A PRODUCT OF HIS OWN ADVICE

Lt. Gov. Ralph S. Northam addresses the Nandua High School graduates at the commencement last Friday night. Seated (from left) are assistant principal Harold Holmes, Accomack Superintendent Dr. Kregg Cuellar, and principal Brian Patterson. Dr. Northam, who grew up on the Shore, has a pediatric neurology practice in Norfolk, told the graduates that except for his parents and God, the educators in his life had more influence on him than anybody. He concluded by asking the graduates to use their cell phones to call their parents, particularly their mothers, and tell them they love them. (Shore valedictorians are announced on Page 9.)

Zoning Proposals Spark Opposition

By Ron West

During the public input segment of Tuesday’s meeting of the Northampton Board of Supervisors, a number of speakers spoke in opposition to the proposed Zoning Ordinance changes. In addition, three related letters were read into the record.

A letter from developer Eileen Kirkwood stated her opposition to changes to setbacks that might result in the introduction of poultry houses in the county. Kirkwood claimed the Accomack County codes related to poultry houses pose a problem to property owners and potentially harm nearby waterways and aquafarming operations.

A letter from Price Clark opposed the changes for the same reasons.

Wardtown resident Ken Dufty presented written as well as verbal comments regarding the proposed changes, charging that they are a blatant attempt by

The November General Election will decide four hotly contested races for seats on the Accomack Board of Supervisors, according to tallies taken after the registration deadline Tuesday.

In District 2, Supervisor Ron S. Wolff, an Independent, is being challenged by Planning Commissioner Stephen D. “Steve” Corazza, a Republican.

In District 4, Supervisor Kay W. Lewis, an Independent, is opposed by Paul E. Muhly, a political activist who is also running as an Independent. Lewis has held the post for one four-year term.

District 5, Supervisor John C. “Jack” Gray, a former School Board member and retired educator,

Election races have crossed the starting line in Northampton County, where the heats for prosecutor, sheriff and commissioner of the revenue will come to a finish at the upcoming November General Election. There are also contests for seats on the Board of Supervisors and School Board.

Commonwealth’s Attorney Bruce D. Jones Jr. of Franktown is asking for a seventh four-year term. Garrett Dunham, another Eastville lawyer who lives in Cape Charles, is the challenger. It is the second time Jones has had competition.

None of the candidates are running through a political party.

State Sen. Lynwood Lewis and Del. Robert (Rob) S. Bloxom may have to fight to keep their jobs in the November elections.

Richard Ottinger, a Republican Norfolk lawyer, is challenging Lewis, a Democrat and Accomac lawyer who represents the 6th District. Lewis, a former state delegate, won the Senate seat in a special election last year after Lt. Gov. Ralph Northam left it to take his new post.

Two Shore men will have a rematch for delegate of the 100th District. Bloxom, the Republican incumbent, is a Mappsville businessman and son of a long-time state representative. He beat out Willie C. Randall, a financial adviser and Democrat who lives in Cape Charles, in the last election when the post became vacant after Lewis was elected senator. Randall is trying again.
County Refutes Atlantic Town Center Lawsuit

By Linda Cicoira

The Accomack Board of Supervisors wants the county circuit court to dismiss an $8 million lawsuit filed last month against it in connection with Atlantic Town Center’s (ATC) proposed development in Wattsville.

Attorney Andrew McRoberts of the firm Sands Anderson in Richmond, which represents the board, argued the complaint “is not sufficient at law, does not state a cause of action and fails to state a claim and/or facts upon which the relief demanded can be granted.”

He further stated that contrary to the complaint, “state law does not preclude the county from requiring a conditional use permit for a central water and sewer facility” and that the 11 conditions contained in a permit approved by the supervisors on April 22, 2014, “are valid.”

“The conditions … do not exceed the board’s authority to grant conditional use permits under suitable regulations and safeguards,” McRoberts wrote. “The board’s denial of the petitioners’ rezoning request was based on legitimate zoning concerns and is fairly debatable. … The board denied the rezoning after the Planning Commission expressed concerns regarding … whether the petitioners had fulfilled their obligations to commence action on the site in accordance with condition 1 … NASA’s request that the subject property remain zoned agricultural and rezoning the entire property of 49 acres to develop 432 residential units from Agricultural to Residential was not a reasonable action for the county to take at the time.”

McRoberts said the board denied the request because of the “lack of sufficient market studies or economic data supporting the need for the development, … concerns about placing dense residential development in close proximity to an Aircraft Accident Potential Zone, NASA’s continued opposition, … concerns that proffers … are not appropriate for a development of this magnitude and do not afford the county much assurance that is not already provided by law or regulation, … the lack of a specific property development plan, site development plan or details … phasing schedule and/or construction schedule/details, … failure to satisfy the Village Development Section of the Future Land Use Plan, which anticipates that multi-family housing be in close proximity to goods and services and provide transportation alternatives for residents.”

Local residents repeatedly opposed the project, saying it would cause damage to groundwater and cause traffic hazards and was not wanted or needed.

The developer and its utility company say the county does not have a right “to prohibit an Alternative Onsite Sewage System (AOSS)” and that they may operate the AOSS in accordance with state mandates.

“ATC has and will continue to incur millions of dollars in development costs,” the suit states. “The progress of the project is dependent upon both local and state approvals, the timing of which are entirely beyond ATC’s control. It would be manifestly unfair for ATC to ‘lose’ its residential zoning and have property revert back to agriculture for delays that are beyond its control. Such a provision violates the state constitution. … In order to rezone property, supervisors must follow procedures including planning commission review, notice and hearing.”

The two sides are scheduled to debate those issues and more at an August hearing.

Three Accomack School Board members want to continue to serve on the panel for another four years.

At a meeting of the School Board Selection Commission Tuesday night, Audrey Furness of District 2 and Dr. Ronnie Holden of District 8 spoke about their dedication and desire to keep at it. Travis Thornton of District 1 also asked to be kept on the board. All three, whose terms expire this month, wrote letters to the commission.

“Thanks for the confidence you have had in me and your support over these years,” Furness, a 32-year veteran of the School Board, said at the public hearing. “I feel like I have learned a lot about the education process. We’ve had a lot of changes … policy, strategies … I feel like everything that we are made aware of … we handle pretty well. My experience will help me to make better decisions with much greater ease.”

“I can’t say enough of what it means to me” to serve, Furness continued. “It does mean commitment … I must be a good role model for our children … I try to live by the rules … I will do the very best that I can. I will work as hard as I can … we can certainly say that we all work together … for good educational goals.”

Furness also put in a word for Thornton, who was attending his son’s sports event.

“He works real hard with our system,” Furness said of Thornton. “He’s right on top of it with math skills. Everyone respects him. He does a fine job.”

Selection Commission member Vernon Bell, a retired school administrator, wanted to know what Furness likes most about serving on the School Board.

Maury Enright, a former English teacher at Chincoteague High School, spoke in favor of Furness. When asked a question about the school division, he always tells people to contact her. “I’ve always appreciated her willingness to be a part of the community.”

Holden of District 8 said he does the job to “give back to the community. I study all the subjects” before attending a meeting. Holden continued. “My experience, my educational background … I feel I am a valuable resource.”

Samuel Cooper, clerk of the Accomack Circuit Court, spoke in favor of Holden. “I proudly stand in support of the re-appointment … one of the things that touches me the most … is he is a product of this school system. Start here, go anywhere. He’s done that. He has brought back many experiences that he’s had. He is very, very sensitive to the needs … of our students. I do wish that we would continue to support him.”

“Our board has overcome many hurdles such as economic hardships, increasing testing standards and the daunting task of selecting a new division superintendent,” Thornton wrote to the selection panel. “Unfortunately, the first superintendent left our division after a shortened tenure to return to his family. We searched for another and found a young energetic candidate … Dr. Cuellar brings many new ideas and a sense of enthusiasm to our division.”

“The board is actively pursuing the creation of a STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) program in all of our schools,” Thornton continued. “This program will help our students graduate with many college courses completed and allow them to transfer in credits towards their degree work. In some cases, an associate degree will be obtained with our partner, the Eastern Shore Community College.”

“I believe in public education,” wrote Thornton. “I believe the Accomack County School Board has made great strides in providing an excellent educational opportunity for our 5,000 plus children. As a parent of two children who attend … I see first hand the great education our children receive.”

The commission will make a decision about re-appointing the unopposed members next week.
This week, Willie Randall was named the official candidate of the Democratic Party for the 100th House of Delegates District representing the Eastern Shore and part of Norfolk.

Said Randall, “I’m pleased to have the opportunity to put my name forward for election. My business experience, community involvement, and commitment to service make me the strongest candidate to represent the people of the 100th House District in Richmond.”

Randall has served as chairman of the Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce, president of the Melfa Rotary Club, and president of the Eastern Shore United Way. He also served two terms on the Northampton County Board of Supervisors. During his tenure on the board, county debt was lowered by more than $40 million and universal pre-K education was instituted for all county residents.

Randall particularly highlighted the need for expanded Medicaid in Virginia as a major focus of his campaign, saying, “15,000 hardworking citizens in this district are unable to access affordable health care because the General Assembly refuses to expand Medicaid.”

“I don’t understand how our representatives can choose to let our tax money go to other states instead of bringing it back here to ensure every Virginian has access to the health care that they need,” Randall added.

He said he is looking forward to having a conversation with the voters of the 100th House District over the next six months as he seeks to earn their votes.

Fewer Crimes Were Reported to Local Law Enforcement Last Year

By Linda Cicoira

The number of reported crime on the Eastern Shore of Virginia was down in 2014 compared to the previous year, in part because of the 50 arsons investigated in Accomack in the first months of 2013, according to figures released late last week in a state police report.

The overall count of 1,669 crimes reflects a decrease compared to the 1,750 incidents reported in Accomack and Northampton in 2013. It was down even further compared to the 2,105 in 2011, about 1,890 in 2010 and 2,300 in 2009.

Accomack County Sheriff’s Office (ACSO) investigated 966 incidents in 2014 compared to 1,006 the previous year. Last year’s crimes included four homicides, nine forcible rapes, 11 other forcible sex offenses, seven robberies, 44 aggravated assaults, 311 simple assaults or intimidations, an arson, 68 burglaries, 276 larcenies, 25 motor vehicle thefts, two counterfeiting/forgery cases, 52 frauds, seven embezzlements, 144 property destruction/vandalisms, 23 drug offenses, two non-forcible sex offenses, three cases of pornography and nine weapon violations. Exmore Police Department looked into 77 reported incidents, the same number as the previous year. The 2014 total included a forcible rape, a robbery, an aggravated assault, nine simple assaults, four burglaries, 38 larcenies, three vehicle thefts, three frauds, six property destruction/vandalisms, 10 drug cases, a pornography incident and two weapon violations.

His opponent would be Sheriff David L. Doughty, who lives near Kiptopeke and is seeking a second four-year term.

Two colleagues in the office of the Northampton commissioner of the revenue want to replace their boss, M.A. (Anne) Sayers, who is not seeking re-election. Charlene P. Gray of Machipongo and Bonnie Wilson Lewis of Eastville are vying for the post.

Clerk of the Circuit Court Traci L. Johnson of Machipongo and Treasurer Cynthia S. Bradford of Belle Haven are running unopposed for re-election. Johnson is seeking another eight-year term and Bradford is after a second four-year term.

This free event is open to all.

“We are looking forward to the opportunity to thank everyone who patronizes and supports the Chincoteague Island Library,” said Linda Ryan, president of the Library Board of Directors. “We hope that regular visitors as well as those who have not had the opportunity to see the inside of the library will join us at the open house.”

The Fourth Annual Tall Ships at Cape Charles Festival is set for June 13-14. Festival hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. All events are rain or shine. General admission is free. Tickets may be purchased on-site to tour the decks of all seven ships: adults $10; children 12 years and under $5. Tickets for children’s 1.5-hour pirate sails aboard the tall ship Serenity may be purchased on-site to tour the decks of the ships.

Want to serve another term. Harrison W. Phillips III is challenging him. Both are Independents.

In District 7, two Independents will compete. Long-time Supervisor Laura Belle Gerd is being opposed by Onancock Town Manager B. Cabell Lawton IV.

Several incumbents won’t have to work so hard to get re-elected since they have no opposition: Grayson C. Chesser Jr., an Independent who represents District 3; Robert D. Crockett, an Independent who represents District 6; Donald L. Hart Jr., of District 8, who has served for more than 30 years as a Democrat and is seeking the post this time as an Independent; and Reneta Major of District 9, who also ran as a Democrat in previous elections and is listed as an Independent.

Newcomer Billy Joe Tarr of Chincoteague is unopposed in his quest to represent District 1 on the Board of Supervisors. Incumbent Wanda Thornton, who is not seeking re-election, is supporting Tarr.

Documents show all constitutional officers in Accomack are seeking re-election without opposition. Samuel H. Cooper Jr. wants another eight-year term as clerk of the Circuit Court. The rest are elected to four-year terms and include Commonwealth’s Attorney Gary R. Agar, Treasurer Dana T. Bundick, Commissioner of the Revenue Leslie Mears Savage and Sheriff Todd Godwin.

Independents Jim A. Evans and Fred W. Holland II are seeking two seats on the Eastern Shore Soil & Water Conservation Board.

March for Babies Marches On

On Sunday, May 3, participants and volunteers packed the grounds of the Historic Onancock School for the 2015 March of Dimes March for Babies event.

Representatives from 27 teams and several local sponsors, as well as the Town of Onancock and its law enforcement, make this event possible. The March for Babies Walk is a celebration of all the hard work and dedication in sharing the mission for healthy babies.

After the opening ceremony, the walk began, led by the ambassador family, SJ, Brooke, and Smith Parks. Also holding the March of Dimes banner at the starting line was the Top Online Team for 2015, Team Easton Harper.

Perdue took Top Eastern Shore Team. Team Easton Harper followed in second place and Tyson Foods was a close third. The Top Eastern Shore School Team for 2015 was Broadwater Academy. Metompkin Elementary was second and Kegotank Elementary third.

This year the March of Dimes is recognizing those who helped to raise $1,000 or more, including Veronica Poulson with Perdue, Amy Darby from Broadwater Academy, Candi Conner and Kasey Gillikin from Metompkin Elementary, Mary Jones from Kegotank Elementary, Sara Blankenship with Bay B Steps, and Tami Fowler from Onancock Elks Lodge. This accomplishment places them in the Circle of Champions.

Lighting the Way for Special Olympics

The 2015 Torch Run for Special Olympics got underway on the Eastern Shore on Wednesday in Chincoteague and continued south to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

Local coordinator for the event is Investigator Terry Thomas of Northampton Sheriff’s Office, who has taken part in the event since 1993. The Special Olympics Torch Run has been conducted in Virginia for 30 years, with law-enforcement officers running in relays from Wise County to the Shore and from Northern Virginia to the North Carolina border. More than 2,000 officers carried the Flame of Hope more than 1,900 miles, ultimately bringing it to the Summer Games, which run from June 12-13 at the University of Richmond Robins Center.

Special Olympics provide year-round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of Olympic-type sports for children and adults with intellectual disabilities.

Thomas and Special Olympics Director of Development Meghan Massie, said that 80 local officers took part in the run, representing law enforcement in Chincoteague, Cape Charles, Exmore, Onancock, Northampton and Accomack sheriff’s departments, State Police, Virginia Marine Resources Police, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel and Coast Guard Stations Chincoteague and Cape Charles. Thomas noted that the turnout for this year’s event far exceeded the number of officers who had taken part in the past (57 ran in 2013 and 47 in 2014). Adding to the list of runners were 12 members of the Northampton High School cross-country and track teams (pictured above).

the supervisors to “thumb their noses at the public.” Dufty said a company had planned to build a bio-diesel plant in Exmore and would have gotten approval had he not addressed Town Council regarding possible risks.

Dufty claimed that the proposed changes to the county ordinance would have allowed similar facilities, but after opposition was voiced, those particular changes have been abandoned. He next spoke of the resulting hazards should the supervisors permit poultry operators to construct chicken houses in the county.

Noting that the railroad could benefit by bringing waste products to the county, Dufty said he has problems with some supervisors who might benefit personally from their position as elected leaders. Supervisor Larry LeMond, who recently retired from leadership with the railroad, made it abundantly clear to Dufty that at no time had any company applied to the railroad to transport such products.

Martina Coker spoke in opposition to the proposed zoning changes, claiming that the majority of county residents do not wish the code changed. As did the other speakers before her, Coker stated her opposition to the possibility of allowing poultry houses in the county.

Realtor Dave Kabler spoke of his opposition to changes that would allow planned unit developments (PUDs), zoning districts that may vary from single-family residences to multi-family units. Non-residential PUDs might include commercial and/or industrial uses. Kabler noted that PUDs require public sewage and would increase traffic. He said people in the county do not want the proposed changes.

Willis Wharf resident Art Schwarzschild addressed the problems he believes would occur as a result of allowing poultry manure to be used on farms. He said that allowing poultry houses would not help the economy and he questioned why the supervisors were pushing for changes to the current zoning ordinance.

Jay Ford pointed out that while it is currently legal for poultry houses to be placed in the county, it is not economically viable to do so as the current zoning greatly limits the number needed by nearby poultry processors. The proposed changes, according to Ford, would increase the number of houses allowed. He added that poultry houses create few jobs and the workers receive low pay.

Mary Miller stated that she opposes allowing poultry waste to be imported from Accomack County.

Donna Bozza, the director of Citizens for a Better Eastern Shore (CBES), questioned why the changes are being proposed and why the board wants to allow poultry waste to be brought into the county.

Exmore resident Linda Nordstrom, who spoke in opposition to the proposed changes, added that some people with whom she had spoken said they felt it was useless to attend the board sessions as they believe the supervisors are going to do what they want anyway.

Ultimately, the board voted to extend the deadline for a formal vote on the proposed zoning changes until Jan. 14, 2016.

The supervisors received a summary report this week from Parks and Recreation Director Laura Jenrette regarding success of the program over the past year.

Jenrette spoke of the number of athletic events and programs that the department had undertaken, many of which occurred at the former middle school in Machipongo.

Asked by Supervisor Granville Hogg how much of the building was used in addition to the gym, Jenrette stated that the department also used multiple classrooms for activities as well as for storage. In addition to the facilities used at the former middle school, the Parks and Recreation Department offers a number of programs at its facility at Indian Town Park.

Supervisor Oliver Bennett remarked that the county was making a lot of use of the building (which also houses the county Extension Service), and that it justified the cost of just over $100,000 to maintain the building annually.

The board conducted a public hearing on modifications to fees charged by the Building Department. Building Department Director John Outten explained that the proposed changes were the result of problems encountered by building inspectors who go to a site only to find that the building or the contractors are not present or ready for the inspection.

Outten said the situation often delays a scheduled inspection for someone who was ready in some other part of the county.

The fees of $50 to $100 recommended by the Building Department would be charged for lifting a stop-work order, conducting a second plan review, or not being ready for a scheduled inspection. None of the new fees would affect builders or property owners who do not cause unnecessary delays for building inspectors.

The board unanimously approved the recommended fees.

The next meeting of the supervisors is slated for June 22 when they will hold a joint session with the Public Service Authority.

Deplying on the outcome of today’s soccer game between Northampton and Galax, the Jackets could be playing for a state title tomorrow in Radford.

It would be only the second state championship in school history, but 20 years ago, Northampton had an extraordinary run of competing in three state championship contests in little more than a year.

It all started in the winter of 1995 when the Jacket wrestling team, coached by Brian Harman, won the Group A state title at the Salem Civic Center.

“I can remember it like it was yesterday,” said Harman last week, reflecting on that day two decades ago. “I was very close to those guys and stay in touch with many of them. We weren’t together just during the season. I would take them fishing, and a bunch of us would get together for roller blading in the morning before school.”

But there was a lot of work mixed in with the fun times. Many of the Northampton wrestlers practiced in the offseason and attended summer camps held at colleges.

It all paid off when David Trower, a 12-2 team, advanced to the state championship game, losing to Powell Valley and moving the game to Foreman Field.

The format and system on the field a quagmire.

“Looking back, I think I worked them too hard. At the time I didn’t think that was possible. We met at 6 in the morning and worked out for two hours before breakfast and then going to school, then we practiced for two and half hours after school. With all the offseason work, I think now it was too much.

“But those kids gave me everything they had and did everything I asked of them. That was a pretty special time, and I’ve enjoyed keeping up with many of the wrestlers I coached,” said Harman, who guided the program for almost 30 years and is now retired from the school system, but still teaching driver’s education to students.

Several of those wrestlers were on the football team — including Elliott and Martin — the next fall when Northampton reached the 1995 state championship game, losing to Powell Valley and future NFL running back Thomas Jones.

That team was coached by Jimmy Conrow, the principal at Crisfield High School the past three years.

“I keep up with a lot of the guys on Facebook,” said Conrow last week shortly before the end of school.

“We had a good run during that time,” recalled Conrow. “The year before the state championship game we were 8-2 and had Muneer Moore on the team, who went on to play for the University of Richmond and then in the NFL. A lot of players from that team were on the 12-2 team that went to the state championship game.”

Northampton was the host school for the state championship game, but had to use a neutral site. The game was scheduled at Nandua, but heavy rains all week prior to the game made the field a quagmire.

“Some people asked me to consider moving the game to Foreman Field,” said Conrow, “but I thought the Shore residents deserved a game on this side of the bay. It didn’t make any difference in the outcome (a 36-6 loss), but it definitely hurt our outside running game, which had been a strength all season with Sam Ames carrying the ball.”

Meanwhile, Powell Valley’s Jones, who enjoyed an outstanding career at Virginia and was a solid NFL running back, kept pushing the pile forward all day to keep the chains moving.

Conrow said the football team the following year might have been even better, going undefeated until a playoff loss to Bruton ended the season at 10-1.

“In our final game of the regular season, our quarterback, Jeff Wayman, was hurt and out for the season,” recalled Conrow. “We had beaten our nemesis, Central Sussex, that year and were rolling. I would have liked our chances with Jeff at quarterback.”

That following spring of 1996, the baseball team also reached the state championship game, again facing Powell Valley before a loss ended an outstanding 22-3 season.

Chuck Bono, today an insurance agent for AFLAC who stays in touch with high school baseball and often finds himself at a local diamond in the spring, coached that team after being an assistant to Conrow in football.

The one name that came up as a key figure on all three Northampton state championship finalist teams was Nick Bravo, who later played football at Bridgewater and was All-District in baseball. Ames, the top running back on the football team, was All-State in baseball, as was Peter Williams.

Wayman caught for that Jacket baseball team and made the All-District team, as did pitcher Tim Brady, shortstop Jason Sparrow, outfielder Dale Robinson and utility player Phil Ames.

“Our student-athletes were not only awesome ball players, but were fine young men,” said Bono last week. “Through the years, I suppose the true success is what we do to help others and how we give back to the community in which we live as productive citizens is the true measure of our success.”

“When I was coming up through school I watched in awe those Northampton baseball teams in the mid-1970s coached by Bill Prince that had a great run with Warner Crumb pitching, but also a whole of other really good baseball players. I told my players we could be a special team like those guys, and they were all in and worked really hard.”

Like the football team, the Jackets baseball team also faced adversity in the state championship game. After winning a nail biter over Stuarts Draft that ended late in the evening to advance to the state championship game, they had to travel immediately to Blacksburg, where they got a few hours of sleep, and then the next morning went to Powell Valley — some 500 miles from Eastville — for the state title game that afternoon.

“The format and system on the schedule put us at a huge disadvantage,” said Bono. “I wish we would have fought a lot harder to the VHSL (Virginia High School League) for extra time so that our kids were properly rested. But it was still special because a lot of kids never get to play in a state championship game.”

True, but several players 20 years ago played in two and a few competed in three state championship contests.

Hopefully, tomorrow there will be a Northampton soccer team competing for a state title.

Chincoteague Suffers Season’s First Defeat in Regional Semi-Finals

Chincoteague’s first defeat came in its final baseball game of the season. A 12-1 home loss to Lancaster last Friday eliminated the Ponies from the playoffs, but did not detract from a 20-1 season that was the best in the school’s history and gained a large following of local fans.

Sophomore pitcher Trey Fisher, who had pitched a no hitter and walked only one in his previous playoff outing, could not find his control, hitting four batters in the first three innings and walking eight. The southpaw was also hurt by a three errors and a bad-hop single that scored two runs with two outs in the second inning.

A grand slam homer by Lancaster’s Kyle Thomas in the third inning forced Fisher from the game, trailing 11-0. Dustin Holloway came on in relief, getting out of the third and holding Lancaster to one run over the final two innings.

The Ponies stranded several runners and finally scored when Collin Derrickson, who was 3 for 3, came home on a sacrifice fly by Mason Marshall in the fourth. But the rally ended when a Pony runner left third base too early on the next fly ball, resulting in an inning-ending double play.

Chincoteague coach Will Thompson said he was proud of how his young squad came together this season. “We had a taste of championship baseball, and we will learn from the loss. It was a great season for us and we will be back ready to compete next year.”

Lancaster won the regional finals 6-5 over William Campbell on Monday and plays in the state semi-finals today in Radford, where the Ponies had hoped to be this weekend.

Trey Fisher of Chincoteague was named baseball’s Player of the Year by Eastern Shore District coaches as Chincoteague placed six players on the All-District team.

Fisher, only a sophomore, was named both first team pitcher and outfielder by district coaches. The left-hander was 6-0 with a 1.85 earned run average in the regular season, allowing 17 hits in 34 innings. He also had three saves. In the postseason, Fisher pitched a no-hitter in a 2-1 win over Surry before suffering his first loss in the regional championship against Lancaster.

At the plate, Fisher hit .471 with 23 stolen bases while scoring 21 runs and driving in 11 runs.

Arcadia’s Zach Mills also was named to the first team as a pitcher. Mills, a senior, had three wins this season over Nandua.

Trey Fisher Player of Year in Conference

Trey Fisher of Chincoteague was named co-player of the year in Conference 41 baseball with Surry’s J.J. Barry.

Fisher, who led the Ponies to a 20-1 season, is a sophomore who both pitched and played outfield for Chincoteague.

Also making first team all-conference from the Ponies were Ryan Mason at second base, Collin Derrickson as catcher and Joe Thornton as a first baseman. All are pictured above.

Dustin Holloway was both a second team pitcher and outfielder.
Kimberly Wert of Nandua, only a sophomore, was named Player of the Year by Eastern Shore District coaches for the second consecutive year. Nandua dominated the 14-player squad with seven players named to the first team. The Warriors completed a perfect district season for the seventh straight year.

Wert, who caught, pitched and played primarily at shortstop, led the Warriors in every major offensive category, hitting .475 with a .522 on-base percentage and a .932 slugging average and 32 RBIs, six home runs including two in the playoffs, and 27 runs scored, a team-high total shared by Caroline Harvie.

Wert signed with Division 1 Hofstra last summer. “She is solid athletically, academically and has a bright future. Kimberley’s work ethic and willingness to improve herself are a model for others to follow,” said Nandua coach Lynn Williams.

On the mound, Wert was 4-0 and did not allow an earned run in 25 innings, striking out 24 batters.

On Wednesday, Wert was named to the second team 2A All Regional team as a shortstop. Nandua’s Chandler Davis, Michaela Wescott, Caroline Harvie, and D’errica Toppin earned honorable mention.

Toppin was named Pitcher of the Year in the district. She was 9-4 this season with a 1.87 earned run average with 46 strikeouts in 80 innings.

Also selected to the first team were Chandler Davis of Nandua, Briana Williams of Northampton and Taylor Lewis of Arcadia as infielders.

Nandua controlled the outfield with Sarah Gepes, Caroline Harvie and Michaela Wescott all selected first team. Arcadia’s Tiffany Trader was named first-team catcher, with Nandua’s Amanda Baylis the defensive player.

Selected as at-large players on the first team were Sarah Jones of Arcadia, Taylor Nadeau of Northampton and Kristin Fox of Chincoteague.

Northampton’s Devin Allen was Coach of the Year.

The second team outfield was Amanda Stalgaritis of Arcadia, Cassie Nadeau of Northampton and Madison Hudgins of Chincoteague.

Sara Weber of Northampton was the pitcher with Nandua’s Paige DiMartino the catcher.

Eight Northampton softball players were named to the Conference 41 first team.

Selected were Briana Williams and Taylor Nadeau in infield, Meghan Walpole as catcher, Cassie Nadeau, Heather Guagenti and Mackenzie Widgeon as outfielders, and Makayla Wilson and Michaela Lewis as at-large selections.

Williams and Nadeau also were named all-district.

Sara Weber was named as second team pitcher.
Eastern Shore All-District Soccer Team Named

District champion Nandua placed four players on the All-District first team as selected by district coaches. The Warriors’ Tio Tinoco, José Jimenez, Hunter Cooper and Trevor Cooper were first team selections.

Nandua won the district with an unbeaten 9-0 mark.

Head, Potts Win in Regional Tennis

Angela Head and Hayley Potts, Conference 41 tennis doubles champions, defeated Altavista 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 in regional play before falling to Mathews 6-4, 6-3 last week.

Head, the Conference 41 singles champion, then played in a marathon match that took just over four hours to complete. Playing an opponent from Mathews, Head dropped the first set 6-3, won the second 6-2 and fell in the third set 6-4.

By actual count, the two players traded 2,688 volleys with one point taking 81 volleys to win.

“I was very proud of both Angela and Hayley. We’ve never had conference champions in tennis at Northampton,” said Jacket coach Mike Varricchio.

Both Head and Potts are juniors.
Children’s Fishing Event a Success

It was a fine day for more than 40 youngsters who gathered June 7 at Morley’s Wharf Fishing Pier on Occoquan Creek.

A number of spot were caught by the children, all of whom received a fishing rod and reel and an introduction to angling under the auspices of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club.

After the rigors of baiting hooks and landing fish, the children enjoyed hot dogs and soda and a presentation to the three youngsters who caught the largest fish. The free event was made possible by the Virginia Marine Resources Commission, Holt Food Services, Schmidt Baking Co., Sea Hawk Sports Center, Utz Quality Foods, Bill and Sheila Wolfram, and Wolff’s Sandwich Shop.

Cobia Catches Outstanding

Cobia is still the big news in fishing, according to expert Dr. Julie Ball.

Exceptional numbers of early season fish, with many pushing to over 50 pounds, are contributing to an excellent introduction to the fishing season. Although some cobia sight-casting experts are complaining that the fish are somewhat finicky right now, plenty of encounters are providing ample opportunity to score with some nice fish, primarily in the lower Chesapeake Bay.

The red drum bite is still good, as big reds continue to hit along the surf of the Eastern Shore barrier islands, and at buoys 8 and 10 near Nautilus Shoal, and the Nine-foot Shoal area. Blue crab is the best bait for bottom fishing for reds, while bunker and mullet also work well.

Some anglers also are finding decent trolling and top water action as schools of big red drum cruise off the oceanfront. A few black drum are still taking clams near buoy 13 and 16 off the Shore, but the size of these fish is somewhat smaller than weeks past.

The flounder bite continues to evolve, with more anglers reporting limits of bigger fish from various areas in lower bay waters. A few flatfish are taking drifted minnows and cut bait near the islands of the bridge-tunnel, and anglers jigging and working live bait along the pilings and over the tubes of the bridge-tunnel also are scoring with scattered fish, with the first and second islands the most productive lately.

The Cell, and buoy 36A areas are giving up some decent catches, while the bayside and seaside areas of Oyster on are still producing the largest and best numbers for drifters, with a few doormats mixed in.

Offshore, very good catches of yellowfin tuna, along with some nice bigeye tuna and larger and abundant mahi are contributing to a great kickoff of Virginia’s offshore season. Many boats are returning to the docks early with limits of fish, with most of the yellowfin tuna averaging around 40 pounds.

Missing You On Your Birthday
As I visit your resting place
Upon this special day
Once more I feel the sadness
That will never go away
For ever since you’ve gone,
Life has never been the same
Yet, it comforts me to know
That one day we’ll meet again
Until that day arrives,
I’ll relive every memory
Of the happy times we shared
Together - you and me
For, I miss you so very much
And words never could convey
The extent of the joy
That you brought to every day
Love, Your Family

MARVIN GIDDENS
By Linda Cicoira

It’s the absence of skill. It’s the success or failure brought about by chance. I am about to debate the sometimes-controversial subject called “luck.” And I don’t have any.

Last week, my very special 36” x 24” mirror leaped from the wall and smashed against the tile floor, shattering into a million sharp daggers. This mirror had some kind of funhouse quality and caused one to appear slimmer. It was my best friend. And you know without it, I am doomed to seven years of bad luck.

Compound that against the last time such ill fate was levied upon me and add some interest. UGH!

It doesn’t matter that half my ancestors were Irish and were supposed to have passed down the gene that blesses me with a wee bit of extra good fortune. It doesn’t matter one iota. “No such luck.”

What can I do about it? Sprinkle salt over my left shoulder? Take a bath in Epsom salt? Protect my home by scattering sea salt in every corner of every room and under every windowsill? Carry a rabbit’s foot?

Yeah, those things sound easy to try. But according to www.wikihow.com, I could have just kept all the shards, ground them to dust and scattered them in the wind. Or I could have kept one of the bigger pieces and on the next full moon, reflected the lunar being while gazing into it before burying it.

So what do you think I did before reading all that? “As luck has it,” I did the one thing that “sealed” my fate. I threw them all away. It was “the luck of the draw.”

Well, not so fast. There are some more things I could try. I could search for pennies to pick up — if they landed on heads. I could avoid looking at owls during the day. I could stop sleeping with my feet pointing at the door. I could bathe in the petals of seven different kinds of flowers and then seal them in a paper bag and throw them out.

Oh sure, this crazy website says I could de-clutter my house. Yeah, that’s going to happen. It seems I’m blocking positive energies from flowing. And after I do that, I’m supposed to clean the joint. I’ll get right on that.

Well, wait a minute, I did pick up the remnants and then vacuum really well so my cats and dog friend wouldn’t step on anything sharp. That should count for something! Did I say, “No such luck?” Yeah, I did.

So where did this superstition about mirror breaking come from anyway? It was from those other relatives, the Romans. They believed that it took seven years for life to renew itself. “If the persons looking into the mirror were not of good health, their image would break the mirror and the run of bad luck would continue for the period of seven years, at the end of which their life would be renewed, their body would be physically rejuvenated, and the curse would be ended.”

I don’t think that was a very nice thing for the Romans to claim. I was not looking in the mirror when it broke. Oh, and it seems that those guys had another way to keep the bad luck away. “Take all pieces and throw them into running water” or “if a person who breaks a mirror is too lazy or too busy,” just leave the pieces on the floor and wait seven hours to pick them up. Or one could light seven white candles on the first night after breaking the mirror and blow them out at midnight in one breath while touching a tombstone with a broken piece.

Whew! I think I’ll just try doing a good deed and thereby earn some positive karma. After all, blaming luck is just something sore losers do. I didn’t say that. The website did. Yippee!

Chamber Supports Supervisors’ Focus on Education

Dear Editor:

I am writing on behalf of the Board of Directors of the Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce. The chamber has served businesses on the Eastern Shore for 62 years. Representing more than 450 businesses, our mission is to “serve, promote and connect businesses and communities of the Eastern Shore of Virginia.”

The Board of Directors would like to commend the Northampton County Board of Supervisors for the resolution it adopted on May 12. We wholeheartedly agree that education should be viewed as the cornerstone for the county’s economic future. We encourage the Board of Supervisors to remain focused on education and to keep all the educational declarations listed below in the forefront of their decision making.

Resolution Declaring Education as the Cornerstone for Northampton County’s Economic Future

WHEREAS, it is also recognized that a well-educated and inspired student body is the engine that drives, and will continue to drive our local and regional economy; and

WHEREAS, Northampton County is fortunate to enjoy world-class teachers who have dedicated themselves to ensuring that their students are equipped and prepared to become productive and beneficial members of society in business, academic and leadership roles; and

WHEREAS, the Northampton County Board of Supervisors gives great weight to the needs and desires of the school system as they arise throughout the year; and

WHEREAS, the Northampton County Board of Supervisors realizes that teachers and instructors in the school system need more than financial support to ensure that our students benefit from a fulfilling and rewarding academic experience; and

WHEREAS, there has been a renewed interest by community members, civic organizations, churches, business leaders, and others to become more involved in assisting teachers in their important roles as educators; and

WHEREAS, this involvement can and should include mentoring, tutoring, job shadowing, workforce training programs, and the overall establishment of a working relationship between the community, the school system, and the students.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Northampton County Board of Supervisors declares on this date, May 12, 2015, that education is now and should remain into the future the engine that drives our local and regional economy; and

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Northampton County Board of Supervisors supports local initiatives that ensure that our students will benefit from community support programs aimed at ensuring that Northampton County students enjoy a rich and fulfilling educational experience.

We thank the supervisors for their service. The Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce stands ready to offer any assistance to the businesses and citizens of the Eastern Shore.

Kristin Webb, Chairman of the Board

Why Was Ambulance Driver Charged in Crash?

Dear Editor:

I was always under the impression that emergency vehicles, with lights and sirens activated, are to be given the right of way.

I am shocked and appalled that the police charged the ambulance driver with the recent accident in Keller. The rescue squad, I am sure, were doing their utmost to save the cardiac-arrest patient in their care and get him to the emergency room ASAP.

If we as “responsible” drivers fail to yield to emergency vehicles and impede their progress, forcing them to obey speed limits, traffic signals and signs, then I guess we are on our own when our house is on fire or invaded by criminals or we have a medical emergency.

The bottom line is: Don’t rely on a quick emergency response. You are on your own, Jack!

What’s With the Changes Proposed for Northampton?

Dear Editor:

About a decade ago, family members relocated from our rural area in upstate New York to Northampton County, which they call “the lower Eastern Shore.” Retirement age, they were seeking a more serene way of life, and subsequently invested nearly $750,000 in property there, convinced that the rural and scenic county would meet and exceed their every need. My husband and I also, creeping up on the age where we might want to enjoy living in a milder climate, first visited their new home in 2006. After a weekend stay, we cocked our heads a bit, and put a checkmark in the box next to “potential” prospects on our small but growing list.

Our next stay, the following summer, lasted nearly a week. During that time we dug a little deeper into what the county and incorporated towns offer, with a keen eye on whether the “lower Shore” would remain a contender. Within several years, our visits expanded to include more lengthy stays, burning up our vacation time between Northampton County and the Outer Banks, another possible retirement site.

The area where we live has seen its share of environmental incursions, from waste incinerators, coal burning plants, hard rock mines, oil pipelines, and construction and demolition landfills proposed for residential areas. Therefore, when looking for property that would be protected from these body blows, we looked very carefully at zoning ordinances and comprehensive plans in prospective retirement candidates, as those blueprints reflect the vision the majority of residents hold for the future of their setting.

The 2009 Comprehensive Plan and its supporting ordinance, both written with input from residents, was our jumping off point to help us really understand how solid the footing is on what we perceived to be a very stable and protective community. The road map for economic growth in those documents envisioned public, private, and governmental support for “aquaculture, education, agriculture, tourism, nature-based recreational offerings, small business growth, and the arts.” Perfect. Just what we wanted.

So by 2013 we started actively looking for real estate in Northampton County. We knew we wanted open space, low density, rural, and protected. But after learning in 2014 from our relatives that the Northampton Board of Supervisors was planning to rezone the entire county into a more crowded, industrial, commercial and less protected community, we put our potential investment plans there on hold, and will not rekindle our consideration until this issue is settled.

Some of the changes that stop us dead in our tracks are the fact that waste incineration (now called waste management and resource recovery, I guess in an attempt to mask the real plans) and large-scale industrial chicken farms are being welcomed into the county.

Protection for drinking water (the quality of which we have heard might be less than perfect in areas close to the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay) are being eliminated, with no restrictions on how much land can be paved over on each parcel. And as for how taxpayer resources are currently being handled by county government, given a small population of just over 12,000, that also is mind blowing.

We are hoping that people in the county make the effort to protect their investments as I am sure we are not the only ones who will look elsewhere if the current “leaders” get their way.

Northampton Sheriff’s Dept., Rescue Squad Deserve Praise

Dear Editor:

Having worked with the Northampton County Sheriff’s Department as a magistrate, I learned to appreciate the members and the service they performed for the county. However, that was years ago. But recently that appreciation for such a dedicated group was reinforced.

There has been a break-in and several attempts to enter other homes on Rogers Drive in Nassawadox. My home and the home directly across the street were the latest attempts. I surprised the perpetrator and was injured in the process.

I was so impressed with the prompt response of the Northampton County Sheriff’s deputies and the manner in which they conducted their investigation that night and the following day. I do not know all the names of the deputies involved, but Lt. A.J. Ferebee and Investigator Tara Leckel were the last two on the scene the following day. Their thorough questioning and search for clues were so in-depth that I was surprised. Investigator Leckel even took molds of the damage to the window sill caused by a tool so they can compare it with any future cases.

I want to thank each and every one involved for their service during my problem. My appreciation also includes Sheriff David Doughty Jr., who came to my home to pay his respects and to ensure me that they were working hard on each case to catch the perpetrator. I was impressed that he did so with his demanding workload.

I would also like to express my appreciation for the promptness and professional manner in which the Nassawadox Rescue Squad handled their part of my case. They also are a dedicated group who provide a great service to the Shore.

Rex Ingram, Nassawadox
