Cleanliness & Godliness

Francine Payton of Horntown (at right) thanked God Wednesday that she is “instilled with the need to keep my area clean.” And the Accomack Board of Supervisors thanked her with a resolution for that effort, which has included picking up hundreds of bags of trash along nearby roads with her two granddaughters, Zariea and Jazmyne Payton. “This woman has just taken on the town,” said Barbara Mason of Agape Christian Children’s Community Center. “She wants her town to be the best it can be. She wants it to be clean.” Jenny O’Neill, former head of Waste Watchers, also praised Payton. “She’s a special person,” O’Neill said. “She leads by example. She never asks anyone to do anything she isn’t willing to do.” Said Supervisor Grayson Chesser as he presented Payton with a plaque. “I can’t even begin to name all the things she has done for her community.” If he could give his fellow supervisors anything, “it would be a clone of Francine,” he said.

Neighbors ‘Spat’ on Aquaculture Enterprise Proposed to Board

By Linda Cicoira

The food of pearls is stirring a controversy in Pungoteague Creek.

A proposed oyster farm came under fire at an Accomack Board of Supervisors meeting Wednesday night when one supervisor and some Harborton residents spoke against a request from a Belle Haven father and son to plant oysters on seven acres near Horse Hole Creek adjacent to Harborton Harbor.

The application was made to the Virginia Marine Resources Commission, which grants leases. Supervisor Donald Hart wanted the Accomack board to send a message to the VMRC opposing the business. But the other supervisors wouldn’t do it.

Daniel Mears, a senior at James Madison University, said he planned to return to the Shore after graduation “to start a small business and raise a family. We have tried to meet with the protesters on several occasions. They meet in private,” he said. “Please don’t protest my application.”

His father, Jeff Mears, said he checked into the venture before taking “the time and expense of applying. … We took their concerns seriously. I offered to meet with them and meet a compromise. We are very willing to compromise. They have held several meetings, to which we were not invited, attempting to stir up controversy (and) interrupting church.”

The elder Mears said the plantings would be at least 100 feet from all waterfront property and the oysters would be at the water’s bottom and would not interfere with local boat activity. He said the “no swimming” conditions and rocky riprap area are more dangerous than his proposal.

He listed local agencies that “want us to grow oysters. Nothing is better” to clean “the bay and its tributaries,” he said. “Please do not protest our lease.”

But other residents said the oysters would be within 10 feet of a public boat ramp and harbor.

“What this lease does is take out a large amount of water presently used by boaters adjacent to the landing,” complained George Budd, who lives in the village. It “directly abuts the landing and takes out a large swab of water. The landing was constructed with significant public funding.” They “can’t infringe on property rights,” Budd stated. “Oyster cages cannot be submerged over aquatic vegetation.”

Harborton resident Susan Mastyl also opposes the lease. While a supporter of aquaculture, she said, “We still need to make sure anything we do is done in the right way … to safeguard environment.”

Mastyl said boaters could hit the cages in the shallow water and capsize.

Denise Lawless of the area said a wider section of the creek should be used for the farm. “There’s enough room for all.”

Hart urged his colleagues to oppose the lease. “This is the only deep-water harbor Accomack County owns,” he said. “The boundary is right up to the water mark. There is a lot of recreation that goes on around here. This is where the boats load and unload. Barges for Tangier, VDOT. … It’s like a park. These citizens have a very dire concern. Just the narrowness of that area concerns me greatly,” Hart continued. “We need to go on record saying we have problems with this.”

“I just feel like I don’t know enough about this,” said Supervisor Laura Belle Gordy. “I want a chance to go see it. I support aquaculture. This young man is trying to get started. I don’t want to be against some-

Library Replacement/Renovation Considered by Supervisors Once Again

By Linda Cicoira

The discussion started Wednesday with Accomack supervisors nixing a plan to renovate the Eastern Shore Public Library and create a much-needed meeting place for themselves within the facility.

But after more conversation, the talk turned into an auction-style bidding and eventually the group promised to throw $2 million at whatever the library board of directors decides to do to improve the library, whether it be building a new structure or revamping the existing place in Accomac.

The directors left the session holding and shaking their heads since the plan they had hoped was going to pass in the existing place in Accomac.

The meeting room was designed in the plan to accommodate about 125 people instead of the 50 who filled the chamber during Wednesday’s session, leaving a dozen or more standing in the hall.

Supervisor Robert Crockett said he could not justify to his constituents spending $750,000 for the supervisors’ chamber. The size of the space would be 2,770 square feet compared to the current chamber, which is 630 square feet. The plan included an attached room for closed sessions and a separate entrance and bathrooms. It also could be used by the library for meetings and other activities.

“I don’t think the board should even be considered with this,” Supervisor Laura Belle Gordy said. “We can always go to the schools and conduct a meeting.

“We had a referendum that turned down spending $3.5 million” for the library “and you make this a second priority?” Supervisor Wanda Thornton asked the committee charged with prioritizing the county’s needs. (The top priority was an addition to the Health Department.) “I think this could be cut down in size. We’re not supposed to be building everyone’s ideal. The Eastern Shore Room? How often is that used?” she asked. “Our people are so crowded upstairs they are stacking things all over the place.”

“If you look down this list for … Capital Improvement Projects (CIP), the committee was able to solve health department, library, commonwealth’s attorney, school board and public works (needs) and still have money left over,” said Supervisor Ron Wolff, a committee member. “This is the task that the board gave us, if this is not acceptable, maybe the chairman needs to appoint a new committee.”

Voting to give the library the $2 million were Chairwoman Reneta Major, Supervisors Grayson Chesser, Donald Hart, Jack Gray, Crockett and Wolff. Supervisors Gordy, Thornton and Kay Lewis were opposed.

The library money and another approximately $4.4 million that was unanimously approved would be borrowed without a tax increase, the officials said.

Of the $4.4 million, $2 million is for the mandated Health Department needs; $250,000 is for a building for the Commonwealth Attorney’s Office, to save on rent; $475,000 is for the Public Works Office, to save on rent; and $1.54 million is for various school projects.

Crockett brought up the cost of the school’s retirement benefit program that is being phased out. He said 20 new participants signed up to get in before the May 8 deadline. The cost of the program next year would be $390,000. Crockett said that would be reduced by about $50,000 a year until it is gone.

The supervisors also presented the final draft of a Joint Land Use Study. They agreed to send the document and recommendations to the Planning Commission. The study was made to promote public safety and economic vitality and notes potential aircraft accident zones, aircraft noise zones, rocket range hazard areas, EMI and radar interference and coastal resiliency.

The committee recommends that the county establish an Accomack-Wallops Working Group (AWWG); include information in the Comprehensive Plan; pursue grants and/or supplemental funding for implementation; identify county strategies to address incompatibilities within the Wallops aircraft clear zone; establish a review process for requests relating to development of wind turbines, cell towers, and radio frequency emitters or structures; get NASA/Navy to notify Accomack and the AWWG of offshore energy development to identify potential interference; establish a rocket hazard notification area; establish a WFF Aircraft Operations Overlay District and amend the county ordinances for compatible land use in several zones and affected areas; adopt measures for full real-estate disclosure with respect to properties located in aircraft accident potential and noise zones; pursue Virginia legislation to amend required disclosures to include military aircraft operations on non-military airfields; provide information regarding incentives for retrofits to windows on existing buildings within the range hazard area; encourage the application of noise lessening measures; and develop a plan for mitigating and/or accommodating the effects of recurrent flooding, storm surge events, and sea level rise for the Wallops facilities.

The supervisors also rehearsed a proposed contract between the county and the Town of Onancock for wastewater treatment. The county had considered building its own plant.

Crockett said by going with the town, the county’s customers would get a cheaper rate. Thornton argued that it would be the most expensive rate in the state. In the end, the board approved counteroffer changes 6-3. Crockett, Hart, Gray, Chesser, Gordy and Major favored it. Lewis, Thornton and Wolff were opposed.
Fire Destroys House Near Onancock

By Linda Cicoira

Firefighters battled a blaze last Saturday that destroyed a large home near Onancock belonging to Steve and Jenny Cody. No one was home.

Interim Public Safety Director C. Ray Pruitt said the 12,000-square-foot-plus home on Finney’s Wharf Road was reported to have smoke and flames showing when firefighters arrived at around 1 p.m.

About 30 firefighters from 10 companies from Accomack and one from Northampton responded to the fire, Onancock Chief Adam James reported. A volunteer got overheated and dehydrated and was treated at the local hospital, but is fine, James said.

Initially, Pruitt said, firefighters tried to knock down the blaze with an interior attack. The fire was on the first and second floors. “They were pushed out due to heat and flames” and had to try to contain it from the exterior. Because the house was so large and the fire so advanced, the home was a total loss.

James cautiously talked about the incident since State Police are investigating it. A cause was not determined by press time Thursday.

Firefighters were on the scene for about seven hours.

James said there was a fire at the same house on April 7. The source of the fire, which was contained to one wing of the house, was determined to be electrical, he said.
Del. Bloxom Announces for Re-election

Delegate of the 100th District, Robert S. Bloxom Jr., announced Monday that he will be seeking re-election to the Virginia House of Delegates.

“As my first term as your representative in Richmond comes to an end, I want to thank my constituents for their support of my family and me,” he said. “It is a responsibility that I do not take lightly. I would also like to thank all those I called to ask their opinion on legislation during the 2015 Session. These folks are invaluable as they have the expertise in specific areas and can catch unforeseen issues we, the legislators, may have overlooked. I am so grateful.

“It is with much excitement I announce my intention to seek re-election to the Virginia House of Delegates. If I am fortunate enough to win the election, I will serve with congeniality and honor while representing the 100th District in Richmond. It has been a privilege serving the people of the Eastern Shore, where I was born and raised, and I look forward to continuing my service to the community for years to come.”

Bloxom and his wife, Lou, reside in Parksley and are the parents of three children, Blaire, Madison and Brant. The delegate graduated from the University of Richmond and returned to the Shore to take over the family business. He is the owner of Bloxom Auto Supply Co., in Mappsville and Shore Tire & Auto in Onley. He is also the owner and operator of Egret Point Seafood Company.

Bloxom is a member of Grace United Methodist Church, where he serves as chairman of the Church Council. He also is a member of Onancock Rotary, and director of the Economic Development Authority. During his first term as delegate, Bloxom was appointed to the Governor’s Aerospace Advisory Council, the Joint Subcommittee to Formulate Recommendations to Address Recurrent Flooding, the House Agriculture, Chesapeake and Natural Resources Committee, the House Finance Committee and the House Science and Technology Committee.

Accomack’s School Board adopted a 2015-16 calendar for its workers and students, made cuts to balance its budget and was presented with plans for the upcoming term’s STEM (Science Technology, Engineering & Mathematics) program Tuesday evening.

The calendar that was chosen was among three proposals and passed in a 6-1 vote with member Audrey Furness casting the only “no” vote. Member Paul Bull was absent.

School will begin in the next term on Sept. 8, the first Monday after Labor Day, and end on June 16. Teachers will start on Aug. 25.

Vacations will include three days for Thanksgiving, 10 days for Winter Break and six days for Spring Break.

Twenty-two hours will be left over for use in inclement weather. There are also 10 days of inclement weather built in.

A committee and Superintendent Dr. Kregg Cuellar recommended this calendar. Furness wanted more input from teachers before deciding.

The board voted unanimously to balance its upcoming budget by buying six school buses instead of 11 and postponing the purchase of a maintenance pick-up truck for a year.

A report of the STEM program showed Arcadia High has a 3D printer and robotics and is “getting our kids ready for college competition” by exposing the students to engineering, welding and computer system technologies.

Arcadia assistant principal T.J. Johnson said NASA Wallops Flight Facility, Orbital Sciences Corp. and Eastern Shore Community College (ESCC) have gotten involved.

Assistant principal Karen Taylor of Chincoteague High said more than 50 students graduated from the fire academy in preparation for jobs in forensics or Homeland Security, emergency management or OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration), or as a fire marshal, firefighter or chief, fire inspector or investigator.

With the new hospital in Onley being constructed, George Parker of Nandua High said the STEM program there will include nursing programs.

“A lot of parents would like to see students stay home and make decent salaries,” said Parker. Students will be able to work toward affiliated medical services, learn CPR and basic first aid, earn credits toward an associate’s degree and get an advanced high-school diploma.

Secondary Schools Coordinator Tamara Sterling also spoke of initiatives for middle-school pupils. “Eighth graders are applying for programs,” she said. “Students are very excited. “We did meet with (ESCC President) Dr. (Linda) Glover. She is so excited with this program.”

Sterling said the division also will be working with Old Dominion University for a “pipeline for our students ... special needs students will have access as well.”
Exmore Police Department

The man who was shot in the leg in the parking lot of the Sage Diner in Exmore last month has been accused of four gun crimes in connection with the incident.

Exmore Police Chief Angelo DiMartino said Aaron Bowens, 19, of A.S. West Road in Painter was charged with attempted malicious wounding, use of a firearm in a felony, reckless handling of a firearm and discharging a firearm in a public place on April 19. The first two crimes are felonies.

A brawl started inside the restaurant, where Bowens was hit with a bottle and beaten.

“Bowens left the bar,” the chief explained. He was “escorted out by security, went to his vehicle at the north end of the building and retrieved a firearm and went back towards the crowd that was coming out of the bar and opened fire,” said DiMartino. “As far as we know right now, he did not injure anyone.”

“Someone from the crowd opened fire back on … Bowen and that’s when he was struck,” DiMartino added.

No one had been arrested at press time Thursday for shooting Bowens, who now has to use crutches.

Bowens is being held without bond in Eastern Shore Regional Jail. Accomack Deputy Julian Sharp assisted by placing him under arrest and taking him into custody, the chief reported.

After the gunfire was exchanged, Bowens was helped into the back seat of a black Pontiac sedan that fled. The resulting high-speed chase, with speeds sometimes in excess of 100 miles per hour, involved three police cars. Eventually, the Pontiac slowed and two men exited while it was moving, leaving Bowens in the back seat. He was rushed to Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital and later taken to a Hampton Roads facility where he was treated and released.

Six men were arrested that night. Two counts of malicious wounding by a mob and two counts of assault and battery by a mob were made against Antwine Mason, 28, of Exmore; Julius Tankard, 38, of Portsmouth; his brother, James Tankard, 31, of Exmore; Keyon Cherry, 27, of Exmore; Dominic Powell, 25, of Exmore; and Ambrose Cuffee, 31, of Birdsnest.

Mason and both Tankards also were charged with abduction. Julius Tankard, Cuffee and Powell were charged with malicious wounding.

Two charges of malicious wounding, two counts of assault and battery, felony attempting to hinder an investigation and obstruction of justice also were made against James Tankard. Cuffee also was charged with maliciously causing bodily injury.

Judge W. Revell Lewis III set secured bail at $10,000 for Cuffee Wednesday on the condition that he stay away from the Sage, have no contact with any “alleged victims or encourage anyone to have contact with them on his behalf.”

U.S. District Court

A former Parksley business owner who admitted to receiving more than $7.2 million in fraudulent tax refunds by using fake identities of illegal residents was ordered Wednesday in U.S. District Court to make restitution and serve 12 years in prison.

Linda Avila, 50, of Littleton Road in Bloxom, who operated Las Tres Mujeres (Spanish for “The Three Women”) filed more than 1,700 tax returns using stolen identities used by from Mexican immigrants. According to records, 44 returns were fraudulent.

She was sentenced to 10 years for conspiracy and two years for fraud and immediately taken into custody by the U.S. Marshal Service.

Her enterprise “held itself out to be a landscaping and cleaning business” that was established in December 2000, according to the court. The “scheme” was conducted between December 2010 and February 2012, the records state. The income tax returns were mailed to the IRS from Norfolk and Wilmington and Frankford, Del. The refund checks were cashed at “small convenience stores on the Eastern Shore of Virginia.”

Avila signed documents surrendering her assets so that restitution could be gained. Court records did not state the value of those belongings. What was shown was that from December 2010 to February 2012, Avila and others “known and unknown to the grand jury” conspired to defraud the IRS. “As part of the conspiracy … Avila and others … sought out illegal aliens who were working under the names of other persons at various businesses on the Eastern Shore. … The names and personal identifiers used by the illegal aliens belonged to actual United States citizens.”

Upon release, she must pay $250 a month until the debt is paid.

Northampton Circuit Court

It was quiet in the spectators’ area of Northampton Circuit Court Wednesday. A Birdsnest man, whose conviction last October caused a ruckus, was sentenced for beating an Exmore boy with a baseball bat.

Elijah Jordan Carpenter, 21, was shown mercy by Judge W. Revell Lewis, who allowed him to be in a youthful offender program for an indeterminate period up to four years for the offense.

Carpenter also was given a 20-year suspended sentence and ordered to pay $20,500 for the victim’s medical bills and $12,300 for implants he needed.

“It’s probably the best next step instead of prison,” Carpenter said. “I feel like it could help me build on my future.”

Since he has been in jail, “I feel like I’ve grown into a man … this is not a place I want to be. … I’d like to apologize to him (the victim) and his family … we shouldn’t have let the matter go that far.”

Assistant Commonwealth’s Attorney Beverly Leatherbury said the victim was a juvenile who was going “to a location in Exmore with friends” when he was “struck with a baseball bat in the mouth and was taken by surprise.” Leatherbury said he lost five teeth and his jaw had to be wired.

Lashaun T. Anderson, 29, of Jamesville was sentenced to five years for attempting to extort money from Glenn Beasley by making threats against him and his family on Feb. 2, 2014. Half of the sentence was suspended.

Garrett Evan Waters, 25, of Exmore was sentenced for receiving two stolen scooters to three years in prison, with all but three months suspended.

Eastville Site Officially Designated as Worth Preserving

For over a century, efforts to preserve historic items as well as locations in Virginia have fallen on the shoulders of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, the first statewide historic preservation group in the United States.

In 2003, the organization adopted the name APVA Preservation Virginia to reflect a broader focus on statewide preservation, later shortening it to Preservation Virginia. Preservation Virginia owns a number of historic sites throughout the state.

On Monday, Rebecca Larys of Preservation Virginia visited Northampton County's seat of Eastville to announce that the courthouse square there will be added to the list of threatened locations that it seeks to help preserve.

Addressing a modest crowd gathered on the Courthouse Green, Larys spoke of the importance of the Eastville site as one of only a few in the nation that is intact with many of its original structures dating back to the late 1800s. The Eastville complex consists of the 1899 courthouse, portions of the 1795 courthouse, a debtors' prison, a clerk's office, and a number of lawyers offices and commercial buildings.

In addition, located on the site are the last two jails used in the county prior to the opening of Eastern Shore Regional Jail in 2007. The jail opened in 1899 with the courthouse, as well as a jail built in 1914, are both in need of serious restoration if they are not to be lost forever. In Northampton County, the lack of funding to preserve the structures has led to a search for other groups interested in assuming the responsibility for saving the buildings.

Northampton Board of Supervisors Chairman Rick Hubbard told the gathering that in the past few years, various supervisors have sought ways to help fund the costs of preserving the buildings. But the county, with limited revenue and increasing demands, has been unable to designate money for the unoccupied structures.

While the designation by Preserve Virginia does not provide funding for the structures on the Courthouse Green, it serves as a conduit for organizations and individuals focused on preservation issues and as such may become a catalyst to encourage others to help preserve these historic buildings.

Carrie Jacobson’s Art
To Be Shown

Wachapreague artist Carrie Jacobson has been accepted this year into some of the top art festivals in the country, including shows in Northampton, Mass.; Ann Arbor, Mich.; and Columbus, Ohio.

Jacobson, an award-winning oil painter, uses a palette knife to make her vividly colored pieces. Her paintings incorporate enough paint to build up a nearly sculptural surface on her landscapes, cowscapes and floral paintings. Pet portraits are a specialty of hers.

Jacobson participated in the Stockley Gardens Arts Festival in Norfolk, May 16-17.

Jacobson will show her paintings at the highly competitive Paradise City Arts Festival in Northampton, Mass., over Memorial Day weekend.

The festivals in Columbus and Ann Arbor will take place June 12-14 and July 15-18, respectively.

“Our harbor and marina are the life-blood of our town,” said Wachapreague Mayor Fred Janci. He said the problem is land loss on Cedar Island. “We’ve seen considerable shoaling, been told it is not federal. Wachapreague is kind of on its own … we strongly endorse your proposal for this committee … I’m sure it will be a long struggle.”

Greenbackville has an issue too. The busy harbor there needs refurbishing estimated to cost $375,000. Spokesman Bob Wright said that of the 68 slips, 56 are affected. “The condition is really deteriorating,” he said of the area that is used by 23 commercial crabbers, three commercial netters and six charter boats. “It is one of the best boat ramps” in the county. “We need your help; we don’t generate enough money.”

Public Works Director Stewart Hall said a grant might be available to take the local cost down to about $100,000.

Supervisor Ron Wolff said the quarter-mile Greenbackville dock is in bad shape. “If you hit the lose boards the wrong way, they could come back and smack you in the face,” he said.

Supervisor Grayson Chesser objected to the wording in Hart’s motion.

“The water business is sort of like farming. It’s not all pretty. That’s part of it,” said Chesser. “You can’t have it both ways. To me I don’t think we should go there with that part of it.”

“I don’t mind us saying we hope VMRC will take a good look at not hampering access,” Chesser continued. “Aquaculture you got pipes. You got cages. You got cages pulled up rusting out. It’s not all beautiful but it’s the way we make a living. They seem to be willing to work things out.”

“We need to come to the wording in Hart’s motion,” she added. “You can go to the (VMRC) meeting and speak if you have objections.”

In another water-related issue, the board voted to set up a work committee to study the need for a Regional Navigable Waterways Committee. The resolution calls for two citizens and two supervisors from Accomack and Northampton counties to be appointed to the panel.

Councilman John Joeckel of Wachapreague supported the move and complained about the need for dredging. “We need to be more unified,” he said. “We’re not organized. We need to come at the problem on a regional basis. Chincoteague and Tangier and Wachapreague. People who are organized and come with a plan … are the ones who will get the money.”

Major retorted. “Grayson is right,” she said. “I look out my window. There’s a little crab shack place … he doesn’t bother me because he’s making a living. That’s part of living on the water. I like it because it’s part of the Eastern Shore.”

“We as supervisors need to be attuned,” she added. “You can go to the (VMRC) meeting and speak if you have objections.”

“Here we have a young man coming back to the Shore,” said Chairwoman Reneta Major. “I did the same thing.”

“If the VMRC is going to make the final decision, why do we need to make an opinion?” she asked.

But Hart was adamant. “Because the county is the adjoining property owner,” he answered.

“If the VMRC has the final say, let them say,” Major retorted.

Supervisor Wanda Thornton did not want to comment. “Grayson is right,” she said. “If you come to the window, there’s a little crab shack place … he doesn’t bother me because he’s making a living. That’s part of living on the water. I like it because it’s part of the Eastern Shore.”

“I don’t mind us saying we hope VMRC will take a good look at not hampering access,” Chesser continued. “Aquaculture you got pipes. You got cages. You got cages pulled up rusting out. It’s not all beautiful but it’s the way we make a living. They seem to be willing to work things out.”

“What’s going to hurt the citizens and the businesses?” she asked.

“But Hart was adamant. “Because the county is the adjoining property owner,” he answered.

“If the VMRC has the final say, let them say,” Major retorted.

A Few Neighbors Share Warm-Weather Favorites

By Linda Cicora

Immersing themselves in water and then flapping their arms and legs until they reach their goal (or swimming) is the warm-weather sport the majority of people in Accomack and Northampton counties favor best, according to a survey conducted this week by the Eastern Shore Post.

Twenty-eight percent of those who responded picked taking a dip. Coming in second was reading with 17 percent and tying for third with 11 percent each were baseball, golfing and fishing. Shopping and kayaking also were mentioned.

The beach beat out a boat ride 47 percent to 32 percent, with another 14 percent of participants saying they couldn’t pick between the two because they love both activities so much.

“I used to be a beach person, without a doubt,” Karen Simpson of Quinby wrote. “I tied in a ‘blackest back’ contest the summer of my sophomore high school year ... I love motoring out to the barrier islands in our Carolina skiff.”

“Don’t wait. Put yourself in first place. Life isn’t about the finish line, but the journey getting there. Varicose veins are a medical condition that you don’t have to live with. Now is the time to take care of your painful veins. Call today.”

DON’T WAIT.

Marianne Kibler of Onancock chose AC. “But we actually use both at times to direct the window AC and usually keep the ceiling fan going.”

“That’s like asking scotch on the rocks or water on the rocks,” said Dan Hillman of Locustville, who apparently likes air-conditioning best.

Carrie Jacobson of Wachapreague, a painter, not only pays to have her lawn cut but she uses the worker as a model. “Justin Carey takes about 20 minutes, twice a month,” she offered.

Most people (nearly 70 percent) choose to wear sandals in the warmer months. Tennis shoes or sneakers got only 21 percent of the tally and 2 percent insist on going barefoot even though it wasn’t offered as an option.

And who takes care of the lawn? It was close. Forty-eight percent of participants claim the job while 52 percent don’t. For those who push or ride, the average time it took them per week was 2.5 hours.

“Both” was also the answer given by Ewell. “Flowers for fragrance and beauty and veggies to fill my belly up. There’s nothing like a fresh tomato, right off the vine, cut up in wedges with vinegar, salt and pepper and a sprinkle of sugar.”

Baseball Journey for Webb Started at Home

By Bill Sterling

Baseball rides are the life of a minor league baseball player, but the bus ride Tyler Webb took last week was a bit different.

Aboard a bus that included the Scranton/Wilkes Barre RailRiders for an almost seven-hour drive to Norfolk for a three-game series with the Tides, Webb could eventually gaze outside his window and see the place where his baseball journey began.

“It was definitely strange to look out and see your hometown and not be able to stop,” said Webb after reaching Norfolk on a trip that took him through Virginia’s Eastern Shore. “I don’t get a chance to get home very much, but I knew I would be seeing a lot of my family on this trip.”

The bus that carried Webb and his teammates passed within a long fly ball of the ballpark where he first played the game as a 5-year-old T-baller. He could see the insurance business where his mother, Kristin, works with his grandfather. His Nassawadox hometown and not be able to stop,” said Webb after reaching Norfolk on a trip that took him through Virginia’s Eastern Shore. “I don’t get a chance to get home very much, but I knew I would be seeing a lot of my family on this trip.”

The bus that carried Webb and his teammates passed within a long fly ball of the ballpark where he first played the game as a 5-year-old T-baller. He could see the insurance business where his mother, Kristin, works with his grandfather. His Nassawadox home is just down the road from the Route 13 intersection. He could probably jog there before the signal changed if the bus stopped for a red light. Farther down the road, the 2009 Northampton High School graduate could see his high school where he first attracted the recruiters, leading him to four years at the University of South Carolina, where he pitched for two national championship teams and played on a third that reached the final game.

You don’t just one day appear on a major league roster. It is a journey that requires sacrifice, hard work and plenty of help along the way. Webb is now one step away from realizing that boyhood dream — but he never forgets and always appreciates the people who helped him reach this point.

He had the advantage of a father, Kirk, who was a pretty fair pitcher in high school and later at Old Dominion University. “My dad was also left-handed and he helped me build a solid foundation when I was younger,” said Webb recently.

He also had parents who provided him opportunities to get further instruction. “I had a pitching coach I went to in the middle-school and high-school years named Jamie Evans. He was a big help with mechanics and learning off-speed pitches. He also got me hooked up with different travel teams, which allowed me to get exposure for college,” said Webb.

Webb was also blessed. He grew to be 6’6” and had a strong left arm. But it wasn’t always easy. In fact, there was a low point when all his dreams seemed to be dashed.

Prior to his junior year of high school, Webb was pitching in a travel league game where college recruiters would be in attendance when he felt something snap in his arm. It turned out he needed Tommy John surgery to repair the damaged ligament in his elbow. He thought everything he had worked for might be gone. But his parents paid out-of-pocket for the surgery performed by Dr. James Andrews, one of the most acclaimed orthopedic surgeons in the world.

South Carolina stuck with Webb, and it paid off when he played key roles in those two national championships and then in his senior season was named to All-American teams when he was among the nation’s leaders with 17 saves. He is the all-time career leader in appearances among pitchers at South Carolina with 106.

His parents made the eight-hour trip to Columbia to see him pitch almost every home weekend for four years during Webb’s college career. They also made the car trip to Omaha, Neb., three straight years for the College World Series, staying two weeks each year when the Gamecocks reached the final game all three seasons.

But professional baseball is a different existence. It can be a lonely life. Last week, a contingent of maybe 50 Eastern Shoremen, including Webb’s parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and friends, was sitting behind the Scranton/Wilkes Barre dugout, hoping to see him pitch. But after having pitched two scoreless innings at home on Sunday, Webb was held out of the three-game series against Norfolk.

He had the chance to greet his family and friends following the games, but after a day game on Wednesday, he boarded a bus and was off to Durham, N.C., with the RailRiders, now in the midst of 23 games without a day off.

There usually are only eight off days in a minor league season that starts in early April and ends in early September. At the Triple A level, at least for Scranton/Wilkes Barre, all travel is by bus, even to faraway locations like Indianapolis, Ind., and Gwinnett, Ga.

“If the trip is going to be more than nine hours, we use sleeper buses, where we can get some rest on the trip,” said Webb. “But it is definitely a grind as the season goes on.”

Among his favorite road destinations are Durham and Charlotte, N.C., both easy drives for his wife, Lauren, a nurse who works in Columbia, S.C., and lives in their home there. They met as students at the University of South Carolina and were married last December, with many of his former Gamecock teammates attending.

He had a chance last week to talk to one of those teammates and a college roommate, Christian Walker, who plays first base for the Norfolk Tides.

“It can get lonely at times,” said Webb last week from Norfolk, “but you have your teammates and then you count the days until you play at a place where you see your family and your wife.”

Meanwhile, Webb works at his craft, looking to improve his slider to the point he can rely on it as an out pitch to complement his two best pitches, a 91-mile-per-hour fastball and a changeup. After moving up from Single A to Triple A in 2014, playing at three locations, Webb has a respectable 3.63 ERA facing potential and past big leaguers this season.

Back in Nassawadox, his parents are following his twin sisters, Taylor and Kennedy, to high-school volleyball and soccer games. Now juniors, both girls will be attending Randolph College to play volleyball.

“It looks like Mom and Dad are going to rack up some more miles on the Suburban,” said Tyler, who knows full well the importance of the support of family and friends.

Chincoteague Enters Conference Play Unbeaten

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

The Chincoteague baseball team was off this week, awaiting the start of conference play on Tuesday, May 26, and Wednesday, May 27, when the unbeaten Ponies likely will host the opening game and the championship game if they win the tourney opener.

Chincoteague, 17-0 on the season and the Shore District champion, did not know its first-round opponent at press time Thursday.

Nandua 5, Mathews 2

Jake Guy led the Warrior offense with three hits and two RBIs. Hunter Hickman had a double and Evan McGregor had a single for the only other Nandua hits.

Brandon Brewster started and allowed two runs in 4.1 innings while striking out four. Michael McCluskey allowed three runs over the final 1.2 innings.

Warriors Top Jackets

Nandua defeated Northampton 18-2 last Thursday.

John Kilmon had two hits, including a double and three RBIs. Matthew Teasley, Brandon Brewster, Jake Guy and Garrett Baylis each scored two runs. Trey Burnley, Casey Smith, Guy and Baylis each had a hit.

Arcadia Over Jackets

Arcadia’s Austin Bagwell pitched a complete game, striking out 10 and allowing one run to lead the Firebirds to a 14-1 win over Northampton Tuesday.

Dom Seimiensky was 3 for 3 with two doubles and two RBIs. Nishant Patel, Zach Mills, Dalton McDaniel and Conner Brassure also had hits.
Nandua Wins Shore District Softball Title 7th Straight Year

By Bill Sterling

The Nandua softball team capped the season with a 14-2 record Monday with a 7-4 win over Mathews on the road.

The Warriors completed their district season with a perfect 9-0 record, marking the seventh straight season they have gone unbeaten in the district.

Kimberly Wert had three hits, including two doubles, and pitched three scoreless innings to close out the game.

The Lady Warriors broke a 4-4 tie in the top of the seventh inning when Sarah Gepes and Caroline Harvie singled, then scored on a double by Wert, who then came home on a single by Chandler Davis.

Gepes had two hits and scored three runs at the top of the lineup. Davis and Michaela Wescott had two hits each with Davis and Wert each collecting two RBIs.

Sussex Tops Warriors

Sussex jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first inning with a three-run homer by Morgan Bruto and a sacrifice fly by Hayley McCabe, who also held the Warriors scoreless on the mound while striking out five and allowing five hits.

The Warriors were led by Derrica Toppin on offense with two hits and Kimberly Wert with a double. Sarah Gepes and Caroline Harvie also each had a single.

Toppin settled down after the first inning and held Sussex scoreless from that point.

Arcadia Nips Northampton

Arcadia’s Liz Liddle had a game-winning single with two outs in the seventh inning for a walk-off 7-6 win over Northampton. The Firebirds rallied for three runs in the bottom of the seventh after entering the sixth inning with a 4-2 lead. Northampton’s Makayla Wilson and Meghan Walpole tied the game with run-scoring singles in the sixth, and then the Jackets took a 6-4 lead by pushing two runs across in the seventh. Brianna Williams walked in all four plate appearances for the Jackets.

Sarah Jones had two hits, including a bases-loaded three-run double, and also earned the win on the mound with seven strong innings, striking out five.

Taylor Lewis and Logan Holland had two hits each.

“We hit the ball really well,” said Arcadia coach Richard Strautz. “We’ve lost some close ballgames this season, and it was good to pull one out with that last-inning rally.”

BA Falls in State Semis

Broadwater fell to Southampton Academy 13-3 in the Virginia Independent Schools Athletic Association semi-final softball game last Thursday in Dinwiddie.

Eighth-grader Greta Bunce collected two of the Vikings’ five hits and scored two runs.

Caitland Hill had a double and an RBI and scored a run. Anna Sexauer was 1 for 1 with a walk. Elizabeth Floyd had a hit and scored a run. Madison Wessells also had a solid hit and an RBI.

Natavia Wharton took the loss, but was hurt by Viking defensive lapses which led to eight unearned runs.

Coach Noble Palmer said his young Vikings, without a senior, scored more runs than any Division 3 team all season against Southampton’s Brooke Mizelle, Division 3 VISAA state player of the year who has signed to pitch for Salisbury University next season.

Broadwater Boys & Girls Place 3rd in VISAA State Track Meet

The Broadwater boys’ and girls’ track and field teams both placed third at the VISAA Track & Field Championships in Richmond last Saturday. The Vikings competed with Division II teams, based on enrollment.

“We met and exceeded all expectations of ourselves going in,” said Viking coach Eric Hack.

Lauren McClaskey was named Division 2 Most Valuable Field Event Athlete. She scored 34 points: winning the long jump with a distance of 15-01.75, second in the high jump in 4-02, third in the triple jump with a leap of 28-08, fourth place in the 300-meter hurdles and fifth in the 100-meter hurdles.

Major Morgan won the state championship in the high jump, clearing 5 feet, 10 inches.

Tommy Golibart was third in the long jump (19-08.25, 2” out of first place), and second in the triple jump (41-00.25, ½” out of first).

Taylor Major, despite hurting his knee in the long jump, was third in the high jump (5-06), sixth in the long jump, third in the shot put (41-02.5), and fifth in the discus throw (108-05.5).

Dontae Weatherly was fifth in the shot put (39-06) and fourth in the discus throw (108-08).

The boys’ 4x800 team set a new school record, finishing sixth. It was composed of Jack Buchholz, Jacob McClaskey, Nick Gomer, and Jackson Rose.

Tyler Major, despite hurting his hamstring earlier in the season, ran a gutsy anchor leg of the 4x100-meter relay to take that team to a sixth-place finish.

Kelly Reagan, John Gordon, and Tommy Golibart also ran legs on that relay.

Having never scored a point at the state meet before, the Broadwater girls’ team finished just 5.3 points out of second place.

In addition to McClaskey’s MVP performance, the Broadwater girls’ 4x100-meter team finished in seventh place at the meet. It was composed of Jazmine Evans, Emily Kellam, Samantha Coulbourne, and Julie Xiong.

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

The Northampton girls’ soccer team defeated Nandua twice in five days to win the Shore District soccer title. The two schools are the only programs in the district to field a girls’ soccer team.

Last Thursday, Kennedy Webb scored two goals and Taylor Webb and Michelle Martinez each scored one as the Northampton girls defeated district rival Nandua 4-0. The Lady Jackets led only 1-0 on a Taylor Webb goal 13 minutes into the first half. Kennedy Webb scored early in the second half to give Northampton a 2-0 lead and scored again in the half off a pass from Stephane Kellam. Martinez scored on a direct kick.

“The girls played cohesively and passed the ball well, keeping the intensity up until the end,” said Jacket coach Tabi Webb. “Michelle Martinez had an outstanding game as did Kennedy Webb. Nandua’s passing has improved.”

Senior captains Nadia Hughes and Caroline Hiler, who have played for Coach Webb since the eighth grade, were honored before the game.

Taylor Webb, Ashlyn Arnold and Martinez each scored goals to lead Northampton to a 3-0 win over Nandua Tuesday. The Warriors held Northampton to a scoreless 0-0 tie and just barely missed on shots by Ryan Wright that hit the cross bar.

Jackets Top Firebirds

Northampton walloped Arcadia 10-2 in soccer Monday as Sammy Pineda scored three goals and Jesus Maldonado added a pair. Bayron Ortiz, Billy Martinez, Jose Palacio, Hunter Elliott and Gerardo Santos each scored one.

Northampton hosts Nandua tonight with a 7 o’clock start.

Nandua Takes on Heavyweights

The Nandua soccer team lost to two larger schools with strong programs this week, falling to Kings Fork 3-0 last Friday and then being edged out by Smithfield 2-1 Monday night at home. Smithfield has only one defeat on the season.

Efrain Ruiz scored first for Nandua with an assist by Osiris Tinico to give the Warriors a 1-0 lead, but Smithfield tied the score with less than two minutes left in the half on a Gunter Copeland goal. The Packers scored the game winner at the 18:45 mark of the second half.

Happy 101st Birthday, Teresa “Tita” deGavre, born in Oxford, England, on 22 May 1914!!!

She and her husband, Brigadier General Chet deGavre — renowned airborne pioneer and woodcarver — moved to the Shore 60 years ago when they purchased Deep Creek Plantation. For the next several years, they lovingly, and with painstaking attention to detail, authentically restored this historic home, often opening it and the beautiful grounds for Garden Week.

A true lover of the Shore, Tita has not only placed her home and the 100 acres in the Virginia Eastern Shore Land Trust, but she has also been an active and enthusiastic supporter of the Garden Club of Virginia and the Investment Club, served on the vestry of the St James Episcopal Church in Accomac and on the board of the Riverside Hospital Ball Committee, and has been a loyal contributor to numerous charitable organizations — CBES, Foodbank, etc…If it is Eastern Shore, she supports it!

MANY HAPPY RETURNS, TITA!!

Dear Editor:

Lately, while driving up and down Route 13, I’ve noticed an animal rights billboard. It shows a friendly-looking black-and-brown dog with big distressed letters that say “DON’T CHAIN ME!” I love the message — people should never leave their dogs outside indefinitely, chained up or locked in a pen.

Honestly, if that’s what you’re going to do, I don’t see the point in having a dog at all. In that capacity, it’s sort of an ugly lawn decoration that barks, poops, and requires feeding.

There’s another story to tell here, though. There are people who don’t tie up their dogs, but they don’t appear do anything else, either. The dogs are given free run to do as they please. I suppose if you live way out in the country, that’s fine. Not so much when you live on a heavily traveled road. Your 60-pound, half-trained, unrestrained dog is a danger to itself. It’s also a danger to cyclists and pedestrians (two trends that are only getting more popular, at least until some politician tries to take credit for it). If it’s a big dog, it could really hurt somebody. I don’t care how sweet she is when she’s around her owners. I don’t care how many flies she wouldn’t hurt.

You have to take some responsibility. Interface with your dog. Walk it. Train it. Let it sleep indoors, for crying out loud. Make sure your dog is safe from the world, and make sure the world is safe from your dog.

If people aren’t going to take responsibility for their animals, I wish somebody would. I’ve been told we have a real deficiency in animal control services in our county. There’s apparently a leash law on the books, but it isn’t enforced. There are neighborhoods around here that are simply littered with strays (though I’ve noticed an improvement in the last year), but our animal shelter is full and our animal control officers are stretched too thin. Something’s got to give.

Ben Spiker, Parksley
