fish for parties of four to six people to win the day’s honors. The truth is many of those fish would not meet the minimum 16-inch length it takes to keep a flounder today.

There were more than 30 charter boats leaving Wachapreague almost every day of the fishing season and several more at Quinby in those days. Guests at the Hotel Wachapreague had watched the parade of charter boats come into port many afternoons for most of the 1900s, from when the stately hotel was built in 1902 to the night it perished in a fire in 1978.

Wachapreague was proclaimed the Flounder Capital of the World. There seemed to be an inexhaustible supply of flounder.

But times did change. It became more difficult for boats to reach that magic number of 100 per day.

Anglers realized limits on the number of fish caught and a minimum size were needed. Regulations most definitely had an impact on charter boat fishing out of Wachapreague. For many generations, sons followed their fathers into the charter boat business. But as the number of parties willing to travel three or four hours and then only catch three to four fish per angler started dwindling, the number of charter boats dropped drastically.

On Monday, the longtime captains fishing with parties out of Wachapreague included Nat Atkinson Jr., Sam Parker and the dean of captains, 84-year-old Bobby Turner. Capt. Ray Parker, who fished the waters off Wachapreague for an incredible 70 years, died in 2013; his brother Earl passed away in 1999.

But it was more than regulations that started the decline of the charter boat industry.

Paul Smith, who works at Wachapreague marina two or three days a week, and who at 84, has been around long enough to know, mentioned two factors Monday.

“The trailerable boat and GPS has done as much as anything else to hurt the charter boat industry,” he said. “It became much easier for anglers to bring their own boats to the Shore to fish for flounder. And back in the 1980s, they were just coming out with LORAN, which cost a small fortune and was too big for a small boat. Now, with GPS, the size of your wristwatch, you can find all the good flounder locations. If you catch some fish one day, you can find the same spot within a few feet the next day. Many anglers don’t need a captain like they did back in the day,” said Smith.

“When anglers come in to buy tackle, they also want the coordinates of the good flounder places, added Smith.

There you have it. Technology seems to play a role in everything we do or use, including, most notably, newspapers.

But, on Monday, nothing seemed to matter except that Nat, Sam and Bobby had parties fishing on their boats, anglers were backing their boats down the ramps in town, and the weatherman was forecasting a string of days going into the 80s.

And Charles Carpenter, a Delaware angler who came to the Shore and caught a $4,500 fish, had a bit more money for gas, bait and tackle to go fishing.

Chincoteague’s Fisher Tosses Shutout Against Nandua

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

Trey Fisher struck out 14 while shutting out Nandua Tuesday as Chincoteague blanked the homestanding Warriors 3-0.

The win raised the Ponies’ record to 13-0 on the season and all but clinched the Eastern Shore District title.

Fisher allowed only three hits, all coming in the first inning. A relay throw that nailed a Nandua runner at the plate helped preserve the shutout.

Dylan Mason had a two-RBI single, Fisher knocked in a run with sacrifice, and Mason Marshall, Ryan Mason and Dustin Holloway each had a single.

Ponies Paste Firebirds

Joe Thornton had five RBIs, including a three-run homer, and Dylan Mason contributed three RBIs as Chincoteague remained unbeaten in the district with a 15-5 win over Arcadia last Thursday.

Collin Derrickson allowed only one hit in four innings of work, walking six and striking out seven. Trey Fisher completed the game with two innings of strong relief.

Mason Marshall was 3 for 4, Dustin Holloway had an RBI single, Fisher had a pair of hits and Joe Mills had a single and two walks to help the Pony offense.

For Arcadia, Austin Bagwell started and took the loss. The top Firebird hitters were Jaquan Wharton, who was 1 for 2, and Dalton McDaniel with a double.

Nandua Tops Jackets

John Kilmon had three hits and four RBIs to lead Nandua to a 22-0 win over Northampton at home Monday. The Warriors scored 14 runs in the first to put the game away early. Evan McGregor chipped in with two hits and three RBIs, while Michael McCluskey had two hits and two RBIs, scoring three runs. Jake Guy had a double with two RBIs.

Guy, Billy Kellam and freshmen Trey Burnley, Casey Smith and Garrett Baylis each threw one inning, allowing no hits while striking out nine and walking two as a group.

Firebirds Top Jackets

Arcadia topped Northampton 17-3 Tuesday on the road as Austin Bagwell pitched three innings to get the win, giving up no runs. Dalton McDaniel paced the Firebird hitters.

Vikes Win Three Metro Games

Broadwater’s baseball team defeated Alliance Christian three times in two days as the Vikings wrapped up the regular season on Tuesday with a double header and then faced Alliance again Wednesday in the first game of the Metro Tournament.

Justin Shaffer pitched superbly Wednesday, throwing a complete game while striking out eight and walking two, giving up a pair of hits as Broadwater advanced in the tourney with a 2-1 win.

Shaffer also scored both Viking runs, scoring in the second after walking and crossing the plate on a Thomas Scott fielder’s choice, then reaching on an error and scoring on Ben Farlow’s single in the sixth. That run broke a 1-1 tie and proved to be the game winner.

The Vikes managed only two hits, both coming from Farlow.

The win advanced Broadwater to the semi-finals against top-seeded Atlantic Shores in a game played yesterday after Post deadlines. If the Vikings won, they would host the championship game today.

Broadwater wrapped up the regular season with a sweep on Tuesday by 10-0 and 8-5 scores.

Andrew Hart tossed a shutout in the opener, allowing only one hit and one walk.
Nandua Softballers Roll to 10-0 Record with Four Wins

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

Nandua’s softball team scored three runs in the first inning and held on for its tightest win of the season in a 6-2 decision over Chincoteague at home Tuesday in a benefit game for the fight against breast cancer. The win kept Nandua unbeaten at 10-0.

Wearing pink shirts, the Lady Warriors took an early 3-0 lead on a Michaela Wescott RBI single. Derrica Toppin got the win with four innings on the mound and also drove in three runs with two doubles.

Kimberly Wert came on to pitch the last three innings, striking out four and allowing only one hit. Autumn Ferguson also had an RBI double for the Lady Warriors.

Emily Haugh went the distance for the Ponies and allowed only four earned runs, being hurt by three Pony errors.

Ronny Malone had two hits for the Lady Ponies.

Nandua Wins on Road

Nandua blanked Maggie Walker 10-0 last Saturday in Richmond as Kimberly Wert and Michaela Wescott each had two hits and an RBI. Amanda Baylis drove in two runs with a home run. Tyra Bjoarlo had a triple, but suffered a season-ending shoulder injury on the play.

Wert earned the win on the mound with five innings of two-hit pitching, striking out a pair.

Wert had three RBIs and two hits, including a home run, to lead Nandua to a 9-1 win over Essex Saturday in Richmond. Wescott had two hits, one a triple, and Sarah Gepes also banged out two hits while Derrica Toppin had a triple.

Toppin also got the win, pitching seven innings while allowing only three hits and striking out two. Toppin was supported by three double plays by the Nandua defense.

Warriors Over Jackets

The Nandua girls’ softball team continued to roll up easy wins in the district with a 12-1 win in five innings over Northampton Monday at the Warrior field.

Michaela Wescott had two hits, including two doubles and 3 RBIs to lead the Lady Warriors on offense. Autumn Ferguson also knocked in two runs with a pair of doubles. Chandler Davis had a run-scoring triple and drove in two runs. Sarah Gepes also drove in a run.

Derrica Toppin pitched five strong innings, allowing only two hits and no earned runs while striking out three and walking three.

For Northampton, Makayla Wilson and Briana Williams each had a double.

Arcadia Tops Chinco.

Arcadia softballers avenged an earlier defeat to Chincoteague with a 9-7 win last Thursday.

The Firebirds’ Taylor Lewis had three hits, including two doubles, Cana Lankford had a two-run homer, and Sarah Jones, Tiffany Trader, Tabby Thornes and Logan Holland each had a hit.

For the Ponies, Emily Haugh supplied most of the power with a triple and double.

On Monday, the Lady Firebirds had the tying run on third when the game ended with Arcadia on the short end of a 10-9 decision.

Amanda Stalagatis, Jones and Lew is each had three hits to pace the Firebirds, with Trader and Caitlyn Godwin collecting two hits each.

“It was a back and forth battle all day for the teams with each team seemingly striking a blow at any time. It came down to the final out of the final inning with two outs and the tying run on third,” said Arcadia coach Richard Strautz.

On Monday, the Lady Firebirds had the tying run on third when the game ended with Arcadia on the short end of a 10-9 decision to Salisbury Christian.

Jackets Top Firebirds 12-2

Northampton broke open a close game Tuesday to defeat Arcadia 12-2 in five innings at home.

Taylor Nadeau pitched a complete game for the Lady Jackets, allowing five hits. Briana Williams led the Northampton offense with a double and 3 RBIs. Sara Weber and Nadeau had 2 RBIS each. Macenize Widgeon and Cassie Nadeau each had a hit.

Vikings Win Pair

The Broadwater girls’ softball team won a double header over Alliance Christian Saturday at home by identical 10-0 scores while allowing only one hit on the day.

Parker Murphy won the opener, allowing only one hit over five innings without walking a batter.

Nativa Wharton raised her record to 9-4 with a no-hitter in the second game, striking out eight.

“We swung the bat well and obviously got good pitching,” said Viking coach Noble Palmer.

The Lady Vikings played a Metro Conference semi-final game yesterday, decided after deadline, against Portsmouth Christian, a team they split with this season.

If the Lady Vikings won, they will be playing in the championship game today at home, with the opponent most likely top-seeded Isle of Wight.

The Northampton girls’ soccer team maintained its unbeaten status with a 2-0 win over Middlesex Tuesday night at home and now stands at 8-0-2.

Taylor Webb got the Lady Jackets on the board with a score 15 minutes into the game. Late in the half, Ceci Cruz scored on a cross by Stephanie Kellam. The Lady Jackets dominated the action, with the Middlesex goalie making 17 saves while the Jacket goalie only touched the ball once.

“I thought the game reflected well on our defense as Middlesex had a very skilled striker,” said Jacket coach Tabi Webb.

The Northampton girls’ soccer team blitzed Northumberland 8-0 in action last week. The game ended with 20 minutes left in the second half on the slaughter rule.

Taylor Webb scored two minutes into the game and then again five minutes later on a cross by Erica Head. Webb added her third goal of the first half on a cross by Hiliary Ortiz. Near the end of the half, Ashley Carpenter scored on a cross by Erica Head.

Five minutes into the second half, Monique Ayers scored an unassisted goal followed by an Erica Head goal.

Kennedy Webb scored at 14 minutes into the half and then again with 20 minutes left in the half to end the game in an 8-0 win.

“All the girls played well, adjusting to the opponent’s defending style and using the open offensive opportunities at the midfield positions in the second half. The team continues to make needed adjustments at halftime in each game,” said Jacket coach Tabi Webb.

Nandua Boys Win Pair

Nandua topped Chincoteague 8-0 Monday as Tio Tinoco scored three goals and Christian Esteban added a pair. Seth Lewis, Osiris Tinoco and Efrain Ruiz scored one each.

Tio Tinoco, Esteban, Osiris Tinoco, Ruiz, Tanner Troyer and Jorge Alobagibiv each had one assist.

“I believe Chincoteague we’ll be fine come conference play,” said Nandua coach Paul Nolz.

On Wednesday Nandua squeaked past Arcadia 1-0 on an unassisted goal by Victor Esteban.

Nandua assistant coach C.W. Savage said, “That might have been the best game that I have ever seen Arcadia play.”

Nandua Girls Win

The Nandua girls beat Franklin 5-0 Tuesday night on the road.

Warrior goals were scored by Belen Roblero, Leslie Ibarra, Carolyn Olmsted and Ryan Wright with two. “The team played an awesome game,” said head coach Dana Wright.

Jackets Take Two

Northampton defeated Arcadia 2-0 Monday night at home as José Palacio and Billy Martinez each scored a goal. Goalie José Ibarra blocked a penalty kick and “played an awesome game,” according to Jacket coach John Gorman, who added that Arcadia “played really well and organized.

Palacio, Omar Montavio and Hunter Elliot each scored goals to lead the Jackets to a 3-0 win over Chincoteague Wednesday at home.

Correction

The first name of Arcadia’s Donovan Underwood, who scored two goals against Chincoteague last week was listed incorrectly in the May 1 issue.
Flounder Providing Angling Action; Drum Make Appearance

By Bill Sterling

Charles Carpenter of Delaware won both the Captain Zed’s Flounder Tournament and the Wachapreague Marina Flounder Tournament concluded Sunday with a 6-pound, 11-ounce fish that measured 25.25 inches. Carpenter won the first prizes of $2,500 and $2,000, respectively, with his catch.

In Captain Zed’s 25th tourney, Brandon Parks of Belle Haven was second with a 6-pound, 3-ounce flounder. Mike Flohr of Pennsylvania, the leader after the first weekend, came in third with a 6-pound, 2-ounce flounder. Tim Killmon of Wachapreague was fourth with a 5-pound, 13.5-ounce entry, and Joey Harding of Maryland took fifth with a 5-pound, 12-ounce flounder.

In the Wachapreague Marina tourney, after Carpenter’s winning entry Ben Hillis took the $1,000 second prize with a 5-pound, 15-ounce flounder. Harding was third in this tourney, and Jack Crouse took fourth with a 5-pound, 11-ounce fish. Bob Weaver was fifth with a 5-pound, 4-ounce flounder. (See more on the flounder tournaments on Page 22.)

Captain Steve’s Bait and Tackle Flounder Tournament started Wednesday with Capt. Bob’s Marina Flounder Tournament not getting underway until May 22.

Flounder are reported being caught in the Four Mouths area near Chincoteague as well as out of most seaside ports down to Oyster.

Dr. Julie Ball says there are reports of scattered catches of big reds caught off the Eastern Shore barrier islands. The best offerings for these fish are peeler crabs, blue crabs, and menhaden. Smallish black drum ranging to around 35 pounds are active in the same areas with the red drum. The black drum bite will continue to evolve over the next few weeks, and larger fish will become more common.

Red drum also are being taken along the mouths of Chesapeake Bay creeks, both trolling and bottom fishing.

Ball also informs anglers that they now can target rockfish within bay waters, but be sure to review the regulations since they have recently changed. For the 2015 season, you are allowed only one fish per person, and the fish must stretch to at least 36 inches long. In addition, now you must also possess a no-cost Trophy Season Permit to target striped bass.

Baylee Hart (left) caught and released this approximately 44-inch red drum Sunday trolling in the Chesapeake Bay. Her friend, Vera Cameron, helps her hold the fish before turning it back into the water.

Children Who Obey and Honor Their Parents

Fourth in a Five-Part Series

By Rev. Andrew Matthews MDiv

MAKING YOUR FAMILY FUNCTION can help produce children who obey and honor their parents.

Over the last four decades, there has been a gradual but distinct shift in society from an emphasis on authority to a spirit of permissiveness. This permissiveness has the motto "if it feels good, do it" and the mentality that no one has the right to control your life. This results in dysfunctional families that contribute to the fabric of dysfunctional communities. The consequence of this shift has been an increase in crime, abuse and the erosion of civility. Obedience to civil authority is necessary for a functional society, but civility will be elusive when obedience is not found in the homes of America. Obedience is not a bad word.

Children are naturally disobedient. Have you ever met a 2-year-old who needed instruction on how to disobey? There is a reason they are called "the terrible twos." Obedience to authority is a learned behavior and parents have the responsibility to teach this to children. This has to be one of the toughest aspects of parenting – how do you lead children to be obedient to authority without breaking their will and spirit. In a functional family, parental authority is for the convenience of the children, not the parents.

Every society has rules or chaos would result. I invite you to view your home, even if it is only two people, as a mini society that needs rules. Together with the rules, every society has consequences for breaking those rule. As a mini society, the family needs to establish consequences when the rules are broken. Rules and consequences are the boundaries of the family, established to identify limits as well as places of safety. Go beyond the boundaries and you will face consequences. While the rules may be different from family to family, the characteristics that make them healthy will be the same. Here are a few to ponder.

Healthy rules are thoughtful. Family rules are made though intentional and conscious thought. Healthy rules don't come on the spur of the moment, out of frustration. Instead they come out of consideration for why the rule is needed, what its purpose is and how it will benefit the members of the family. Rules just for the sake of having rules end up frustrating everyone.

Healthy rules need to come from the mutual input of both parents. The mother and father come from two different families with different rules, so to avoid conflict and confusion, they need to discuss what rules they will now establish in their new family. This will require understanding and compromise. The parents need to be united when it comes to the rules because if they are not, chaos results. You see, children are born with the capacity to divide and conquer, and if they even smell disunity, they easily can expose the divide between parents which disarms parental authority in the home. Everyone loses.

Healthy rules are reasonable and explained to the entire family. The overarching question a parent should ask when choosing a family rule is: "Is this rule good for the child?" If the rules are reasonable, parents can discuss them with their children and help the children understand the benefit of the rule.

When parents discuss the rules with the children, it is important to establish what the consequences are if the rule is broken. It's ideal if the consequences are related in some way to the rule that was broken. For example, if a child breaks a rule concerning a responsibility with his or her bike, an appropriate consequence would be some loss of privilege with the bike.

Parents need to be creative with the consequences so the child learns to redirect from crossing that boundary to obedience. It is the unthinking parent who defaults to corporal punishment in every situation.

While children will obey their parents only during those years when they are children, there is a second responsibility children have toward their parents that lasts much longer: to honor them for as long as they live. Honor means "to have high respect for." This is a result of a functional family. Children will honor their parents when the parents honor their own parents with respect, love and respect each other and respect their children as they grow up. Honor is not a rite of passage for parents, but a result of a healthy parenting style.
