Horntown Homicide Reported

By Linda Cicoira

A Horntown man was shot to death Thursday morning, according to Sheriff Todd Godwin.

Accomack County Sheriff’s Office (ACSO) received a complaint at 12:02 a.m. When deputies arrived outside a residence on Raymond Townsend Lane in Horntown, they found Robert Franklin Baytops IV, 22, suffering from a gunshot wound. He was taken to Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury, Md., where he later died.

No arrests have been made. Anyone with information about the case is asked to call ACSO at 787-1131 or 824-5666. Tips may also be submitted at www.accomackcountysheriffsoffice.org

Woman Dies in Exmore House Fire

By Linda Cicoira

A woman, who has not yet been identified by authorities, died in a fire in Northampton County last week.

Chief Greg DeYoung of Exmore Community Fire Company said six companies were called to the scene about a quarter mile east of Concord Wharf Road at about 3:40 a.m. Jan. 27.

The house “was fully involved” and the “roof had collapsed” when about 20 firefighters arrived from Exmore, Nassawadox, Eastville, Painter, Melfa and Wachapreague. The blaze had spread to nearby woods and took about 10 minutes to control.

Firefighters, none of whom were injured, stayed on the scene for about three hours, DeYoung said.

“We had a credible report from a neighbor that an elderly female was in the trailer and her vehicle was parked outside,” the chief said. “Remains were found within the building and were taken to the Medical Examiner’s Office for positive identification.

The cause of the fire is being investigated by State Police, DeYoung added.

Arkuie Williams of the Medical Examiner’s Office said Tuesday they are still working to identify the body. “The identification process can be time-consuming based on remains and what information we have access to,” he said.

Bomb Threats Evacuate Schools

By Linda Cicoira

All three Northampton schools and Chincoteague Elementary were evacuated Tuesday after receiving bomb threats.

According to Northampton Superintendent Eddie Lawrence, the caller said a bomb would go off in 40 minutes.

“We evacuated all of our buildings, notified the sheriff’s office … and are bringing in K-9s from Chesapeake, Isle of Wight and Virginia Beach,” Lawrence said. The incident happened at about 10 a.m.

“I’m hoping they catch this person,” he said. “I hope the judge ends up throwing the book at him. People had their graduation at stake here today. We were testing in our buildings today. It’s really upsetting me.”

Because of the time it took for the search units to arrive, school was dismissed in Northampton.

Chincoteague Elementary School received a bomb threat at nearly 9:40 a.m. “The school was immediately evacuated according to the protocol and procedures in the crisis management plan for Accomack County Public Schools,” a prepared statement said.

Chincoteague Police Department was alerted and the K-9 Unit from Worcester County, Md., went through the building, the announcement stated. A teacher work day was being held and no students were at school.

“While the building was being thoroughly searched, teachers and staff were safely evacuated and sent over to the Chincoteague Center nearby,” the statement continued. “No bomb was found and the all clear from officials was given at 11:08 a.m. Teachers and staff resumed their workday.”

Superintendent Chris Holland offered thanks to police, the Maryland unit, the school staff and the operational team “for responding quickly and ensuring the safety of all. The safety of our staff and teachers is our top priority.”

School Board Focuses on Budget

By Ron West

The Northampton School Board continued to work out the kinks of the FY 2017 budget last week.

Superintendent Eddie Lawrence laid out a number of items he would like included in the spending package. With staff recruiting and retention high on his priority list, he urged the board to consider a 1.5 percent pay increase. The superintendent noted that the proposed state budget calls for the state to fund an additional teacher for every school system, which could result in smaller school systems having to offer competitive enticements.

In a related area, teacher mentor Karen Aita addressed the issue of teachers obtaining National Certification. Currently, four Northampton County teachers have achieved that designation. Aita said the process can take up to three years and the county has had as many as a dozen teachers complete the certification process but not all have remained in the county.

Nationally certified teachers must be recertified every five years. Lawrence urged the board to include a small stipend for teachers who have achieved National Certification.

A public hearing on the proposed school budget will be held Feb. 16 at 6:30 p.m. at Northampton High School. The board then will have approximately two weeks to finalize its recommendations for funding to the county supervisors, who will decide how much local funding will be provided to the School Board.

The board also heard a report by Operations Director Chris Truckner and Lawrence regarding damage at Kiptopeke Elementary School as a result of deteriorating pipes in the heating system. Truckner noted that one classroom was flooded, but the maintenance staff had the matter corrected and the room back in use a few hours later. The superintendent said the problem was a result of the insulation used when the school was constructed in 1992.

Charles “Chuck” Ward will be on the ballot for mayor of Chincoteague on May 3.

Ward said he discussed his candidacy with the current Mayor Jack Tarr prior to launching a campaign website (www.MayorChuck.com) and publicly announcing his candidacy. “I applaud Jack for his 20-plus years of service to our community. This isn’t about me trying to win an election; it’s about offering new ideas and a different approach to the local government process on the island.”

Said Ward, “I want to get the public involved, and make sure they know what we are doing with their tax dollars. I believe that we need to protect our island’s character and ensure that it remains a great place to live. We can’t afford to lose what makes us unique, because once it’s gone, we can never get it back.”

Ward believes year-round economic development is needed on the island. “We need to initiate a concentrated, staffed effort to improve our year-round economy,” he said. “We should be looking at ways to provide space for NASA contractor offices and other businesses to locate on the island to generate employment for our residents. Currently, there are NASA contractors leasing space as far away as Princess Anne, Md. It would be great to have some of those jobs here, not 40 miles away.”

Regarding Assateague, Ward stated, “We must maintain convenient access to the beach to protect our tourism economy. I envision the town leasing the existing parking lot area that is slated to be abandoned. The State of Maryland operates a park in the middle of the National Park on the north end, and I believe we could do something similar here. A town-managed beach area could generate a lot of revenue, provide local employment opportunities, and provide protection for Chincoteague. At the very least, if we can secure some management rights, dunes could be established and grasses planted to absorb storm impacts.”

Ward wants the town to be closely involved with the design of the new parking areas proposed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to ensure the visitor experience is not compromised. “Good design is critical,” he said. “We must secure a seat at the table in the planning process.”

If elected, Ward has other issues he would like to address, such as creating community dog parks on town land, building a new skateboard park to replace the one at Memorial Park, and improving pedestrian and cycling access on the island.

Ward has served on the Planning Commission and is currently a member of the Board of Zoning Appeals.

A lifelong Eastern Shore resident, Ward was raised on his family’s farm in Stockton, Md. He and his wife, Tama, have been Accomack County residents for over 20 years, and have made Chincoteague their home for the last 11 years. Ward has 12 years of experience as a land use planner and as a director of planning and zoning. He has been employed by the Eastern Shore Soil and Water Conservation District and as a private agricultural and environmental consultant on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. He is employed as an environmental scientist at NASA Wallops Flight Facility.
Tourists Never Overstay Their Welcome

By Linda Cicoira

Tourism continues to climb in Accomack and Northampton counties, which jointly gained recognition as Virginia’s fastest growing tourism region for the second year in row.

Eastern Shore Tourism Commission Executive Director Kerry Allison gave the latest report, for 2014, to Chincoteague officials Monday night. She said visitor spending totaled $254 million — $697,000 — a day and has jumped 22 percent since 2009.

“We’re no longer looking at age,” said Allison. “We’re finding out that people share values no matter what their age.”

“Consumers, they don’t have time … they want to simplify their trip. They want local … they want to go out to the oyster farm, go out in the water and maybe go back and cook it,” she continued. “They want rich local culture. They don’t want an orchestrated experience.”

Allison said the quaint, folksy ways of the Eastern Shore are perfect for such activities since the residents and local business owners are naturals.

Visitors are paying $6.6 million in lodging, meals and sales taxes. Allison reported that revenue from the transient-occupancy tax is up 43 percent and includes Chincoteague’s increase in 2012 from 5 percent to 6 percent for the levy.

Jobs related to tourism have gone up 9 percent and payroll has increased 21 percent between 2009 and 2014, more than double the increase in state employment and a drop in the composite index, said Allison. “We’re finding out that people like to travel in small groups of 3 or 4 now,” she said.

Some said they are saving their contingency funds, which has the norm in recent years.

The overall school operating budget is $574,940 and a special-needs bus for $98,136 are also in the plan, along with a $150,000 increase for health insurance and requests for other needs.

The total increase over the current year’s budget is about $2.6 million. The school system expects to get about $1.9 million more from the state this year because of a slight increase in enrollment and a drop in the composite index, Financial Director Beth Onley said.

Included in the school proposal is $176,387 more than last year in local funding, based on a 53 percent formula that has been the norm in recent years. The overall school operating budget is nearly $48.9 million and has about $900,000 less in contingency funds.

When a public hearing on the document was held Tuesday night at Indian River High School, about 40 people attended. The same outspoken employees were present but didn’t talk publicly. They are satisfied with the plan. Some said they are saving their comments for the supervisors, who must decide on the budget.

The only employee who spoke was T.J. Johnson, assistant principal at Nandua Middle School. He thanked the school board for listening to the community.

Activist Ronnie Thomas of Atlantic urged the School Board to give teachers the supplies they need. He said Kegotank Elementary teachers sometimes have to go elsewhere to find a copier.

The School Board will have to come up with the $500,000 or cut the draft. Allison continued. The commission’s website is being monitored, updated and used more. It has grown in visits by 696 percent since 2011. Facebook “likes” went up by 1,836 from 2013 to 2015. Allison said “sharing” helps increase awareness of the area.

Travel guide requests are up 1,001 percent.

“If someone goes through the trouble of ordering a travel guide, they are likely to visit us,” Allison said. They also want accurate information, people who answer phones and emails and management of user-generated feedback.

Allison said regional collaboration is the way to go. “We’re trying to cozy up to Virginia Beach, the number one tourist spot in the state,” she said.

Council voted to apply for a $5,000 grant for the Chincoteague Cultural Alliance. A spokesperson for the group said it offers 1,000 events per year which help bring tourists to the island. They include movies, Plein Air painting competitions, coffee houses, theater, and concerts.

Accomack Schools Present Draft Budget

By Linda Cicoira

Sometimes perseverance pays. But will it be enough to meet the nearly $500,000 shortfall in Accomack Public Schools’ proposed FY2017 budget?

A band of educators who work for the division have attended School Board meetings for months to ask for more money and appreciation. In December, about 800 full-time school employees were each given a $1,000 bonus. Teachers were there to cheer. And they weren’t the only ones to get the perk. Administrators, clerical staff and others also were given the stipend.

Now the School Board wants to increase teachers’ salaries with a step increase of 1.34 percent plus a 4 percent raise that totals $1,075,790. Superintendent Chris Holland had initially suggested the step hike plus 2 percent, which is about $410,000 less.

The board’s proposed budget also includes a 3.34 percent raise in classified employee pay, totaling $208,880, and about $79,000 for 35 administrators, as recommended by Holland.

Five more regular school buses totaling $436,430 and a special-needs bus for $98,136 are also in the plan, along with a $150,000 increase for health insurance and requests for other needs.

They are satisfied with the plan. Some said they are saving their comments for the supervisors, who must decide on the budget.

Virginia Dept. of Health Zika Virus Fact Sheet

What is Zika virus infection?
Zika virus infection is a viral disease spread to people through bites of infected mosquitoes. Mosquitoes become infected by feeding on infected persons. Zika virus is transmitted primarily by Aedes aegypti (Yellow fever mosquito). Aedes albopictus (Asian tiger mosquito) also can spread the virus.

Where does Zika virus occur?
Outbreaks of Zika virus infection have occurred in Africa, Southeast Asia, the Pacific Islands, Central America, South America, the Caribbean and Mexico. For a map, see http://www.cdc.gov/zika/geo/index.html Because the mosquitoes that spread the virus are found around the world, it is likely that outbreaks will spread to new countries. No locally transmitted Zika cases have been reported in the continental United States, but cases have been reported in returning travelers.

Who gets Zika virus infection?
Anyone traveling to an area where Zika virus is found can become infected. Infections have been reported in travelers returning to the U.S. from affected areas.

What are the symptoms of Zika virus infections?
About 80 percent of people who are infected do not become sick. For the 20 percent who do become sick, the most common symptoms include fever, rash, joint pain, and conjunctivitis (red eyes). The illness is usually mild and the symptoms typically last several days to a week.

How soon do symptoms occur?
Symptoms usually start 3-7 days after being bitten by an infected mosquito.

How dangerous is Zika virus infection?
During the 2015–16 outbreak of Zika virus infection in Brazil, a large increase in the number of babies born with a congenital birth defect called microcephaly was observed. Microcephaly describes a baby or child with a smaller than normal brain and head. Studies are being done to see if the increase in reports of babies with microcephaly is because of an infection with Zika virus. Other causes also are being investigated.

What special precautions should pregnant women take to prevent Zika virus?
The role of Zika virus infections during pregnancy is being studied. Out of an abundance of caution, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) advise that pregnant women avoid traveling to countries with ongoing Zika virus infections.

Zika virus is mainly spread in a person-to-mosquito-to-person cycle. An infected mosquito bites a person. That person will have Zika virus in his or her blood, especially in the first week of illness. Another mosquito bites that infected person, becomes infected and can then bite another person. People who are infected but not sick may still pass the virus on to mosquitoes that bite them.

Zika virus also can spread from mother to baby during pregnancy or birth.

What is the treatment for Zika virus infection?
There is no specific treatment for Zika virus infection. Healthcare providers primarily provide supportive care to relieve symptoms. This may include rest, fluids, and use of over-the-counter medicine. Infected people also should stay indoors or wear protective clothing and mosquito repellent for the first week after they begin to feel sick. This will help prevent mosquitoes from biting them and potentially spreading the virus to others in the community.

If you have symptoms of Zika virus infection and have been to an affected area in the past two weeks, contact your healthcare provider who may test your blood for Zika virus and other similar mosquito-borne illnesses.
Accomack Grand Jury

Twenty-three-year-old Nicholas Martinez White, who is being held on a second-degree murder charge in connection with the shooting death of a 13-year-old boy last October, was indicted by an Accomack grand jury Monday on two counts of having sex with a girl between 13 and 15.

According to records filed in Accomack Circuit Court, the sex crimes were committed without the use of force between July 1 and Aug. 31, 2015. Sgt. Anthony Bright of Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) gave information about those cases to the jury.

Accomack Circuit Court

A Painter woman pleaded guilty last week in Accomack Circuit Court to child neglect and abuse of a 6-year-old girl who was raped and sodomized while in her custody.

Kate L. Giddens, 27, of Shellbridge Road entered the plea in a bargaining agreement that called for her to serve 30 days in jail and make restitution of nearly $3,000. The incident occurred between Feb. 1 and Dec. 30, 2013.

The charge states the crime was “in a manner so gross, wanton and culpable as to show a reckless disregard for human life.”

John H. Lewis, 37, of Virginia Drive in West Bradenton, Fla., was sentenced in December to 44 years in prison for the sex crimes involving the child. He was given 22 years on each count, to run consecutively, with half the time suspended, leaving 22 years to serve. He pleaded no contest to the charges.

In another case, Christopher Michael Gingrich, 21, of Whitehorse Drive in Berlin, Md., pleaded guilty to possessing heroin and illegal drug paraphernalia on Jan. 23, 2015.

Toria Javon Upshur, 29, of Old Towne Neck Road in Eastville pleaded guilty to possession of a firearm by a felon on April 21, 2015.

Gingrich, Kennedy and Upshur were allowed to remain free on existing bond until short-form presentence reports can be filed.
Cheriton Seeks To Clean Up, Dry Out

By Ron West

Cheriton Town Council focused its attention at its meeting last Thursday on how to address overflowing ditches and dilapidated housing.

Citing a particular abandoned structure in town, Councilwoman Mary Mears noted that the broken windows in the unoccupied dwelling pose a risk to children who might venture inside. Mayor Joe Habel and council agreed to board up the structure and seek to identify and locate the owner. Council agreed to issue a request for proposal (RFP) to retain a company to demolish the structure if the deficiencies are not corrected by the owner.

Recent storms have left water that overwhelmed ditches and drains in various parts of the town. Councilman Barry Downing reported that Virginia Department of Transportation workers found that one drain and culvert that passes under a street was plugged to the point that they could not clear it to allow stormwater to pass through it.

A similar issue near the privately owned town Post Office parking lot needs to be corrected. The owner does not live in the area. Council agreed to seek a resolution with the property owner to correct the unsafe conditions.

Councilman Wesley Travis spoke of problems that have arisen because chickens are roaming freely in some parts of the town, which is not allowed by the Town Code.

A second animal issue involves the feral cat population. Mears reported that donations have been made to help neuter cats that are humanely trapped. Habel said he would seek to have additional traps placed in the town.

Mears also reported that the Visionary Committee has proposed that the town develop brochures providing information on Cheriton and have them placed in the Welcome Center at the north end of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Mears said the cost of having them displayed at the Welcome Center would run approximately $150. Council agreed unanimously to move forward with the proposal.

An additional recommendation from the committee was to produce a DVD offering a historical prospective of the town, including interviews with a number of longtime residents who give firsthand knowledge of what it was like to live in the town when it was a bustling community. The DVDs would be offered at a nominal fee. Council agreed to proceed with the project as well as set up a TV in the Town Office to loop a display of the DVD material.

Council discussed requesting an RFP regarding broadband access to the town. Hable said there are three Internet providers that offer service in the community. Council agreed to generate an ad for the RFP.

Council also agreed to collect information regarding the town’s demographics for the purpose of developing a HAZMAT Mitigation policy to inform the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in the event of a disaster.

Chincoteague Councilmen Announce Intentions

By Linda Cicoira

During Chincoteague’s Town Council session Monday, two Chincoteague councilmen announced plans to run for re-election. A third said he won’t be seeking another term.

Town elections will be held May 3, when, according to county Registrar Patricia White, three of six council seats and the mayor’s post will be up for grabs.

Councilman J. Arthur Leonard was the first to mention his re-election interest. He was elected to a first four-year term in 2012. Councilman Gene W. Taylor came in at the same time and held a sign up to let every know he will be going for a second run.

Councilman John N. Jester Jr., who has held his seat for two terms, said, “I’m not running. My wife would kill me.”

After the meeting, Mayor Jack Tarr continued to say he had not decided if he will run for a third term. Tarr has until March 1 to make up his mind. Former Accomack Supervisor Ray Rosenberger explained later. The idea is to “see if it is feasible. We want to do some studies” and learn “how we can pay for it,” Rosenberger said.

Planning Commissioner Spiro Papadopoulos asked council to make the Wastewater Committee a subcommittee of the Planning Commission. They agreed and established that three residents and two real-estate holders should serve. The change allows the committee to meet more frequently.

Exmore Council Given Proposed Town Budget

By Ron West

Exmore Town Manager Robert Duer presented Town Council with a proposed FY 2017 town budget Monday.

The $1.79 million spending package allows for a continuation of current services as well as the new well system.

Public Utilities Director Taylor Dukes reported that the new well should be operational on time. He stated that upgrades to the wastewater facility need to be completed prior to adding more collection lines. Once corrections are made to the facility and additional lines have been connected, wastewater fees probably need to be increased to help cover the improvement costs, Dukes said.

Council reviewed a recommendation by Duer to reduce the current Business Professional Occupational License fee as a way to assist new businesses. He suggested that council set a flat fee for the first two years. Council agreed to conduct a public hearing on the proposal at 6:45 p.m. at their session March 7.

Mayor Joe Habel and council agreed to board up the structure and seek to identify and locate the owner. Council agreed to issue a request for proposal (RFP) to retain a company to demolish the structure if the deficiencies are not corrected by the owner.

Recent storms have left water that overwhelmed ditches and drains in various parts of the town. Councilman Barry Downing reported that Virginia Department of Transportation workers found that one drain and culvert that passes under a street was plugged to the point that they could not clear it to allow stormwater to pass through it.

A similar issue near the privately owned town Post Office parking lot needs to be corrected. The owner does not live in the area. Council agreed to seek a resolution with the property owner to correct the unsafe conditions.

Councilman Wesley Travis spoke of problems that have arisen because chickens are roaming freely in some parts of the town, which is not allowed by the Town Code.

A second animal issue involves the feral cat population. Mears reported that donations have been made to help neuter cats that are humanely trapped. Habel said he would seek to have additional traps placed in the town.

Mears also reported that the Visionary Committee has proposed that the town develop brochures providing information on Cheriton and have them placed in the Welcome Center at the north end of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Mears said the cost of having them displayed at the Welcome Center would run approximately $150. Council agreed unanimously to move forward with the proposal.

An additional recommendation from the committee was to produce a DVD offering a historical prospective of the town, including interviews with a number of longtime residents who give firsthand knowledge of what it was like to live in the town when it was a bustling community. The DVDs would be offered at a nominal fee. Council agreed to proceed with the project as well as set up a TV in the Town Office to loop a display of the DVD material.

Council discussed requesting an RFP regarding broadband access to the town. Hable said there are three Internet providers that offer service in the community. Council agreed to generate an ad for the RFP.

Council also agreed to collect information regarding the town’s demographics for the purpose of developing a HAZMAT Mitigation policy to inform the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in the event of a disaster.

Chincoteague Councilmen Announce Intentions

By Linda Cicoira

During Chincoteague’s Town Council session Monday, two Chincoteague councilmen announced plans to run for re-election. A third said he won’t be seeking another term.

Town elections will be held May 3, when, according to county Registrar Patricia White, three of six council seats and the mayor’s post will be up for grabs.

Councilman J. Arthur Leonard was the first to mention his re-election interest. He was elected to a first four-year term in 2012. Councilman Gene W. Taylor came in at the same time and held a sign up to let every know he will be going for a second run.

Councilman John N. Jester Jr., who has held his seat for two terms, said, “I’m not running. My wife would kill me.”

After the meeting, Mayor Jack Tarr continued to say he had not decided if he will run for a third term. Tarr has until March 1 to make up his mind. Former Accomack Supervisor Ray Rosenberger explained later. The idea is to “see if it is feasible. We want to do some studies” and learn “how we can pay for it,” Rosenberger said.

Planning Commissioner Spiro Papadopoulos asked council to make the Wastewater Committee a subcommittee of the Planning Commission. They agreed and established that three residents and two real-estate holders should serve. The change allows the committee to meet more frequently.

Exmore Council Given Proposed Town Budget

By Ron West

Exmore Town Manager Robert Duer presented Town Council with a proposed FY 2017 town budget Monday.

The $1.79 million spending package allows for a continuation of current services as well as the new well system.

Public Utilities Director Taylor Dukes reported that the new well should be operational on time. He stated that upgrades to the wastewater facility need to be completed prior to adding more collection lines. Once corrections are made to the facility and additional lines have been connected, wastewater fees probably need to be increased to help cover the improvement costs, Dukes said.

Council reviewed a recommendation by Duer to reduce the current Business Professional Occupational License fee as a way to assist new businesses. He suggested that council set a flat fee for the first two years. Council agreed to conduct a public hearing on the proposal at 6:45 p.m. at their session March 7.

Foodbank Thrift Store Permanently Closing Feb. 26

The Eastern Shore branch of the Foodbank of Southeastern Virginia will be closing the doors of its thrift store in Tasley on Feb. 26.

Focus is being redirected to the organization’s core mission of eliminating hunger in the community.

The foodbank has seen an increase in food distributed over the past three years. Last year, the Eastern Shore branch distributed over 1.2 million pounds of food to individuals in need.

“In order to best serve the Eastern Shore community, it was determined by the Board of Directors that focusing more significantly on food distribution is the best course of action for the immediate future,” said board President Paul G. Finch. “Input from Eastern Shore task force members and various committees weighed in on this difficult decision.”

“As we look toward the future, our top priority is to implement a viable strategy to reduce and eliminate hunger across our service area,” said Ruth Jones Nichols, chief executive officer. “Over the next several months, we will look at how to best position the branch office and our organization as a whole to best meet the needs of our clients. We will gather feedback from Eastern Shore community members to help inform future decisions.”

“Food at the forefront of the decision, capital improvements will be made to the space previously utilized for the thrift store. Top priorities for repair or replacement include expanding food storage areas, making them more efficient and safer; replacing the inefficient and aging heating, ventilation and air conditioning system; increasing volunteer production space; and resurfacing the warehouse floor. Food safety and handling, efficiency, personnel and client safety are at the heart of the renovations that will begin next month.”

“Food safety is paramount when it comes to storing and distributing the quantity of food that passes through our doors daily,” said Renee Figurelle, chief operating officer at the foodbank. “These necessary repairs will allow us to provide an increased amount of higher quality, nutritious food to residents of the Eastern Shore and allow greater opportunities for volunteers to help with production and food distribution.”

“Even though the closing of the thrift store will be difficult, it will allow us to better serve the community by focusing on getting more food out to those in need,” said Charmin Horton, Eastern Shore branch manager. “We are excited about the renovations as they will allow for members of the community to be engaged with more hands-on volunteer opportunities such as packing BackPack bags and USDA food boxes. We will continue to provide referral information for families and the general public.”

The foodbank will be liquidating thrift store stock and will work with other thrift stores in our service area. Anyone looking to donate clothing or looking for affordable clothing to purchase can visit Light House Ministries Thrift at 25523 East Main St. in Onley, Hospice Thrift Store at 165 Market St. in Onancock or other local stores across the area.

The Eastern Shore branch of the Foodbank of Southeastern Virginia recently had a food safety audit performed by the American Institute of Baking (AIB), an organization committed to protecting the safety of the food supply chain. Members of the Feeding America network of food banks are required to pass this global ‘gold standard’ food safety rating.

Eastern Shore Foodbank received a rating score of 885/1000.

Northampton Planners Give Boost to Solar Energy Project

By Ron West

The Northampton Planning Commission reviewed a request for a special-use permit (SUP) from Hecate Energy to establish a solar energy facility at 15446 Seaside Rd. near Eastville.

The 20-megawatt project would occupy approximately 185 acres and could generate enough energy to power 3,280 homes. Hecate spokesperson Preston Scholtz presented graphics showing how the solar arrays would appear on the property. The solar panels would be able to adjust themselves to track the sun, drawing as much power as possible from it. Scholtz stated that if the project is approved by the county, construction could begin in the spring and might be completed and operational by October.

Speaking for Hecate Energy, Pat Fauber spoke in opposition to the project, noting that her home uses solar power as a source of energy and sees it as a way to reduce reliance on other energy sources.

Eastville resident Everett Watson spoke in support of the project.

During the discussion by the Planning Commission, Commissioner Dave Fauber spoke in opposition to the location of the project. He noted that the Comprehensive Plan opposes the placement of commercial projects in the county’s aquifer recharge area and suggested that other sites would be better suited. Fauber cited the value and limited amount of agricultural land in Northampton County and said it should not be used for this project.

On a vote of 5-1 (Fauber voting against), the planners agreed to recommend to the Board of Supervisors that it approve the SUP. The supervisors will conduct a public hearing on the project at their session Feb. 9.

Community Emergency Response Training

A Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) training program is available to Shore residents beginning Tuesday, Feb. 16.

CERT training prepares citizens and communities to take a more active role in emergency preparedness. CERT participants are trained and maintained as part of a neighborhood or workplace response team. CERT training can give you the basic skills needed immediately following a major disaster, when emergency services may not be available and when residents may have to rely on each other for life-saving and life-sustaining needs.

Citizens will learn how to provide help for their family and neighbors in emergency situations — whether caused by terrorism, technological disasters or severe weather. Participants will learn about disaster preparedness and response, basic fire safety, first aid, search-and-rescue techniques, and terrorism preparedness.

Students will have chances to win door prizes and at the conclusion of the class, all students will receive a backpack filled with emergency supplies.

The 20.5-hour free program consists of both lecture and practical exercises. The class will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings, Feb. 16, 18, 23, and 25, from 6 until 10, and on Tuesday, March 1, from 5:30 until 10 p.m. Participants must attend all sessions to receive credit. They will be held at the Eastern Shore Regional Fire Training Center, 28598 Beacon Rd. in Melfa.

Class size is limited to 30 people. If fewer than 10 people are registered, the class will be canceled. Register online at http://eastern-shore-cert.eventbrite.com or call J.J. Justis at (757) 302-4267.

The CERT program is funded through a grant administered by the Virginia Department of Emergency Management and donations from local business and community partners.

That is approximately how much of your tax dollars was spent to develop a new zoning ordinance. Have I got your attention now? The new zoning ordinance was passed on December 8, 2015. Designed for economic growth, more jobs and prosperity for the working stiff, business owner and everyone in Northampton County trying to squeak out a living and a future for their family. It lived a short life; 35 days to be exact. That’s $4,285 a day. The average working man/woman in Northampton County would have to work 2 months to make $4,285. Our new board of supervisors killed it on their first day on the job. The voting went; District 1 - KILL, District 2 - LIVE, District 3 - LIVE, District 4 - KILL, District 5 - KILL. That’s like getting a new boss and getting fired on his first day. He didn’t even take the time to get to know you, he just gave you the boot. Well, in this case the boot is special interest groups. People just looking out for their own special interest. Living in their fancy houses overlooking the bay. They have referred to us as ignorant, stupid, cowards, and greedy people in public records. They have made theirs. In most cases, someplace other than Northampton County. Now they want to take away our opportunity to make ours. If you have had enough, take action, tell YOUR supervisor.

JOIN THIS MOVEMENT.
Come to the Northampton Board of Supervisors meeting on Tuesday February 9, 2016, 7pm and be heard.

KEEP 2015 ZONING

Sponsored by, The AWAKENED Silent Majority!
Proposed legislation is flying through the committee system and onto the floor of the Capitol to be voted on. If passed, the bills will proceed to the Senate for the process to start over. The long days are productive but tiring. The pace will continue as we approach “crossover,” where each chamber, the House and the Senate, must finish all the bills presented on its side. This is a crazy pace and one must ask if there is really that much wrong with our great state that we need to consider over 3,000 pieces of legislation.

The deadline forces us to make a decision and vote. We would be well served if Washington would follow our example. Most of the bills of note, such as the $5,000 land oyster leasing bill, were defeated quickly. We still have bills that need to be fixed or killed that could negatively affect the 100th District. I will work with the patron of the bill to fix the legislation that could do us harm, or will rally my friends to defeat the bill. A lot of legislation passes or dies because of friendships and the trust of their judgment on issues that may not be familiar.

The last topic of great interest to people in the district is the concealed weapon reciprocity agreement that our attorney general would not sign with 25 other states as had been done in the past. There is legislation that would fix this problem and I am hopeful that it will get resolved so that reciprocity agreement is able to be restored. I will be relieved when the governor signs the bills.

I encourage you to keep in touch with me and my office over the coming months. You can email me at delrbloxom@house.virginia.gov or call me in Richmond at 804-698-1000.

One more waterfowling season is in the books for this old loon.

When your first hunt was as a 12-year-old boy, and it is now more than a half-century later, many a memory has been made in the marsh in the pursuit of game.

My first real hunt was a short walk through the woods on my father’s farm. Dad and my uncle were at my side. When we reached the blind on Currituck Creek, they pointed out a greenhead mallard swimming close to the shoreline.

I lifted a 12-gauge Remington my father had presented me that morning and fired in the direction of the duck. I think I hit it, but a follow-up shot by my uncle made sure the drake didn’t get away.

That Remington Model 1148 was in such pristine condition I thought it was new. Years later, I learned Dad had bought that gun the year I was born and gave it to me when he purchased a new Browning shotgun the year I turned 12.

I still have the Remington, although it has long been retired after years of use. I think it has been re-blued twice, having suffered through some harsh conditions over decades of use. Dad’s Browning, I feel sure, looks like it just came out of the box, so careful he is with taking care of a gun — or anything he owns. I did not get that gene.

This year’s waterfowling season ended last Sunday, but for me the last day was always going to be Saturday. Sunday hunting was introduced only two years ago, and my habits had long been set. Neither I nor most of my hunting buddies hunt on Sundays.

In a tradition started more than a decade ago, my son and several of his friends visited the Shore to enjoy some time in the blind together.

Billy, Godwin and Chandler first came with my son Parke to hunt on the family farm when they were fraternity brothers at Randolph-Macon College. It might have been a few years later I realized Godwin and Chandler were last names. Both share the first name of John. With a third John in the fraternity, the guys started calling them by their last name, which stays with them for many, even today.

Neither had done much hunting before that first trip, but today Billy and Godwin are avid waterfowl hunters.

I was fearful we ruined those two on one of their early hunts when they were left on a seaside tump with leaky boots, inadequate clothing and a rising tide. Instead, they grew to love hunting, probably thinking they could never suffer more than they did on that trip.

Today, they have the proper gear, various decoys and superb skills in calling geese and ducks, an art I have never fully mastered.

I had not hunted all that often this year before last week, as a concession to creaky bones and mild temperatures for much of December.

Over Christmas, I hunted with my brother Steve and his 15-year-old son, Mason. In a flooded field we bagged two mallards and a black duck. It was Mason’s first drake mallard, a trophy for any hunter. That made the day for all of us, seeing a young hunter admire the plumage of a beautiful duck.

Last week at the same field David Shaw, Taylor Dukes, Will Harte and I walked away with two geese and a pair of mallards.

A few days later, when Parke and his buds had arrived, we were able to down eight geese from a blind on a family farm.

On another hunt, when few birds were flying, we were joined by Brandon Sterling, today a captain with the Virginia Marine Police.

Hunting, for me, is all about the relationships and the camaraderie we enjoy in the blind.

After that first boyhood hunt, I seldom hunted with my father, who preferred deer hunting, although we have often enjoyed rabbit hunting together.

But through my teen years and in college, I often hunted with my uncle, Garland Sterling, who taught me about the ways of waterfowl.

I recall my roommates at college enjoying duck dinners I cooked from the game we took during Christmas break.

Uncle Garland would be Brandon’s grandfather, and Brandon and I talked about growing up in a time and place where game was plentiful, while searching the sky on a day few birds were seen.

Another uncle I often hunted with in my youth was Newman Drewer. He took to me on hunting trips with friends in Virginia Beach’s Back Bay; on overnight stays on Saxis, where we had family; and on Craddock Creek, where I live today.

Both Uncle Garland and Newman have long since passed away, but a constant hunting companion during the 14 years I have lived on Craddock Creek has been Newman’s son Craig, also my neighbor.

In fact, much of the fun today during hunting season is joining Craig and his hunting buddies at his house — where there is always plenty of food and a pool table — and retelling the stories of past hunts.

Those tales are full of great hunts, comedic mishaps and shared suffering in the elements of the marsh. But they almost always evoke great laughter and a shared kinship with a pastime that is centuries old.

Certainly, things today are not as they were centuries ago, or even a few decades ago when I hunted with Craig’s father and Brandon’s grandfather.

Waterfowl is not as plentiful as in those bygone days. Bag limits are stricter to help preserve the populations of the waterfowl that once dotted our landscape. I can recall as a youth seeing as many as a thousand canvasbacks on Nandua Creek — and I mean on one day, not for a season.

This year I did not see one.

Many of my contemporaries have given up hunting for lack of game and the sacrifices it takes to pursue waterfowl. But as long as my son Parke still enjoys hunting — giving me opportunities to spend quality time with him — and I can spend time with descendants of the uncles who introduced me to waterfowling, I will continue to don my waders and venture into the great outdoors.

Dr. Snyder To Speak at Anglers’ Club Meeting

The Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers’ Club (www.esanglersclub.org) will hold its monthly meeting Monday, Feb. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the Sage Restaurant in Onley.

The meeting will feature a presentation by Richard Snyder, professor of biological sciences and director of the Eastern Shore Laboratory in Wachapreague, Virginia Institute of Marine Science, College of William and Mary.

Snyder earned his bachelor’s degree from the College of Charleston, and obtained his Ph.D. at the University of Maryland. Originally from Queen Anne’s County, Md., he has returned to Delmarva after 24 years in Pensacola on the Florida Panhandle. He is a broadly trained ecologist, working in terrestrial, freshwater, estuarine and marine environments. In addition to basic environmental sciences, he has been active in applied research on regional environmental issues such as chemical contamination in fish and shellfish, water quality impairments from nutrient and fecal sources, and the Gulf of Mexico oil spill. He is able to present complex scientific issues in ways non-scientists can understand.

The public is invited, and new or prospective members are welcome.

Northampton Earns Pair of Decisive Wins, Holds District Lead

Story and photos by Bill Sterling
Northampton’s Tony Robinson scored 22 points, and seven other Jackets scored at least 5 points in a convincing 82-54 win over Arcadia last Thursday night at home.

Arcadia took an 18-14 first-quarter lead, but a 23-11 run in the second quarter and a 23-8 margin by the Jackets in the third blew open the game. The two teams had split their previous two meetings, with Arcadia winning the first by a single point and Northampton winning the rematch by 6 points.

Reggie Wiggins had 10 points for the Jackets, with Jawaun Bell scoring 9, Stephen Baker and Sheldon Payne 8 each, Tamaze Brisco 6 and Rickiece Poulson and Frederick Williams 5 each.

Robinson also had 13 rebounds and Brisco pulled down eight.

Jaquan Wharton led Arcadia with 18 points, followed by Jamal Savage, Trequan Veney and Paul Brown with 8 points each.

Arcadia coach Alvin Justis said the Firebirds lost Austin Bunting with an ankle sprain and Devon Rogers took a bad fall. “It was a tough loss,” said Justis.

Nandua Tops Chinco
Nandua used scoring off its bench to post a 65-61 win over Chincoteague on the island last Thursday.

Qyheem Kellam led the Warriors with 15 points and nine rebounds, but Keshawn James and Quashon Reid came off the bench to score 10 and 7 points, respectively, to help erase a 12-point Pony lead in the first quarter.

“The starters just couldn’t get anything going and the bench picked it up and played with the intensity we needed,” said Nandua coach Chad McGregor. “Keshawn James, Tobi Troyer, Teddy Tazwell, Jordan West, Jhamir Poulson, and Quashon Reid brought us from 12 down in the first quarter to a 6-point lead at halftime. Jordan pushed the ball up the floor and ran our offense, Keshawn knocked down some shots, Jhamir was dominating the boards, Teddy, Tobi, and Quashon were forcing Chincoteague into some uncommon turnovers.”

Poulson tied for team honors with nine rebounds. West led the Warriors with six assists. Melquan Davis had a team-high six steals.

Jaquan Persinger led Chincoteague with 18 points, followed by Jamal Savage, Trequan Veney and Paul Brown with 8 points each.

Chincoteague defeated Holly Grove 61-48 earlier last week.

Warriors Over NC
Nandua captured a 58-44 road win over Norfolk Christian Saturday.

Qyheem Kellam had 15 points and 15 rebounds to pace the Warriors. Melquan Davis and Evan McGregor had 11 points each, with Mahagee Wise adding 9 points.

Jhamir Poulson had nine rebounds.

Nandua led 30-27 at half, then opened up a 13-point lead entering the fourth after out-scoring Norfolk Christian 20-10 in the third quarter.

“Our ‘team’ mentality continued over into this game. Guys are really getting comfortable with each other and trusting their teammates,” said Nandua coach Chad McGregor. “The shot selection has been improving every game and has allowed us to shoot at a higher percentage. The guys are starting to do other things on the court when they don’t have the ball in their hands.”

BA Beaten by Stonebridge

Broadwater stayed within range of Stonebridge throughout the game but could not take the lead late as the Vikings fell 55-51 Tuesday night at home.

Taylor Major had 25 points to lead the Vikings. Major Morgan and Tyler Major had 9 points each. John Gordon added 5.

“They won easily at their place,” said Broadwater coach Eddie Spencer. “We played hard and really well to make it a tight game. I was proud of the guys.”

Taylor Major had 17 points in a 78-40 loss to Portsmouth Christian last week.

Hot-Shooting Vikes Beat Denbigh

Broadwater shot a blistering 63 percent in defeating Denbigh Baptist 75-24 Friday night on the road. Taylor Major and freshman Chris Locklear had 14 points each, with eighth grader Jordan Yarell adding 11 and Major Morgan 10.

Broadwater led 43-11 at halftime and substituted liberally in the second half.

Lady Firebirds Continue To Roll, BA Girls Win Pair

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

Four Lady Firebirds reached double figures in a 60-39 home-court win over Northampton last Thursday.

“Everyone contributed in points,” said Arcadia coach Claudia Collins. Normeai Harris led the Firebirds with 14 points, JaQuagia Tull had 12, Kayla Wharton scored 11 and Aleah Russell added 10 points. Nyderia Samuel had 3 points and Tyzhan Johnson, Whitney Barnes, Normaya Harris, Denay Downing and Dajuna Smith each scored 2 points.

Nandua Tops Chinco

The Nandua girls dominated the second half while taking a 51-23 decision over Chincoteague last Thursday night at home.

Shabrea Baines had a game-high 24 points for Nandua, Kyteai Smaw had 11 points, and Derrica Toppin 10 points.

Chincoteague was led by Caroline Thornton with 14 points and Ronny Malone with 5.

Nandua held a 24-15 halftime lead before using an 11-4 margin in the third quarter and a 18-4 advantage in the final quarter to open a big lead.

Despite the loss, Chincoteague coach Kelly Fox said, “I can see constant improvement with the girls.”

BA Girls Top Ponies

The Broadwater girls were led by Anna Sexauer’s 17 points in a 37-23 win over Chincoteague last week at home.

Palmer Smith chipped in with 12 points for the Lady Vikings, and Taylor Terry had 4 points.

Kristin Fox had two 3-pointers in scoring 14 points and Caroline Thornton and Ronny Malone had 5 and 4 points, respectively.

“Broadwater’s defense was very tight and responded very well to the Ponies’ offense. The Ponies couldn’t work the ball inside the key much at all,” said Pony coach Kelly Fox.

Lady Vikings Win Big

Anna Sexauer scored 25 points on 12-of-20 shooting and grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Broadwater to a 53-20 win over Denbigh Baptist last Friday night.

Carly Wardius added 10 points, and Palmer Smith scored 8 for the Lady Vikings.

Weatherly Commits to ODU Football

Broadwater’s Dontae Weatherly, a 6’1”, 290-pound lineman for the Vikings, who was selected to the first team all-state offensive and defensive lines by the Virginia Independent Schools Athletic Association, committed Wednesday to playing football at Old Dominion University next season.

Coach Palmer said Weatherly worked hard in the off-season and “was like a coach on the field” for his ability to recognize offensive and defensive schemes and make changes on the line prior to the play. Palmer added that Weatherly was an outstanding student. Weatherly said he has wanted to attend ODU since the 10th grade and was “excited about this opportunity.”
Northampton wrestlers took third place at the Warrior Dual Meet Tournament at Nandua Saturday. The team went 4-1, defeating Franklin, Arcadia, Mardela, and Colonel Richardson.

Northampton’s Myles Lewis and Durell Robinson went 5-0 on the day. Steven Wilson earned his 100th win.

Northampton matches and its winning wrestlers were:

Why I’m part of cancer care services in this community

“I was born on the Eastern Shore and have lived here at different times over the years. Now, I’m back to be part of the care team at the Riverside Shore Cancer Center. That means I can focus what I’ve learned through training, education and experience on helping the people of this community stay close to family and friends while they receive excellent treatment for cancer on both the clinical and personal level.

I’ve always loved the history of this area. But as I return home to practice medical oncology, I’m even more excited about the future.”

Great news, fellow space lovers! No, I’m not talking about the latest Star Wars movie being out. I’m talking about a new commitment by NASA which will help ensure the future of the Mid-Atlantic Regional Spaceport (MARS) at Wallops.

As you will recall, the much anticipated launch of supplies to the International Space Station (ISS) from MARS ended in huge disappointment and a huge fireball when the rocket exploded seconds after launch at Wallops in October 2014.

After destroying MARS Pad-OA, Orbital, the private company under contract for the launches, moved its launch site to Florida. But now, with Pad-OA reconstructed, Orbital is returning this summer with a few launches left on its current contract. Adding to that good news NASA’s recent announcement of the awarding of new contracts — including one to Orbital — means they will continue delivering cargo to the ISS through 2024.

With all that said, there are two observations I want to make. Under the new contract, the private companies, for the first time, will be required to carry insurance for damage to government property during launches.

What? You mean they didn’t before? Come on. I’m required to have insurance just to drive my 10-year-old van to church on Sundays and those yahoos have been able to play with billions of dollars of government equipment risk-free? Well, that loss is now water under the Wallops Bridge and apparently the lesson was learned. Heaven forbid there ever be another explosion like the 2014 event, but at least the taxpayers won’t have to foot the bill again.

Which leaves me to ponder my second point — what exactly was aboard that rocket that had to be replaced? Oh, I know the usual provisions for the astronauts, but I mean besides the staples. Only the Wallops elves who packed the payload can know for sure, but history tells us there were probably some interesting items.

In past years we Earthlings have sent such things as dirt from the pitcher’s mound at Yankee Stadium, a soccer ball and Amelia Earhart’s watch. The Buzz Lightyear Toy Story action figure once went on a Discovery mission as did Luke Skywalker’s light saber. In 2000, Pizza Hut actually delivered a pizza — in space — to a Russian cosmonaut.

Speaking of Russians, the Soviets apparently had no problem bringing loaded shotguns aboard their flights. I’m not quite sure what gauge they were, but I can’t imagine buckshot being of much value in zero gravity.

Anyhow, I am very happy that MARS will be back in the ISS supply business and especially what that means for our local employment force and economy. Wallops has always had a special place in my heart. My dad was one of a handful of fellows sent to the base when the NAVY moved out after World War II. It was the job of those few to take care of things there until the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics (NACA), the forerunner to NASA, took over.

Dad must have done a good job taking care of things since he was there for 35 more years, ultimately retiring as facilities operations manager. But it was during those early days, before the feds got there in force, that Wallops base was my playground and the island was my beach. Then the rockets came and claimed it.

I hope it remains theirs for a long time to come.

Shore Farmers: Growing a Healthier Bay One Acre at a Time

By Tatum Ford

While it’s not easy being a farmer in the United States, we are blessed here on the Eastern Shore. Our fields are within a couple hours of about a third of the population of the entire country, our soils are among the most fertile in the nation, and our neighbors prefer to patiently drive 10 miles per hour behind a wide-load combine on the back roads during harvest season rather than 10 miles per hour on a congested highway every morning and evening.

Our 143,000 acres of cropland generate about $200 million in sales every year on the Shore, according to the 2012 agriculture census. Our fast-growing national population nearing 323 million must be fed using fewer resources and improved production practices. It is more crucial than ever that we balance farm productivity with other natural resources.

It’s vital that we support efforts that allow farmers to maintain productivity while working in harmony with their surroundings. That’s especially true here on the Shore, where both farming and our local waterways are so much a part of life.

It’s heartening that Gov. McAuliffe’s proposed budget includes substantial funding for conservation funding for Virginia farmers. In fact, some legislators are working to increase funding for agricultural practices even more, a move that would really help farmers make a difference on the Shore.

This funding would go toward methods that reduce agricultural pollution in local waterways. They include nutrient management, no-till planting, use of cover crops, and installing field buffers and filter strips around fields. These efforts greatly reduce polluted runoff washing off fields and entering waterways by slowing erosion and reducing nutrient input needs.

“Farmers who practice these conservation techniques benefit both their farms and the environment,” says Matt Kowalski, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation’s Virginia agricultural best-management practices coordinator. “This includes reducing the amount of nitrogen and phosphorus that is lost from the fields, reducing the amount of farm chemicals that enter the waterways, and increasing the diversity of the habitat for wildlife.”

Farmers on the Shore have been willing to do their part, signing up in large numbers for cost-share funding. In fact, the Eastern Shore Soil & Water Conservation District is trying to locate unused funds from other districts to fulfill the strong sign-up here, according to District Manager Carmie Savage, who connects farmers with state conservation funding opportunities. This echoes what happened last year, when the district ended up spending additional money from its own operating budget to help pay for cost-share requests.

Farmers on the Shore have been willing to do their part, signing up in large numbers for cost-share funding. This echoes what happened last year, when the district ended up spending additional money from its own operating budget to help pay for cost-share requests.

I sat down with two Shore farmers to learn firsthand about the importance of these funds to the community. Ralph Dodd and Steve Sturgis have a combined farming experience of over 65 years.

Dodd farms about 900 acres of soy, wheat, string beans, sorghum, and corn in Northampton County. Conservation programs have been especially important to him since most of his fields border water. One creekside farm boasts over six acres of wildflower buffer and about three acres of grassland buffer between his field and the waterfront. Since he planted the buffers, pollinators like bees and butterflies have been attracted. Importantly, the buffer also keeps soil from entering the bayside creek.

Sturgis, who is president of the Northampton Farm Bureau and sits on several agricultural advisory boards, understands this more than most since he farms a parcel that drains to a creek where he also grows clams. “Farmers care for the health of their fields and the waterways, and they know that best-management practices can work to optimize both,” he says. However, Sturgis also notes, “With low crop prices … we’re in survival mode and we need to figure out how can we spend the least … to grow our crops, be sensitive to our surroundings, and survive.”

Voice your support for adequate funding in the state budget to get conservation practices on the ground and help our farmers on the Shore keep up the good work. If you’d like to help make sure that farmers get needed conservation funding, or get involved with other bay-saving efforts, contact Tatum Ford, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation’s Shore outreach organizer, at tford@cbf.org
Dogs Deserve Humane Treatment

Dear Editor:

Imagine your own life, as a free-willed and free-roaming being, tethered to a chain with only minimal shelter and enough range to just break into a stride before you hit the end of the rope. Imagine that life with little or no interaction with any other living beings. Would you go mad? Of course you would! Now imagine that you are a dog and allowed off that chain or out of confinement from time to time to free roam. That sounds like a recipe for disaster, doesn’t it?

We have a real problem not just in Accomack County, but the entire state and country. People will acquire a dog as a puppy and then confine it to a chain or put it in a pen with little or no reprieve. What this does to the dog is horrific. A dog raised in such a state will grow up to be essentially feral. What steers a dog to be wild vs. domesticated is regular human interaction. When left to their own devices without that human interaction, nature takes its course.

The American pit bull terrier, commonly referred to as a pit, seems to be the most problematic breed and too often when bad incidents happen blame is placed on the breed rather than the conditions of their care. There are two things that must be considered: 1. The American pit bull is one of the most popular breeds in the country. They are everywhere. In most of our normal day-to-day lives we will see more of this breed than any other. 2. Properly tamed, domesticated, and obedience trained, American pit bulls are one of the sweetest and most docile breeds of dog you will ever see.

The American pit bull terrier was bred to be an aggressive fighting dog in a time when such events were not recognized as inhumane. The United Kennel Club gives an excellent description of the breed:

“The essential characteristics of the American pit bull terrier are strength, confidence, and zest for life. This breed is eager to please and brimming over with enthusiasm. APBTs make excellent family companions and have always been noted for their love of children. Because most APBTs exhibit some level of dog aggression and because of its powerful physique, the APBT requires an owner who will carefully socialize and obedience train the dog. … The APBT is not the best choice for a guard dog since they are extremely friendly, even with strangers. Aggressive behavior toward humans is uncharacteristic of the breed and highly undesirable.”

That alone tells you everything you need to know.

The American pit bull terrier is most commonly the breed you will find at the end of a chain or in a pen as a rescuer, yet is one of the breeds most susceptible to aggression when kept in such conditions. Because they come from a terrier bloodline, it is also hard to deter them from attack once they start. With any dog, once they are allowed to attack another animal, they will develop what the old timers would call a “blood lust.” It all goes downhill from there.

Being familiar with animal abuse cases, I can vividly and authoritatively state that the laws on the books do more to hinder Animal Control officers in the performance of their duties than to help them. All too often their hands are unnecessarily tied. Even in the animal rescue world, little can be done if no laws are being violated and the owner is not cooperative or open to assistance.

Many people become frustrated when calls to Animal Control and rescues seemingly go unanswered. Perception, however, is the opposite of reality. Every call is answered and investigated. Many times no wrongdoing is found under the law and the Animal Control officer charged with enforcement has no choice but to walk away from the situation. That ought not to be and everyone should be outraged about it. A rescuer told to essentially “bug off” must stay off the property or face trespass and other criminal charges.

I, for one, would like to see a better tool set that the animal control officers can use for enforcement, but that means stronger laws. It is time we got serious about meaningful reform on the state and county level to better protect both animals and humans alike. Enough is enough.

As always, we are also here to help with any animal-related issues. All it takes is a call or e-mail.

Chairman of Accomack Animal League
