Judged on His Merits

Eastern Shore Bar Association President Tommy Dix presents a framed resolution honoring the late Judge N. Wescott Jacob to the judge’s widow, Kate Jacob, in the Accomack Circuit Court this week. Mrs. Jacob visited the courtroom for the first time Monday. She said she had never done so before, at her husband’s request, so he wouldn’t get nervous. Judge Jacob served on the bench for 23 years. He retired in 1992, but continued to substitute in various state courts. Jacob died in April. The World War II veteran was 90 years old. Judge W. Revel Lewis III looks on from the bench as does Judge Glen A. Tyler in his portrait on the wall. Judge Tyler also was among the room of spectators.

Is Chincoteague Way of Life at Risk?

By Linda Cicoira

The federal government is trying to destroy Chincoteague’s economy and possibly the residential island itself, town residents and officials said this week.

The Fish & Wildlife Service’s 15-year proposal that includes moving the beach on Assateague’s Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge does not come with a guarantee that the current beach would be kept resilient during the planning, designing and construction of a new beach area. It also makes no promises that the new or old location would be rebuilt after storms.

Without the beach, there would be little tourism, the island’s major source of income. But more importantly, there might not be a Chincoteague at all, since Assateague, a barrier island, protects it from the raging seas and winds during storms.

“If that beach comes into Tom’s Cove, Chincoteague is going to be a disaster,” former Park Service employee Eddie Watson told Town Council Monday night. “I’ve seen the beach disappearing. We need to get on Fish & Wildlife … and get a 50-foot dune in there … we have plenty of sand in that ocean … pump it in there … our island is more important than Assateague… think about it.”

Chincoteague officials voted to send another letter to the agency to complain before a decision is made. Mayor Jack Tarr said it would take around 10 years for a new beach and parking to be established. The deadline to get the letter in is today. After that, the district director will have 30 days to decide.

Another related issue is the Parks Service’s plan to prohibit the taking of finfish or shellfish at Tom’s Cove, where thriving businesses do their harvesting. This issue was touched on. But until the Parks Service puts this scheme on paper, town officials will continue to work behind the scenes with state officials to stop the ban.

Basically, the state owns the bottom land and the federal government owns the water. Tarr said he’s heard that another generation or two would be allowed to con- (Continued on Page 2) duct business before closing the area. The town would not accept that and would be willing to fight such proposals in court.

“They’re considering aquaculture as agriculture and agriculture doesn’t fall in Parks Service” jurisdiction, Tarr continued. “We feel the state has got to come up and fight it now.”

While officials and residents were discussing the future, Chincoteaguers were counting their blessings this week as storm damage from Hurricane Joaquin was minimal. Town Manager Robert Ritter said there was less than $30,000 worth of destruction, $25,000 of which was to one house where a tree fell. “If it wasn’t for that tree, there wouldn’t have been much at all,” Ritter concluded. “We were really blessed especially with all the winds.”

Ritter said Chincoteague incurred more than $1 million in damage during Super Storm Sandy.

A state of emergency for Chincoteague was declared at noon last Friday following an Accomack County declaration. Council voted for it unanimously. At one point, forecasters predicted a Category 4 hurricane was going to hit the area. But it moved out to sea.

“Thank you for pushing out the storm … and protecting us,” Council Ben Ellis said in an invocation that also included prayers for southern states that got hit hard.

Tuesday morning, town officials met again to discuss the beach situation.

“You have multiple nesting areas on the south of us” for the endangered piping plover and other birds, said county Supervisor Wanda Thornton. “They have ample area in which to nest. That doesn’t matter. They (federal agencies and the Nature Conservancy) want it all.”

“He’s got wings, he can move,” said Watson. “Do you see any wings on me? If the ocean comes in, we’ve lost everything. Where’s the piping plover going to go?”

“Some of this is our fault,” Thornton added. “You get a delegation and you go from state agency to state agency to state agency and you bug them.

You have to meet with people who are reasonable. … The county is willing to help the Town of Chincoteague in any way that they can. They are taking the traditional way of making a living … a lot of them (the watermen) don’t know how to do anything else.”

Former planner Bill Neville, who now works in Ocean City, Md., came to advise the town about the beach.

“This is the last chance to have input,” he said. “The EPA has to do a review.” Tell them “after five years … there’s still some things we want to work on with you. … They are expecting that.”

“They don’t get it,” said Thornton. “The only thing they care about is protecting… we have no guarantee that the location that they choose is sustainable. … Suggestions weren’t even listened to. How can you trust people who have done things like that consistently over time?”

“We lucked out on this storm,” said Watson.

While closed for a couple of days due to minimal damage, most of Parking Lot 2 at Assateague Beach was open late Tuesday and Lot 1 opened Wednesday, making a couple of hundred spaces available. “As soon as the area dries out, the National Park Service crew will begin work on parking lot repairs,” said Liz Davis, an agency representative. One restroom per parking lot is open.
Phillips Announces Board Candidacy

Local businessman Harrison Phillips III, better known as Harris, is running for supervisor to represent Accomack County District 5.

“Having worked in the private sector my entire life, I have been taught to be sensible with money. I will do the same thing with tax dollars. I will be an advocate for all taxpayers and fight against any tax increases on the county level,” Phillips promised. “As a county, we need to lessen the burden on businesses and individuals so we can give our local economy a jump start and provide better jobs for everyone.”

Harris is a third-generation businessman, having basically grown up in Jaxon’s and later Jaxon’s Hardware in Parksley. His grandfather opened Jaxon’s nearly 60 years ago and it has been run by the Phillips family ever since. He is currently the manager of the hardware store, having held this position full-time since graduating from college.

Harris was born and raised on the Eastern Shore, growing up in Parksley and now residing in Modest Town with his wife Shannon. He is a 2000 graduate of Arcadia High School and holds a computer electronics degree from ECPI University in Virginia Beach.

“I look forward to earning your vote on Nov. 3rd and will consider it a great honor to represent the people of the 5th District and Accomack County,” said Phillips.

The Board of Trustees of Broadwater Academy has appointed Interim Head of School Dr. Joseph A. Spagnolo to serve in that post permanently.

Spagnolo has served as interim head at Broadwater Academy since July.

Northampton Planners Support AFD Requests

By Ron West

The Northampton County Planning Commission fielded a number of requests Tuesday to renew or remove property in the county’s Ag-Forestral District (AFD) program.

Every 10 years, property owners with land in an AFD must renew or withdraw their property from the program, where it receives a tax break, which some farmers have said they need to remain in business.

Speaking in support of two of the AFDs up for renewal, Suzanne Tankard said her family owns a nursery on Occohannock Neck and that without the AFD tax break, it would be difficult to operate the business. She added that the nursery has 86 full-time employees.

Also speaking in support of renewing the AFD was Wardtown resident Ken Dufty, who noted that agriculture is the lifeblood of Northampton County and the AFD program should be supported.

Cela Burge spoke in support of property owners with land in the Point Pleasant AFD, located on both sides of Route 600 and east of Lankford Highway. Burge said the property has been farmed for a long time and should be allowed to retain its AFD designation.

The commissioners supported each of the requests to renew property in an AFD, with Commissioner Mike Ward voting against. The request now is passed on to the Board of Supervisors which, some of whose members have said that while they support the AFD program in concept, the fact that the county loses over $1 million in tax revenue annually has led them to oppose expansion of the program.

Property owners Denard Spady and Dora Weston Wilkins submitted a request to remove a 26.9-acre parcel from the Pickett’s Harbor AFD. The commissioners voted unanimously to support the request.

The commissioners reviewed two zoning text amendments that were submitted by the Board of Supervisors. The first, a request to add outpatient clinics to the services allowed by the Zoning Ordinance, came as a result of the need for an emergency medical facility once the Shore’s only hospital closes its facility in Nassawadox in Northampton County and opens a new one in Onley in Accomack County. By doing so, it will leave many residents in Northampton County with an hour ride to an emergency room.

Burke noted that it was a good idea to include the option of a medical clinic in the proposed ordinance, especially with the upcoming loss of the hospital.

The commissioners voted unanimously to support the request.

The second request from the Board of Supervisors was to include wireless broadband service towers up to 199 feet by a minor special-use permit in the Town Edge-Commercial General, Existing Business, Commercial, and Existing Industrial Districts.

Asked by Ward if state-owned towers could permit privately owned businesses to co-locate an antenna on them, County Administrator Katie Nunez said a request had been made to the state, but no answer had been forthcoming.

Dufty spoke in support of the text change, noting that wireless systems are needed to sustain businesses in the county.

Hogg said that though he supports the concept of improving wireless communications in the county, one good system would be better than having multiple towers put up by multiple companies.

Following a brief discussion, the commissioners voted unanimously to support the request.
Local Surfers Ride Wave of Heroism

By Linda Cicoira

Those graceful surfer dudes who seek out epic waves at Assateague are more than just cool. They’re heroes.

Five of those local men — Jordan West, Ray Wimbrow, Lee Kleckner, Bruce Sharp and Frank Kern — recently came to the rescue of 15 to 20 students who got stuck in the surf and were unable to get back to shore.

“It began sweeping them out to sea,” said Chincoteague Emergency Management Coordinator Bryan Rush, a paramedic. Rush came to the scene about 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 30, with ambulances that were dispatched. The rescue, “transpired before I actually got there,” he explained.

The 17- and 18-year-old students were on a field trip from Potomac School, a college prep institution from McLean, Va.

“There were beach hazard warnings made through the National Weather Service,” Rush added. Going in the water “was not a good idea. … I did see adults (he thought were from the school) I could not be accurate with the number” as he was busy with patients.

Chincoteague and New Church rescue squads also responded, as did Accomack Public Safety and an officer from the Fish & Wildlife Service.

Two unidentified students were taken to Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury, Md. Another was treated at the scene, Rush said. “I know that there were many more children” on the beach.

Supervising Federal Wildlife Officer Brian Richardson said Officer James Fair got a call from the Chincoteague Police Dispatch Center and also rushed to the beach, where several dozen students from the school gathered.

“We’re kind of looking to do something for these guys, these surfers,” said Richardson. “Not the first time they have done something to help on the beach. If nothing else, give them a call and give them a big-time ‘thank you.’ ”

“I know two or three years ago they (the surfers) pulled an individual in and saved his life,” said Rush.

He sent the names of all those involved in the rescue to a teacher, who requested the information.

“We trust that all the students are recovering and are thankful that they are able to tell their story and look forward to hosting your school on another class trip to our beautiful island,” Rush wrote in an email to instructor Cort Morgan.

“Unfortunately, the weather does not always cooperate and that beauty can turn very dangerous, very rapidly,” Rush wrote. “With that said, please feel free to contact me prior to or during your next trip and I would be more than happy to brief you or your staff on any existing or anticipated hazards for our area to keep everyone safe. Again, thanks for choosing Chincoteague/Assateague Island for your visits and we look forward to hearing from you.”

Also at the beach scene were Ollie Reed, Willis Dize and Robert Lappin, of Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company, Kevin Holloway of Chincoteague EMS, and Cory Paskowitz, Susan Beall and Steven Simpson of the Department of Public Safety.

“There’s no doubt in my mind that there would be eight kids buried this week if we weren’t there,” Wimbrow recalled Thursday.

He and his fellow surfers were assessing the rip current and potential danger when two buses carrying about 125 of teenagers pulled up.

“I saw they had their bathing suits on,” Wimbrow said. So he warned one of the chaperones that the kids shouldn’t be allowed to go in because of the 8- to 10-foot swells. The unidentified person’s response was to ask if swimming was prohibited.

“I didn’t surf that day,” said Wimbrow. “Frank didn’t surf that day. There weren’t any lifeguards there. We were just waiting around to see what would happen. By the time we walked to the water … there were kids who were hollering … they had gone to the sandbar. About 15 kids were being swept out to sea. I looked at Frank and he looked at me. We started paddling out.”

The worst situation was one boy who was unconscious and the men, tired at that point, struggled to get him in. They got the water out of his lungs on the beach. “The kids are fine,” said Wimbrow.

After the last teenager was brought in, a head count hadn’t been made and the surfers continued to search for students until one was done.

A half-hour after the children cleared the beach, Wimbrow said other surfers, Dreux Alvare and Tom Wilson, rescued two Russian scientists who had also gotten stuck in the current.

Town resident Francis McCleary complained that her septic system, like others in the town, has to be pumped frequently.

Exmore Public Utilities Director Taylor Dukes and Town Manager Robert Duer explained that existing wastewater lines are just too small to handle the flow being pumped through them.

Dukes said a recommendation has been made to have to have the system inspected at a cost of $4,900, after which the town can decide if it would be better to make improvements to the existing wastewater plant or replace it. According to Dukes, replacing the older sewer pipes could cost as much as $2.3 million.

Duer added that at present, the town cannot add new users to the existing system and that if it wants to grow and attract new businesses, council will need to look at the best way to resolve the wastewater problem.

Town resident Donnie Kellam said it is unfair to expect residents and businesses to pay for problems with the existing lines to their property when it is the town’s responsibility to fix them.

Council agreed to fund the inspection as requested by Dukes.

Following the vote, Councilman Tommy Lewis noted that he is one of many who currently cannot connect to the town’s system but would like to do so. He added that regardless of the solution selected, it will require a large financial outlay and could result in higher utility bills for everyone.

Duer reported that the new well for the town’s water system is nearing completion, but it will likely be May of 2017 before it can be brought online. He and Dukes said the delay is partly due to “red tape” as two different departments at the state level have a list of things that need to be done before the town can begin using the new well.

Council requested Duer and Dukes to contact the state agencies involved and seek their help in moving the project forward as quickly as possible.

Council agreed to drop a $3 per month charge to residents and businesses for tree limb removal. Duer noted that there are a number of locations in Exmore that do not have any trees; thus, charging $3 for an unnecessary service is unfair. The action will require a public hearing prior to a formal change in the town’s ordinances.

Eight nurses at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital (RSMH) have received scholarships from the hospital's auxiliary to advance their career goals to better serve their patients.

"It takes significant foresight to champion education, because the results of that education, while fantastic, are often years away," said RSMH Administrator John Peterman. "The dedication of the auxiliary to providing health care resources not only now but well into the future cannot be overstated."

Recent scholarships, totaling more than $20,000, were awarded to registered nurses Christina Freeze, Heather Frisby, Crystal Harris, Maria Hrubes, Ann Pruitt, Aarika Turner, Mona Turner and Amanda Walker.

Jane Bulette, president of the Auxiliary, said, "These nurses have dedicated their careers to caring for others. They have impressed me in their eagerness to learn more and offer more to their patients, so it is a special thrill to be able to help them further their career goals."

Chef Sokaitis Meals To Be Highlighted Sunday

Chef Gary Sokaitis, executive chef for the Blarney Stone Pub in Onancock, has been selected one of the 15 signature chefs who will participate in the 2015 Virginia Beach March of Dimes Signature Chefs Auction Sunday, Oct. 11, at the Founders Inn.

According to March of Dimes Community Director Rachel Boyd, the auction will showcase the "talents of our area's top chefs and their restaurants, while raising funds to give every baby a healthy start in life."

More than 350 guests will be served.

The Blarney Stone Pub is sponsoring Sokaitis' participation by committing to providing an auction package with a minimum $1,000 value.

The package, “Experience the Eastern Shore” includes activities and lunch at Eastern Shore Yacht and Country Club, wine tasting at Chatham Vineyards, a night’s stay at the Inn at Onancock, a night stay at the Charlotte Hotel, a scenic tour by water of Onancock Creek on the Major Gayle, a Blue Crab Bay gift basket, an original Willie Crockett painting of Onancock Creek, a Laughing Dog Jewelry Gift Certificate, and a tour of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel with gift certificates, along with the five-course gourmet dinner donated by the Blarney Stone Pub.

In addition, Sokaitis was one of two signature chefs highlighted on “The Hampton Roads Show” yesterday, Oct. 8, when he prepared a Blarney Stone Pub specialty recipe.
“I’ve worked sea clam and scallop boats up and down the east coast so I’ve definitely spent a few nights away from home. But when I found out I had Hodgkin’s lymphoma, traveling for treatment was something that didn’t sound very good to me. I was born in Nassawadox and raised in Cape Charles so it mattered a lot to me that I could stay close to home for treatment. The staff let me know that what I had was very treatable and they really lifted my spirits. For me, the Riverside Shore Cancer Center turned out to be a great atmosphere for healing.”

Bill Prince could motivate players to perform beyond what they thought possible.

I know, because I was in the locker room in the fall of 1974 when he was a first-year football coach at Northampton High School.

Bill asked me to be an assistant coach that season. He had taken over a Northampton team that went 0-8 the previous season, losing to Cape Charles 32-0 in the season’s last game to stretching a losing streak to 13 games.

Starting in early August, we worked with a group of Northampton players who quickly responded to Bill’s leadership. I thought I knew something about football, having called signals for three seasons at Central and learned the intricacies of the offense. But Bill taught me plenty. He had been a standout player at Northampton and then played at East Carolina. He recalled the twins, Larry and Garry Giddens, Donald Giddens, Randy Widgeon, Ken Ward, Kim Locklear, Curtis Webb, Donnie Kellam, Robin Outten, Lewis Belote and Joe Mitchell being on that team.

Prior to the opener, Bill gave his first pep talk to the players before they went out on the field. His voice was reverberating off the walls, and I could see the eyes of the players fixed on him and growing wider all the time. As for me, only 22 and just four years removed from playing high-school football, I was looking for a helmet and shoulder pads because I was ready to hit somebody after Bill’s stirring talk.

We didn’t win that first game. In fact, we lost the first four games. But the players were coming together and getting better each week.

That fourth game was against Southampton, then a perennial state power under Wayne Cosby that won four state championships and was runner-up four other times in the 1970s. Prior to the game, Bill’s comments seemed to indicate we knew we were outmatched. Just playing them close would require a perfect game on our part, he said. After all, Northampton by then was on a 16-game losing streak and up against a team that rarely lost a game in that decade.

At halftime, we were losing only 7-0. In the locker room he apologized for doubting we could win and praised the players for their first-half play, his words thundering over the cheers of the players. We didn’t win that game, but the Jackets came of age that night, not losing another game in a 5-4-1 season.

That next summer, I took the position as sports editor of the Eastern Shore News and covered Bill’s team in his second season, watching them go 8-2. He had transformed a program lodged in the depths of the conference to a title contender.

Northampton then played in the very competitive Peanut District, and the players were coming together and getting better each week.

Bill began a baseball run that saw his teams take the title numerous titles and advance to the state’s final four several times. His teams had superior pitching, led by Warner Crumb and Steve Hale, solid defense and timely hitting. Playoff games were often played at night, and crowds packed their way around the field to watch the thrilling contests.

Bill left coaching to pursue business interests, but returned to Arcadia, where he coached football and wrestling and served as the athletic director.

He told me once he made more money in business but missed the kids he came in contact with as a coach. Bill demanded discipline from his athletes, but he gave equal amounts of compassion and caring, helping beyond the playing field.

Larry Giddens, who became sheriff of Accomack County, said, “I know the rest of my life when I applied for anything, the first reference I put down was Bill Prince. I loved that man. He was always there for me. It was an honor for me to be able to coach with him at Central Middle School.”

In 2010, Bill left the Shore to join his brother, Jim, at First Flight High School in Kill Devils Hill, N.C., to help him coach football and head the wrestling program. “I have a brother there, two children and two grandkids, so I am looking forward to spending time with family and being visited by a few friends during the beach season,” said Prince at the time, wrapping up loose ends after coaching at Arcadia High School the past 15 years.

When Arcadia needed a wrestling coach some years later, he returned to the Shore and lived with his sister during the season, pulling off the unusual feat of coaching two different sports in two states in the same school year.

Diabetes soon took a toll on Bill, forcing him to leave coaching. He arranged a football game between First Flight and Arcadia early this season. Unfortunately, he couldn’t be there, confined to a hospital bed for almost a month in the final days of his life.

I talked to his brother Jim shortly after his team played Arcadia, and he said Bill was battling diabetes like the fighter he had always been. He also talked about how great it was they had the chance to live together the past few years, just like they had growing up in Exmore, with a father whose Little League coaching career had made a lasting impression on them.

Bill, said Jim, younger by four years, was his role model after they lost their Dad.

At his funeral this past Tuesday at Camp Oceohannock on the Bay, Bill was remembered for both his intensity on the sidelines and his helpful demeanor off the field.

Faith was a huge part of Bill’s life, and it was at Camp Oceohannock he had been a leader of the first Emmaus Walk held on the Eastern Shore. Now, there have been 96 such walks, and as Rev. Tammy Estep said, “What an impact Bill has made on the Eastern Shore.”

Bill was well-known for his “I Am Somebody” speech, firing up the student body.

That sums up the Bill Prince I knew. Everybody was “Somebody” to him.

Hospice, Refuge to Hold Walk Tomorrow

Hospice and Palliative Care of the Eastern Shore and Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge invite the public to join them Saturday, Oct. 10, at 8 a.m. for the seventh annual “Circle of Life” 3.2-mile run and 1-mile walk.

“We are excited to be holding the race for the seventh year,” said Bonnie Blueford, race organizer. “We are fortunate to have such a beautiful place to run and walk. Many of the runners/walkers come out in memory or support of someone who has been challenged with wellness and it’s always very inspiring.”

The race is designed to highlight the circle of life while elevating the significance of living well through each stage as part of life’s journey, said Bill LeCato, community liaison for Hospice.

“If you want to make a real difference during National Wildlife Refuge Week, why not invite a friend, family member, or co-worker to join you?” asked Refuge Manager Kevin Sloan.

“This event kicks off the annual festivities and provides us with an opportunity to not only celebrate the National Wildlife Refuge System, but to reinforce the tangible and intangible benefits of being active in the great outdoors.”

To learn more about the race and for registration information, visit the Living Well Hospice link at www.hpces.org or call 787-3310.
Arcadia Nips Colonel Richardson in Back-&-Forth Battle

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

Arcadia found itself trailing 14-0 early in the first quarter Wednesday night, only to storm back to take a 26-14 halftime lead, then had to come from behind in the fourth quarter to take a 32-28 home victory and even its record at 3-3 this season.

“We finally woke up,” said Arcadia coach Tony Nock. “We made this game a lot harder than it needed to be, but no one gave up and we got the win.”

Colonel Richardson recovered an onside kick to open the game and then on a 4th and long, Colonel quarterback Shane Bowens evaded a sack and found Erick Joseph for a 46-yard touchdown pass.

Arcadia fumbled the ball on its first offensive play of the game, then Bowens threw a scoring pass to Zach Hall for a quick 14-0 Colonel lead.

The Firebirds responded with a long drive as Jamal Savage ripped off a 20-yard gain and Contrel Brown added a 17-yard run before Tyquan Payton scored on a seven-yard burst up the middle.

Arcadia got a break when Colonel Richardson intercepted a long pass on fourth down at its own 1-yard line, when an incompletion would have given them the ball near midfield. The Firebirds capitalized on the mistake by forcing a safety, with Trey Ballard downing the quarterback on the next play.

Arcadia took the kickoff and moved down the field before stalling on the 8-yard line, where Logan Godwin kicked a 25-yard field goal, cutting the Firebird deficit to 14-12. Godwin also kicked three extra points on the night.

Big Contrel Brown, a 6'4" 270-pound running back, capped a long drive with a 1-yard touchdown run on the next Firebird possession.

Then just before the half, Jamal Savage threw a strike to Devon Rogers on a halfback pass for a 46-yard touchdown with only 20 seconds remaining.

Colonel Richardson refused to go away, however, and scored on a seven-yard run by Apollos Murat in the third quarter to cut Arcadia’s lead to 26-22.

Then in a dramatic turn of events, Terrell Wharton broke what appeared to be a 50-yard touchdown run, dragging two Colonel tacklers into the end zone. However, referees ruled Wharton had fumbled before crossing the end zone and gave Colonel Richardson possession at the 1-yard line.

Arcadia protested, drawing two unsportsmanlike conduct penalties, pushing the ball to the 31-yard line, and on the very next play, Eric Joseph ran for 69 yards a score, giving the Colonels a 28-26 lead.

“That could have been the ball game right there,” said Nock. “The first thing we looked at on film was Terrell crossing the goal line with possession, and when he was tackled the ball came loose. If there was instant replay in high school, that would have been a touchdown. But we didn’t buckles and came back to get the win.”

The Firebirds answered with a long drive, with Savage getting a key 35-yard run after a holding penalty put Arcadia in third and long. Savage also got the winning score on a three-yard run with 5:24 left in the game.

Savage led all rushers with 128 yards on 14 carries, Payton had 77 yards on 11 carries, and Brown added 63 on 13 carries as Arcadia amassed 384 yards on the ground.

Tyric Harris led the Firebirds with 13 tackles, while Wharton and Kerric Hickman had seven each with Rickie Shrievs and Contrel Brown getting five. Savage and Paul Brown had interceptions.

“Before the game, we said we wanted to win the game for Coach Bill Prince (who died Sept. 30). I feel honored to have coached under two great men like Prince and Bill Bynum. Not many guys on the team knew Coach Prince because he has been gone five years, but they knew what he meant to this school.”

Jamal Savage, who led the Firebirds in rushing with 128 yards and scored the winning touchdown, runs for a long gain in Arcadia’s 32-28 win Wednesday night.
Nandua Falls to South Dorchester, Homecoming Set for Tonight

Nandua, playing a Tuesday night game after being unable to practice in almost a week due to school closings from Hurricane Joaquin, was no match for powerful South Dorchester of Cambridge, Md., falling 56-14 on the road.

“The outcome was disappointing, but I felt our offense improved during this game,” said Nandua coach Tom Rotkowski. “There were a lot of positive things from our offensive line, our backs and receivers in this game. We need to move on and get ready for Snow Hill on Friday night.”

Nandua got on the board in the second quarter when junior quarterback Kelly Reagan led the Warriors downfield on the team’s third possession, capping a 14-play, 64-yard drive with a one-yard keeper.

Down 42-6 in the third quarter, the Warriors earned their second touchdown on a Reagan 50-yard touchdown pass to Adrian Matthews, then connected with Hunter Cooper on a 2-point conversion.

The Vikings’ Nate Lowe was 5 for 5, passing for 113 yards and a pair of scores.

Arcadia JV Football Gets First Win

Chris Beasley led the team with six tackles, followed by Jashant Ross with five tackles. Kelvin Williams blocked a punt that led to a touchdown. Emmanuel Belote had 40 yards on five carries and an interception on defense. Jakoria Dickerson scored a touchdown. Kamron Downing scored two touchdowns on a pair of fumble recoveries.

Arcadia JV coach Yardley Townsend said the players dedicated the win to Coach Bill Prince, a former Arcadia football coach who had passed away the morning of the game.

“The defense played very well, while our offense struggled to fight off turning the ball over. I was very proud of my team,” said Townsend.

Local Golfers Compete in Regional Play

Leslie Ibarra led the Warriors with an 86, followed by Jack Schreiber with an 89 and Matt Teasley with a 108. Arcadia’s Ashley Holcomb also qualified for the tournament and shot a 106.

No local golfer advanced to the state tournament.

Chincoteague’s Todd Matthews led the Ponies with a 106 and Brock Schisler and Tristan Binder each shot 110 in the 1A East Regional Golf Tournament held in Tappahannock Wednesday, ending Chinco’s season.

Northampton Falls to Middlesex 57-27

Northampton lost 57-27 at Middlesex Tuesday night in a game delayed by Hurricane Joaquin.

Dyshawn Beckett (at left) scored two touchdowns for the Jackets while Michael Jones also scored a pair of touchdowns.

Northampton had defeated Middlesex last year for its lone win in 2014, breaking a 32-game losing streak for the program.

“We just couldn’t be consistent on defense. We have to take the next step and learn to overcome adversity. Still, I am very proud of my guys. The offensive line played well again,” said Northampton coach Ty Traister.

The loss left Northampton at 2-4 on the season with an open date this weekend before hosting Chincoteague on Oct. 16.

The Jackets end the season with Nandua and Arcadia, the only times Northampton will be facing those district teams this season.
Arcadia Tops Chinco; Nandua Sweeps Firebirds

Arcadia swept Chincoteague in volleyball last week 25-15, 25-20 and 15-7 as Cana Lankford had four aces with Caitlyn Godwin and Mackenzie Lucy getting two each. Susan Dedicatoria had three kills and Amanda Stalgaitis and Lucy had two.

Nandua swept Arcadia Wednesday night at Oak Hall, 25-21, 25-22 and 25-11. Kimberly Wert had nine aces, four digs and five kills, Emma Whitley had six aces, two digs and 13 assists, Amanda Baylis had seven digs and two kills, and Shayne Gordon and Michaela Wescott each had five kills.

For Arcadia, Lankford led the team with six kills, six aces and five blocks. Dedicatoria added two kills, and Godwin and Sierra Bass had two aces each.

Broadwater Cross Country Runners Place High at Norfolk Academy

Broadwater’s Sophie Watson, only an eighth grader, finished second in the girls’ varsity race at the Norfolk Academy Cross Country Meet last Thursday as the Viking girls finished second to the hosts.

Watson had a time of 20:51.2 and Sydney Parks finished fourth in 20:56.7. Kate Gomer was eighth in 21:44.2, and Carly Wardius was 13th in 23:06.8. Darby Lunger was 22nd in 24:24.5 to round out the Broadwater top five.

“This meet was perhaps the best the girls have ever run despite having a couple of our girls missing due to volleyball. The girls are presently ranked 4th in VISAA Division 2,” said Viking coach Eric Hack.

The Broadwater boys also finished second with their best race of the season, according to Hack. Nick Gomer finished in 8th place in 10:11.1, and Robby Parker was 10th in 19:15.8. Aidan Blair finished in 17th place (20.48.10), Daniel Rohde in 20th (21:01.8), and Jacob McClaskey in 27th (21:26.7).

Norfolk Academy won the meet, and Gloucester and Metro Conference rival Denbigh Baptist were third and fourth, respectively.

Nandua, Arcadia CC Results

The Nandua boys finished second out of seven teams at Stephen Decatur in Berlin, Md., last week. Orion Bolster placed fourth in 19:15 to lead the boys. The girls placed third out of six teams as the host school won both the boys’ and girls’ meets. “This meet is on a landfill with hills that the kids are not used to. They worked really hard preparing for hills during the weeks prior to the meet,” said Nandua coach Dana Wright.

Arcadia’s Hector Cime finished 8th in 17:06.2 out of approximately 270 runners in a 5,000-meter run Wednesday in the Tidewater Classic held in Salisbury. Tah’re Pettit was 23rd in 18:03.1 as the Firebirds placed 9th out of 23 teams.

The Eastern Shore has dodged another bullet. Make that two bullets. For a while, Hurricane Joaquin looked like it was coming straight for us. And as soon as that unwanted visitor changed his travel plans, we were told to brace for major coastal flooding and heavy rains. While high tides did produce some problems, the “fire hose” precipitation stayed south of us. Still, those dire warnings were a good exercise in preparedness.

Preparedness is really significant in my life. My son, a career Coastie, lives by his service’s motto “Semper Paratus” (Always Ready).

My daughter’s job title is Emergency Planner. And she’s a good one. When I went to housesit for her during Hurricane Sandy, she had even thought ahead in case I developed a severe case of stupid. Everything in the house I could possibly need (including bottled water, flushing water and dog-bowl water) was labeled with a Post-It note. There was even a Post-It on her first-aid kit — right on top of the label that said “First Aid.”

Anyway, my kids are both experts at preparedness, and they can’t help it. It’s in their genes. As a Cold War Kid, my childhood was punctuated by the occasional publication of suspected intended targets of Russian missiles. The speculated target I recall adults mentioning most seemed to be between the U.S. Capitol and the largest Navy base in the world. Gee, where could that be? These warnings usually were followed by “duck and cover” drills and a restocking of our basement bomb shelter. My father made sure we had tons of water and canned food, fresh batteries and a radio (so we could tune in to the Emergency Broadcast System). We had tools and blankets and even a billy club, though I’m not sure what effect that would have against a Russian missile. Suffice it to say, my dad, a proud veteran of WWII, was not going down without a fight.

It seems Dad’s need for preparedness never wavered, for when we went to close up the house after his passing, we found enough paper towels, toilet paper and canned goods to get a family through Armageddon.

So being prepared is a family tradition. That’s why two days before the last predicted storm, my sister and I went out to get the essentials. A cube of Diet Pepsi, a stash of chocolate and 32 rolls of toilet paper later, we were ready. But the Shore was blessed. High tides, wind, rain and a little thunder were all we had to endure.

At least I think it was thunder. You know, a boom from the sky?

Lately there seems to have been a number of “unexplained” rumblings around the Shore. They have been blamed on everything from methane gas explosions to aliens. However, as a Cold War kid, I knew they were sonic booms as soon as I heard the first one. After all, a sonic boom was one of the most reassuring sounds of my childhood. It meant my country’s jet fighters were ready to blast away those Russians who any day would be sneaking up the Chesapeake and launching missiles from Hunting Creek.

No matter. I’d be safe in the family bomb shelter, eating potted meat and listening to the Emergency Broadcast System on the transistor radio.

Semper Paratus.

Way of Life Threatened

Dear Editor:

Long before there were chain hotels, fancy restaurants, artful flea markets and second Saturdays on Chincoteague Island, there was the working waterman. Long before ponies and golden sands made Chincoteague famous, there were delicious clams and oysters harvested out of local waters and shipped all over the world. My great-grandfather, Harvey “Chinaman” Watson, worked these waters, along with countless other weathered men, to bring the salty goodness to people’s tables. Shucking houses dotted the landscape of Chincoteague. Now only two or three remain.

The proposed ban presented in the general management plan for the national seashore would essentially shut down seafood harvesting in Tom’s Cove between Assateague and Chincoteague islands. According to Assateague National Seashore Superintendent Deborah Darden, this ban has been in place for 50 years, but has never been enforced and now they are proposing to enforce it. Uh, a little late for that, isn’t it? Only the federal government could come up with such a lame, idiotic plan to ban something, not enforce it, then propose to enforce it and take 50 years to do it.

I spoke last week with Eddie Watson, who has been working on the waters around here for years, eking out a living in one of the hardest industries there is, seafood harvesting. They see this proposed ban as the end of their living. What to do now? Go on unemployment like half the country is doing now? Learn a different set of job skills at a later age? Sounds like a plan to me.

Darden is quoted as saying, “Our Washington folks are telling us that these are activities we should look at winding down.” Washington folks? Pencil-pushing, suit-wearing, you-scratch-my-back-I’ll-scratch-yours folks who haven’t a clue what a working waterman is or where Tom’s Cove is, but I bet they sure like consuming what that working waterman provides from Tom’s Cove.

And another snafu is that the state owns the bottomland, the mud you sink your feet into, but the National Seashore Agency owns the water column. Who came up with that? That’s like saying the state owns a diamond ring, but the federal government owns the box it sits in.

I have served on the town’s Beach Access Committee. We’ve had more meetings than I can count. We met with Sen. Tim Kaine and U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials; the town had public meetings. A few council members went before Congress about this 20-year plan.

Which leads me to question: If the powers that be are so concerned about harvesting in Tom’s Cove and surrounding waters, why are they so quick to let the beach wash over into Tom’s Cove to create an inlet that would destroy Tom’s Cove and everything else in its path?

I have written many letters to officials about this plan. Everyone needs to do the same and call the Senate and other government offices. Start local and work your way up until you pester them so much they will start to take notice. Don’t sit around thinking your neighbor will do it. YOU do it. These politicians forget they work for us. The next time a politician comes to your door or some event, remind him or her to put up or shut up.

This is a way of life for many on the Shore and this plan will affect the whole Shore, so if you don’t want to see watermen hauling in their catch anymore, then do nothing. But if you like the tasty treat of seafood from the local waters of Chincoteague and Assateague, then get on the phone, pull out some paper and get busy.

Denise Bowden, Chincoteague Island

PostScript Column Appalling

Dear Editor:

I was shocked beyond measure after reading your viewpoint. You definitely must have been having a bad day. Your newspaper should be an instrument of impartial reporting. Whatever possessed you to feel that you should single out Breast Cancer Awareness Month in such negative and uncaring tones?

Yes, everyone has issues that are near and dear to their hearts — agendas that they believe should be addressed. And yes, all types of cancer are very real and significant. I personally would like to see an end to all the dreadful diseases that rob people of their lives. It seems that we have a high cancer rate on the Shore. Everyone is and has been affected by cancer. My late mother endured cervical cancer back in the late 60s. There were no cancer treatment facilities nearby, so for six weeks she had to travel to Baltimore weekly to receive radiation treatments. Chemo was unheard of in those days and her treatments were very radical and left her with debilitating side effects and for the rest of her life. She endured other health issues because of this radical treatment. Her greatest achievement was being a 45-year cancer survivor and how proud she was of it!

In conclusion, any advancement in the fight to end all types of cancers is an honorable one. If, during Breast Cancer Awareness Month, just one person gets a mammogram and cancer is found, one life may be saved. Then it will be well worth it! Be happy and rejoice that one more person has been given another chance to live — a positive attitude is essential in all of our living.

As a newspaper editor, you should be addressing other issues. Our world has lost its compassion and good hearts. Do we wonder why our world is in such chaos?
