Hogg Left in the Dark About Nunez Contract

By Linda Cicoira

Not everybody knew about a contract that was recently offered to former Northampton County Administrator Katie Nunez despite that Chairman Spencer Murray insisted, “It wasn’t a secret” that thousands of dollars were allocated.

“I was not aware of anything that went on” regarding the contract, Supervisor Granville Hogg said Monday. The District 1 representative added, “I had no clue whatsoever.” His concern was that his constituents would think otherwise. “I absolutely did not know about it. I did not know about it for 15 days.”

Chairman Spencer Murray of the county board of supervisors expects questions about county business to come to him and not other members of the panel.

“Our manual is very clear, all inquiries are supposed to come to me,” he said recently to a reporter when he learned she had called other supervisors to ask about former Nunez’s departure on Aug. 22.

Nunez was hired back as a consultant about a week later at $75 an hour for up to $7,500 to help close the county’s fiscal 2016 books and prepare for an audit.

The action to accept her resignation was voted on during a public session of the board and was unanimous. Finance Director John Andrzejewski was made acting or interim administrator Andrzejewski hired Nunez back as a consultant on Aug. 29 with the permission of Murray and Vice Chairman Larry LeMond.

Hogg was put at a disadvantage during those weeks when he wasn’t privy to the information. He was unable to accurately answer his constituents questions. “In essence, I did kind of write it off (a constituent inquiry) because I had absolutely no knowledge of hiring her back on any type of basis,” he said.

Immediately after the last board meeting on Sept. 13, Hogg said he “confronted” Murray and learned it was true. Details were “sketchy” at that point, he said. Hogg didn’t see the contract until Sept 19 when a reporter forwarded it to him.

On Sept. 14, at the Virginia Association of Counties (VACO) meeting, he talked to another board member, who also didn’t know about it. A third member told Hogg he found out about it a day or two earlier, possibly on Sept. 12.

Still, if it had come before the board, Hogg said, he would not necessarily have voted against it.

An email was sent to Hogg last week that originated from Andrzejewski. The interim administrator said his request for Nunez to consult him regarding financial issues was approved by Murray and Vice Chairman Larry LeMond. It was

Supervisors: No Moratorium on Chicken Houses in Accomack

By Linda Cicoira

Pungoteague residents and local environmental groups rallied the Accomack supervisors Wednesday night to put a moratorium on construction of chicken houses until the ordinance governing them could be adjusted.

Eight of the board members ignored their pleas and a motion made by Supervisor Donald Hart failed to get a second. The supervisors approved a more restricted ordinance earlier this year after an influx of applications to construct the facilities starting pouring in and the Planning Commission studied the issue.

The latest protests were voiced in opposition to 24 poultry houses being planned on two parcels off Pungoteague Road.

Willie Randall, a retired realtor and construction business owner, wasn’t happy that he can stand on his back deck and view the scene. He was also dismayed that no one notified him of the plans.

“I’ve been living in the neighborhood for 73 years,” he said. “It needs to be stopped. Somebody needs to put a sign up there right now that says, ‘Stop Work.’ “I’ve been a taxpayer all my life; never been behind,” Randall added. “I’m not against big business. We have to have big business to have jobs. … Hopefully in the future we’re planning on doing better than we do.”

Representatives from Citizens for a Better Eastern Shore and Eastern Shore Keepers also urged the supervisors to take a second look at the ordinance. They favored waiting until a study on the effects of poultry house manure on the local environment is complete. Richard Snyder, director of the Virginia Institute of Marine Science (VIMS) in Wachapreague, a biology professor, and Mark Reiter, an associate professor from the Agricultural Research and Experiment Center in Painter, are not expected to complete the study until 2017.

Leeann Fick of Pungoteague complained about the increase in truck traffic the industry will bring, estimating the area will see 1,000 more trucks per year or 2,000 trips by homes in the area. In addition, she said, the trucks will cause traffic hazards on Route 13.

Diana Wyatt of Painter wanted the board to protect local health and safety by limiting the number of houses to six in a three mile radius to resemble “farms of bygone days,” metering of wells, traffic studies, ammonia scrubbers, bigger setbacks and a bond for airborne illnesses and “blue babies.”

Ann Winston Pinder Batchelder said she is “confused and betrayed by the leaders of Accomack” because properties will be devalued by the chicken houses, which she called “animal factories.” She said the owners are “local front men for corporations gaining the right to pollute.”

A woman who feared her house would be worthless when she dies and it is left for her children, lamented, “After 50 years of working, I’ve worked for nothing. That’s coming from a blue collar worker,” she said.

Kathy Cummings of Pungoteague said her property will border the chicken farm on two sides. “The Right to Farm Act says measures can be enacted to protect the health and safety of citizens,” she said.

Director of Planning & Community Development Rich Morrison said estimates based on aerial photographs and industry reports show there are between 270 and 300 poultry houses in the county. From August 2015 to Jan. 5, 2016, 33 houses were approved. Since then, applications for another 14 have been made. The Pungoteague plans have been in the works since January.

Morrison also said that 60 have received zoning approval but not a zoning permit. About 130 have been issued the zoning permit. Twelve more are expected to be filed at any time. “We expect to approve (a total of) 202 if they meet all the standards,” he said.
“Most of the numbers were filed before the ordinance was changed,” he said, adding, about “130 didn’t make the old ordinance standard.”

Morrison showed a map with colored dots representing the houses. Supervisor Grayson Chesser said three groups were close to his house in Jenkins Bridge. He counted 12 and then said there was another nearby dot.

“You got room for 24 more?” a woman shouted from the audience.

“Yes, ma’am,” Chesser answered.

Supervisor Robert Crockett motioned for the board to accept the staff report and move on. The action passed with Hart and Supervisor Reneta Mabry in opposition.

“You’re kidding me,” a voice said from the crowd.

The board agreed to send a letter supporting the Navy’s MQ-4C Triton Unmanned Aircraft System for Wallops Island. Supervisor Paul Muhly said the area is a better choice because of the hurricanes that sweep through Florida. “Wallops airfield is pretty high and protected by two islands on the seaside,” he said. “I think those are real strong selling points.”

The supervisors voted to move forward with stopping solar and wind energy companies from obtaining conditional use permits. “Ask the Planning Commission to go forward with this with all haste,” said Chesser. “Trading food for energy, it’s a bad trade.”

Superintendent of Schools Chris Holland reported that he saved the county money by eliminating a $97,000 salary and benefits position for public relations. Instead a $3,000 stipend is being paid for a worker to post notices to social media. He also invited the supervisors to join him for a day of touring county schools.

The board also voted to:
- Add 47 acres in Onley to the Enterprise Zone Program.
- Spend up to $2,000 to put a speaker system in the hallway of the county administration building so crowds spilling out of the board room can hear what is happening.
- Send a letter to DMV inquiring about its proposed new office in the northern Accomack area.

Truck Crash Takes Subway Restaurant Power

By Linda Cicoira

An accident with an electrical line caused the Subway restaurant in Oak Hall to close for several days and lose thousands of dollars worth of business.

Owner Tom Harding said at about 2 p.m. last Saturday, Sept. 17, a tractor trailer truck drove into the parking lot near the intersection of Lankford Highway and Chincoteague Road and “tore down the overhead wires that run from the pole to the building. They were lying on the ground and threw a bunch of breakers.”

“It’s been a nightmare trying to get it back up,” he said of the electricity. Repairs that went beyond the electric company’s responsibility had to be made but weather conditions slowed down the process.

“Nothing really got going until Monday,” said Harding. “Then rain was too heavy to work.” He expects the job to be completed and the store to reopen by press time Thursday.

Without power to refrigerators or freezers, Harding said he had to move food to one of his other local stores. “I’m not Subway corporate. I’m just some guy trying to make a living,” he said. “You believe you’re going to get the power sooner. It just breaks your heart when the customers are going to come into the lot. It will take a while to get the business back that you lose. We’d love to have them (customers) come back. It does hurt.”

Harding said he lost $7,000 or $8,000. He will regain some money through insurance but the policy won’t cover wages or food. “I’m focusing on getting up and running. We will have to have everything inspected again.”

First Sgt. Jeff Jones of the state police confirmed his office was notified about the accident. “It was a non-reportable incident because it occurred on private property,” he said, adding that the truck driver denied hitting the wires.

Class 4 Laser Treatment for Peripheral Neuropathy

Jason Hale of Bloxom has been an equipment operator and truck driver for most of his career. At 34, he was suffering from neuropathy in his feet due to lumbar disk degeneration. He said it got so bad he was always in pain with burning and numbness, had trouble with balance, and couldn’t play with his son. All doctors could offer him was surgery and pain medication, which was not what he wanted. He heard about Dr. Bull and the Class 4 laser treatment that increases cell permeability and decided to give it a try. After 12 sessions, he feels he is already 75 percent back to normal and can now feel his feet without pain. He has been very pleased with the results. Dr. Bull’s laser treatment has given him more than traditional medicine could offer with no side effects.

OVERCROWDING, LACK OF TEXTBOOKS, PARKING COMPLAINTS AT NANDUA HIGH

By Linda Cicoira

Nandua High classrooms are crowded, some text books were ordered late and have not yet arrived in a money-saving ploy, conduct codes are not being evenly enforced, the new parking situation is dangerous and as many as 50 students could be enrolled out of district there, according to various reports given by parents and officials at an Accomack School Board meeting Tuesday.

School Board Member George Waldenmaier said the last count was 748 students, a figure that is about 50 more than the reported enrollment for the second day of school.

“The crowding issue at Nandua High School … is actually complimentary,” he said. “We traditionally kind of ignored that.” Waldenmaier said that while those who are crossing district lines “are often good students or athletes or both” the influx is causing overcrowding so that English classes “are out of compliance.”

Waldenmaier said without studying the issue, Accountability and Curriculum Coordinator Sandy Drummond found a kid whose address was the vet’s office, another whose address was a beauty salon and yet another whose address was in an abandoned building.

“We’re really going to have to consider sending the students” back, he said. “I’m a parent too. I understand and have sympathy.”

Chairman Ronnie Holden interrupted Waldenmaier to be sure he wasn’t indicating that one high school was better than another.

Waldenmaier said that wasn’t what he meant. “That’s the parents’ perception,” he explained.

What wasn’t discussed was a letter dated Sept. 8 and sent to School Board Member Margaret Miles accusing her of using her position on the school board to obtain an out-of-district appointment for her granddaughter to attend Nandua Middle School, when according to the letter, she should be attending Arcadia Middle.

“What message does this behavior send to the staff at Arcadia Middle School? … How can the central office staff enforce a policy that even school board members don’t have to follow?... It doesn’t make it right or fair for the rest of us who would like to choose which school our child attends.” The letter was signed “Arcadia Middle School parents and teachers.”

“We want students to go to the intended school,” Holden said after Waldenmaier spoke.

Holden said it would be a “future topic of discussion.”

“We want students to go to the intended school,” Holden said after Waldenmaier spoke.

Holden said it would be a “future topic of discussion.”

The text book issue was brought up by former school board member Janet Turner during public participation. “My child is in her third week of school and does still not have her textbooks,” Turner reported. “There is plenty of money for books. I would really like to know why the children do not have books at this very late date.”

Secondary Schools Director Tamara Sterling said she signed the text book order the week before school started and sent it to finance Sept. 1. The order was expedited on Sept. 14, at a cost not disclosed. Sterling said some books arrived Tuesday and others were expected to be delivered Wednesday. Sterling reported students have until Sept. 20 to drop the class. Six students have already done so.

“What happened between Sept. 2 and 14?” Turner asked. “Apparently it went into a black hole somewhere … maybe working only four days a week in the summer” at the central office is the problem, Turner continued. “I find this really appalling.”

Holden said the matter would be looked into.

Margaret Hampton, another parent, is also upset about it. She did not address the board Tuesday but has asked Holland to allow her “to inspect textbook purchase orders and data related to textbook orders and order fulfillment both processed and unprocessed between May 1, 2016 and Sept. 19, 2016.” The request included purchase orders; inter-office emails, memorandums and phone messages; and outer-office emails, letters and memorandums and phone messages.
She also wrote to the state Department of Education to say textbooks were not available to Nandua High students including five for Environmental Science, 14 for Psychology and U.S. government, five for human geography, two for comparative government and chemistry, one for biology, three for Physics, six for world mythology and seven for Introduction to Game Design.

She detailed numerous problems with oversight, communication with parents, wrote a coordinator is needed, and the impact all of this has on students who get behind on coursework and are put at a disadvantage when competing for college placement. She further says that and Holland and Finance Director Beth Onley will pass the blame.

“The lack of preparation by ACPS is unconscionable,” Hampton wrote. “This is not a new issue. Last year … textbooks were also unavailable for some time. … Parents rely on Virtual Virginia classes due to inadequate teaching staff in some areas. Positions known to be open were only being advertised at the end of the summer. For example, ACPS hired (the day after application was made) a frustrated non-teacher parent, a biology major, who was assigned to teach geometry.”

“If you think about,” Waldenmaier said later, “dozens and dozens of decisions are made everyday… you’re going to make mistakes. When you make a mistake you own up to it and … make note of it so you don’t make it again. Someone from the office needs to step up to the plate … students are behind … note how that happened.”

While Nandua High Principal George Parker was praised by school officials for his work on conduct and dress codes for the school, a parent complained that her special education child was singled out and intimidated by Parker for wearing a headband and a V-neck shirt with a tank top under it at the start of school. The same child in the previous year, was put in detention all day for leaving the classroom after asking the teacher twice for permission even though she had a medical note.

Connie Burford, another parent, said the division should restudy new parking sections to bring the number of handicap spaces up to requirements. There are three spots and there should be seven based on the latest chart she could find.

“I’m very aware that there were issues in the parking lot (at Nandua High) last year where some people’s vehicles were vandalized,” she said. “I applaud the efforts you are trying to be able to keep a better eye on the cars. However, there needs to be a better solution for those of us who transport our kids to school. We should not be left at the mercy of overly tired and anxious students at the end of the day.”

Burford said near accidents are rampant because of the lack of parking spaces and cars going in all directions.

School Activist Donna Chandler-Bailey asked the board to consider hiring school bus aides to prevent accidents. “I don’t think it takes much to allow an aide on the bus. Young ladies get pregnant, we provide teachers to go to their home,” she said.

Bailey also wondered why students are on a bus for more than two hours when coming from Pungoteague Elementary but arrive much sooner when coming from Accawmacke. Both buses are taking students to daycare, which is seven miles from both schools.

nary hearing for his alleged accomplice,
Dontrail Atqwan Johnson, 18, of Main Street in Melfa, is set for later this month in Accomack General District Court.

“I went to the door at the left back,”
Tankard told police about Major’s car.
“Dontrail went to the back right side.
Dontrail told her to get out. She got out and ran. I got in on the passenger’s side.
Dontrail drove from Melfa to Painter. I never drove. We picked up (two juveniles) in Exmore,” he continued. “I don’t know where we were going. We were free a $10,000 secured bond.
Charges include shooting at an occupied vehicle, carjacking by putting Major in fear of serious bodily harm, stealing Major’s 2016 Toyota Camry, use of a firearm while committing the carjacking, destruction of property belonging to Major, stealing property belonging to Major, stealing the bus and causing damage to the bus.

Major has refused to comment on the incidents. She told a reporter last month, “It’s ongoing. It hasn’t even gone to court.”

The incident occurred near the train tracks in Melfa. Later, a Cashville man on his way home was driving just past St. George’s Church when he saw headlights. “I just heard the noise and pulled over,” he said. There was a hole the rear window of his four door pick-up truck.
“It shattered but the glass didn’t fall.”

The man, who asked not to be identified said police told him there were four suspects, three of which were juveniles.
He was not injured in the incident.

“Defendant gave a full confession to the investigator,” according to a checklist for bail that was filed with the court regarding Johnson.

Acomack Circuit Court

Drug cases for four men were heard in Acomack Circuit Court last week.

Vallice Franklin Earl Smith, 32, of Elihu Wallop Lane in Horntown pleaded guilty to distribution of cocaine on Sept. 22, 2015. A presentence report was ordered. The case was continued until December. He remains in police custody.

Anthony M. Highmoyz, 27, of North Farm Road in Ellicott City, Md. was charged with assault and battery of Cathy Repsher, an EMS worker, on Aug. 23. Office Wayne Winter of the Chincoteague Police Department investigated. Unsecured bail was set at $5,000.

Dylan Tyler Lamberson, 21, of Captain's Lane on Chincoteague was charged with burglarizing a house in Inlet View Campground on the night of Sept. 3. Sgt. T.B. Hickman of CPD handled the case. Unsecured bond was set at $5,000.

An Acomac man was arrested last week and charged with gun violations, according to records filed in Acomack General District Court.

Thomas Bunting, 32, of Daugherty Road is being held in Acomack Jail without bond. He is accused of possession of a firearm by a violent felon, a felony, and carrying a concealed weapon, a misdemeanor. The incidents occurred on Sept. 16.

Northampton Circuit Court

A Keller man was sentenced in Northampton Circuit Court Monday to a total of two years and five months behind bars for his part in a fight that occurred at the former Sage Restaurant in Exmore last year.

Sean Alexander Burton, 28, was given four years with three suspended for assaulting a police officer and felony eluding, six months with five suspended for driving on a revoked license, 12 months with nine months suspended for reckless driving, three months with two months suspended for DUI. The terms were set to run consecutively. Supervised probation for five years and good behavior for 10 years was ordered.

The incident included a police chase with speeds sometimes higher than 100 mph that went from Exmore to Wachapreague and Keller Fair roads.

Natalie Lynn Johnson, 41, of Portswood, Va. pleaded guilty to possession with intent to distribute oxycodone, a Schedule II drug. It was a second offense. A presentence report was ordered.

Terrence Devon Brisco, 41, Nassawadox pleaded guilty to possession with intent to distribute oxycodone, a Schedule II drug. It was a second offense. A presentence report was ordered.

Malik Javon Johnson, 18, of Birdsnest was given several prison terms for burglaries and other charges but all were suspended upon successful completion of a youth offender program. Johnson was sentenced to 10 years for burglary and 10 years for larceny to run concurrently; eight years for another burglary and eight years for larceny, also to run concurrently but consecutively with the other counts; and 30 days for possession of marijuana.

Johnson was put on supervised probation for five years and good behavior for 20 years. Restitution of $3,150 was ordered.

Roses Employee Dies

Mr. Clarence William “C Boy” Lewis Sr., 91, of Accomac, husband of the late Doris Lee Edwards Lewis, died Thursday, Sept. 15, at his residence. Born in Rainswood, Va., he was the son of the late Leon L. and Lessie Walker Lewis. He was a veteran of the Army, where he served in World War II. He was a charter and life member of the Elks Lodge in Accomac and a past Accomac Town Councilman. A member of Oakland United Methodist Church, he attended both Drummondtown Methodist and Baptist churches.

With his brother, Mr. Lewis owned and operated Lewis Brothers Lumber Co., Lewis Brothers and Kelley Inc. Farming and Forest Products of Pittsville, Md. He loved his racehorses and was an avid fisherman.

Mr. Lewis is survived by his sons, Clarence William “Butch” Lewis Jr. of Accomac, Joseph Edward Lewis (and wife, Joanne) of Accomac and Ted Lee Lewis of Accomac; daughter, Peggy Lewis Holloway (and husband, Mark) of Accomac; sister, Ruby Boyle of Springfield, Va.; grandchildren, Tiffany Smith (and husband, Mark), Wendy Lewis, Lewis Holloway (and wife, Robyn), Kelley Holloway and Corey Marshall; great-grandchildren, Ross Smith, Brandon Smith, Madison Holloway, Adrianna Holloway, Owen Holloway and C. J. Marshall; and several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by eight siblings, Florence, Virginia, Doris, Elizabeth, Melvin, Bill, Emmadelle, and Gordon “Spiny.”

Mr. Lewis

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday, Sept. 20, from Drummondtown Baptist Church by Rev. Jack D. Pruitt. Interment was private.

Mr. Shreaves

Mr. Sherwood Spencer Shreaves, 92, of Melfa, husband of the late Mary Lena Milliner Shreaves, his wife of 63 years, passed away Wednesday, Sept. 14, 2016, at his residence.

A Homegoing Celebration was held Saturday, Sept. 17, at Ebenezer AME Church in Cape Charles with Olivia Collins and Willie Lyons officiating.

Arrangements were made by Corinthian Funeral Home in Cheriton.

Ex-Webster’s Employee Dies

Mrs. Jinnilla Baker Fitchett, 84, departed this life on Monday, Sept. 5, 2016, at Heritage Hall Nursing Home and worked at Bryn Mawr College for many years.

In 1967, she was joined in holy matrimony to the love of her life, the late Powell Fitchett. They spent many happy years together until his death on March 7, 1987. Although there were no children from this union, there was a host of nieces and nephews whom she loved dearly. She would always find time to cook and make homemade baked goods for her nieces and nephews. During her final days, two of her nieces, Bernadette Harmon and Pamela Baker, looked after her to ensure that she received the best possible care.

Mrs. Fitchett is survived by sisters, Yvonne Miller (Toney) and Barbara Hebbons (Harvina) of Philadelphia, Pa., and Joan Baker of West Virginia; and nieces and nephews. During her final days, two of her nieces, Bernadette Harmon and Pamela Baker, looked after her to ensure that she received the best possible care.

A Homegoing Celebration was conducted Saturday, Sept. 10, at African Baptist Church in Cheriton. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Arrangements were made by Corinthian Funeral Home in Cheriton.

Melfa Man Dies in Salisbury

Mr. Sherwood Spencer Shreaves, 92, of Melfa, husband of the late Mary Lena Milliner Shreaves, his wife of 63 years, passed away Wednesday, Sept. 14, 2016, at HealthSouth Chesapeake Rehabilitation Hospital in Salisbury, Md.

Born in Muttonhunk, he was a son of the late William and Mary Littleton Shreaves. He was a 1940 graduate of Parksley High School. From November 1942 until October 1945, he served in the U.S. Marine Corps, attaining the rank of sergeant in the 3rd Division. He fought in World War II, in Guam, the Guadalcanal, Iwo Jima and Bougainville. He was recalled to active duty for the Korean War, serving from October 1950 until October 1951.

Mr. Shreaves retired as president and CEO of The Citizens National Bank in Laurel, Md., a Mercantile Bank affiliate, a position he held for 10 years, thus completing his successful 40-year career in the banking industry.

He was a lifelong Yankees fan, enjoyed traveling with his wife, played handball and racquetball, loved animals and attended Melfa United Methodist Church. An avid golfer, Mr. Shreaves was a member of Eastern Shore Yacht & Country Club in Melfa and formerly of the Turf Valley Country Club in Ellicott City, Md.

During his retirement, many would see walking around his community, “The Greens,” and on Country Club Road, where he always greeted others with his pleasant smile and wave. He truly enjoyed his 92 years and will be missed.

Survivors include his children, Rev. Gregory Shreaves of Reading, Pa., and Cynthia Shreaves of Cockeysville, Md.; nieces and nephews, Patricia (Stacey) Redican, Suzanne (Kenneth) Henderson, Otto B. (Laura) Shreaves, Jr., and Betsy (Kenneth) Cousins. He was predeceased by sisters Vesta Shreaves Reichardt, Georgia Shreaves Hughby and Oneda Shreaves Krammer; four brothers, Alwood Lee, Edward, Otto and Preston Shreaves; and a nephew, Alwood L. Shreaves Jr.

A celebration of Mr. Shreaves’ life will be conducted at Eastern Shore Yacht & Country Club, Saturday, Sept. 24, at 2 p.m., by Rev. Robert Coniglio.

Memorial donations may be made to the SPCA, P.O. Box 164, Onley, VA 23418. Memory tributes may be shared at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com Arrangements were made by Williams-Onancock Funeral Home.

Owner of Former Lumber Company Dies

Mr. Clarence William “C Boy” Lewis Sr., 91, of Accomac, husband of the late Doris Lee Edwards Lewis, died Thursday, Sept. 15, at his residence.
A native of Galatia, Ill., he was the son of the late Andrew Ora Gill and Mary D. Gill and the adopted son of the late Fred and Pat Heflin. He was a stock clerk for Roses Department Store and member of the Army National Guard and enjoyed gardening and fishing.

In addition to his loving wife, survivors include his children, Dallas Gill, Trisha Hinderliter, Jami Burgess, Ruthann Gill, and Sarah Gill, all of Illinois, and Gary Scott Perry, Lashae Ervin, Joshua Ervin, Nateisha Ervin and Amy Ervin, all of Melfa; sisters, Edna Duncan and Diane Greer, both of Illinois; brother, Bob Heflin of Illinois and 11 grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday, Sept. 22, at Doughty Funeral Home in Exmore. Interment was in the Fairview Lawn Cemetery in Onancock.

Online condolences may be sent to the family at www.doughtyfuneralhome.com

Robert Stephen Morrill Jr.

Mr. Robert Stephen Morrill Jr. passed away surrounded by his loving family Sunday, Sept. 18, after a heroic battle with cancer that spanned 13 years.

Born in Spokane, Wash., the son of Yvonne Morrill and the late Ret. Maj. Robert Morrill USAF, he was a beloved son, brother, father, grandfather and husband. Mr. Morrill was kind-hearted, fun-loving and hard-working. He loved spending time with his family and his animal friends. No matter how he was feeling at the end, he fed his squirrels as soon as he saw they had eaten all of their corn, rain or shine.

The son of a fighter pilot, he lived all around the country, but predominately in St. Petersburg, Fla., and Portland, Maine. Left to cherish his memory is his mother, Yvonne Morrill; sisters, Paula Morrill and Jeanette Fritz; sons, Jason and Kyle; step children, Joey and Rachel; numerous grandchildren; niece, Rachael Leonard; nephew, Robert Fritz; the love of his life, Diane Urtnowski; and many uncles, aunts and cousins in the Portland area.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday, Oct. 1, at 1 p.m. at Doughty Funeral Home in Exmore by Father J. Michael Breslin. Memorial donations may be made to Riverside Shore Cancer Center, P.O. Box 17, Nassawadox, VA 23413. Online condolences may be offered at www.doughtyfuneralhome.com

Mappsville Man Dies

Mr. Ross Mumford, 46, of Mappsville, husband of the late Barbara Ann Badlik Mumford, died Monday, Sept. 19, 2016 at his home.

Born in Salisbury, Md., he was a son of the late Harry J. and Mary Elizabeth Topping Mumford. He was a longtime truck driver for Linens of the Week and was a vital part of the church family at Accomack Covenant Church in Greenbush. He enjoyed fishing and “junking” and adored his dog, Sarah. A man of many talents, Mr. Mumford always was eager to help those in need. He will be remembered for his gentle heart and unwavering dedication to his church and family.

Survivors include his stepdaughter, Melissaann Sortino Rich (and husband, Nicholas) of Wallops Island; sisters, Janet Kathleen Vasquez-Lopez (and husband, Matias) of Parksley and Nancy Ellen Bunting of Virginia; brother, James Elmer Mumford of Florida; and several nieces and nephews. Mr. Mumford was predeceased by a son, Zachary Thomas Mumford; and a brother, John Harry J. Mumford.

A memorial service will be conducted Saturday, Sept. 24, at 3 p.m., at Accomack Covenant Church by Pastor Sam Welch. Memorial donations may be made to Operation Christmas Child, c/o Accomack Covenant Church, P.O. Box 443, Tasley, VA 23441. Memory tributes may be shared at: www.williamsfuneralhomes.com

26th Onancock Bay Challenge Successful

The 26th Onancock Bay Challenge, sponsored by the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club, was a huge success this past weekend, taking place on a day when the weather turned out to be much better than anticipated. There were 115 participants registered for the event, and more than $6,500 worth of prizes was presented in awards and drawings.

The grand prize for the best adult-caught fish was won by Ruby Taylor. Ms. Taylor also won the grand prize for the largest fish by an Angler’s Club member.

The grand prize for the best junior-caught fish in the youth category was won by Garrett Siegert.

Summer is waning, the tomato vines are looking scraggly, the peppers are going full force, and you’re starting to pray for that first frost because the garden is starting to feel more like a burden than a blessing. What’s a person to do?

How about some late season salsa—one that’s heavy on peppers, but light enough to put some bounce back in your step? The recipe below will make the summer linger just a little longer.

Have a favorite recipe? Send it along, and maybe we’ll feature it next time on our Eastern Shore Flavor page. Send by email to editor@easternshorepost.com, or mail to P.O. Box 517, Onley, VA 23418.

Late Season Salsa

By Connie Morrison

Ingredients:

- 6 large or 12 medium tomatoes, cored, seeded, and chopped
- 2 cups of grape or cherry tomatoes, chopped
- 3 or 4 large sweet garden peppers (a variety of colors – red, yellow, green or orange works well), diced
- Half of a large sweet onion (like Vidalia) or 2 medium onions, diced
- 1 or 2 jalepeño peppers, finely chopped
- 1 lime, juiced
- 2 Tbsp. chopped cilantro (optional)
- Up to ½ tsp. Tony Chachere’s Creole Seasoning or other similar spicy seasoning with salt (or add salt to taste)

After prepping all ingredients, mix together everything except seasoning (or salt). Once blended, season to taste.

The amount of each vegetable is not crucial just use what you have and enjoy the last tastes from your summer garden.

When I was a little kid, my Grandpa had a train he ran under our Christmas tree. It went around on an old table top that had lost its legs to a pup my uncle brought home one day. Teething pups do that, it seems.

Grandpa removed the legs and used the table to build his winter village for his train. I remember wanting to play with the little people standing on the make-believe snow waiting for the train to come. I also wanted to add to the landscaping and have more houses for the tiny people to live in, but I was just a kid. Worse than that, I was a girl and girls did not get to play with the trains.

I saved my gift money and bought a miniature farm, a barn and animals, and a group of horses and riders. I crawled under some shrubbery — which would become the miniature forest — in the backyard and built my own little town that grew with small boxes, scraps of wood, and Grandma’s spirea to make little hedges. It was primitive, but I used my imagination to make it look fine. Best of all, I could change it, add new buildings as cardboard boxes became available.

The only trouble I got into was losing a pair of Grandma’s sewing scissors. Well, then there was the time I, um, kind of borrowed some paint from a neighbor’s garage to change my new shoebox (Keds, red) into a school building. I am not sure which was worse, getting yelled at for getting into Mr. Turner’s paint or getting paint on my new sneakers, now red and tan. The funny thing is I have had a lifetime of wearing sneakers with paint on them.

Later, I enjoyed making miniatures and models in art school and stage sets for summer theater.

When several of us decided a few years ago to save the old train station in Onley from being burned down, little did I realize I would be dredging up old memories of building little towns, farms and miniature gardens. I still don’t work with the trains much, but I get to create the world they travel through.

Several years ago, I built a winter village for an elderly relative up in Maryland using bits and pieces from an old train layout her kids had used when they were young. She had long ago given most of the train stuff away, but found a box in her attic of little houses, a church, a one-room schoolhouse, some old bottlebrush Christmas trees with snow on them and a handful of tiny people. It was a serious trip down nostalgia lane for her to see those old treasures again, so I set up a little village for her next to her three-foot tree. After the tree came down, she wanted the village to stay, so I changed it with the seasons for her. She told me you didn’t have to have a train to make a village.

People have come up to me and asked me where I got my “old” buildings I use for the scenery for the model trains at the Onley Station. They are often astonished to see the buildings generally start as new, ugly plastic, straight out of the box, and they just get tinkered with to make them look weathered. The other question I get asked a lot is, “Where do you get your trees?” That answer is when I trim my bushes! I even planted my own spirea here to have access to those wonderful little bushes on my scenery.

It takes a (miniature) village to make a model train station.

Above is a miniature rendition of Exmore Diner, complete with customers’ vehicles. Below is a country farmhouse and red barn, with horseback riders returning to the homestead.

I dig up moss from my yard to use for foliage or as areas of lawn on the larger scales, like the garden-scale train we ran in last year’s St. Patty’s Day Parade. I love using natural materials whenever possible.

Folks have asked me if I could teach them how to make this or paint that. Sometimes they want me to help them find the right buildings or make a layout that doesn’t even have any trains running through it.

Last year, through the Eastern Shore Community College’s Academy for Lifetime Learning, Dr. Tony Picardi and I taught a mini class on making scenery at the Onley Train Station. I will be doing another class again this fall, on Tuesdays, from Oct. 4 to Nov. 8, from 10 a.m. until noon. If you think it would be fun to make a miniature world, either for a model train (any scale) or just for the fun of it as a seasonal decoration, or you want to improve your layout, call the college and sign up. You can come by the train station on Saturday mornings to see some of what we have done. We are open from 9 a.m. until noon.
Accomack County

A Fall Clean will be held Saturday, Oct. 1, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at local landfills. The board of supervisors will waive landfill tipping fees for residential waste and recyclable materials.

Acceptable materials include residential waste, yard waste, construction/demolition debris, tires (limit 12 per person, per day), used motor oil, scrap metal, and car batteries. Unacceptable waste is paint, pesticides, asbestos, and hazardous materials.

For questions, call the Accomack County Public Works office at 787-1468.

Belle Haven

The Virginia Eastern Shore Land Trust and Tony Picardi, master naturalist, will host a free workshop exploring the world of mushrooms on Tuesday, Oct. 25, at 10 a.m. at Holly Point Farm.

Picardi will speak briefly about the role of fungus in ecology and how to identify species. The workshop will include a field excursion to find and identify wild mushrooms.

Space is limited. To reserve your spot, contact Hali Plourde-Rogers, stewardship manager, at 442-5885 or email stewardship@veslt.org

Cape Charles

The Cape Charles Historical Society, in cooperation with the Cape Charles Rosenwald School Preservation Initiative and the Northampton Heritage Weekend, will host an open house for artifacts and personal stories from the Cape Charles Elementary School on Monday, Sept. 26, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Cape Charles Museum at 814 Ranolph Ave.

Community items being collected include images and photographs, school papers and personal notebooks, textbooks and instructional artifacts, school furniture, diplomas, report cards and other memorabilia. They can be brought and scanned or loaned for the exhibit.

Call Kimb Denny at 757-607-6483 with questions or to schedule a date to bring your items.

Nandua Graduate Has Whale of a Future in Marine Science

By Connie Morrison

When a minke whale washed up in the tidal marsh near Wachapreague last week, Sarah Mallette missed the boat for the Virginia Beach-based team that performed the necropsy to determine the cause of death.

The Eastern Shore native and 2004 Nandua High graduate was 800 miles away on a research vessel off the coast of Nova Scotia searching for Humpback Whales with a team of scientists based in Cape Cod, Mass. “If I wasn’t on this research cruise, I would absolutely have been there, especially it being … one creek south of my family’s home,” she said.

Being up to your elbows in a whale carcass may not be everyone’s idea of a good time, but Mallette’s marine science work ranges from the unglamorous work of mammal necropsies to representing the United States as a delegate on the International Whaling Commission’s scientific committee.

It’s a path that has been unfolding since her undergraduate days when Mallette began working at the Smithsonian in Fort Pierce, Fla.. While there, she volunteered at the Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institute doing bottle-nose dolphin photo identification, later putting those same skills to work for the Virginia Aquarium in Virginia Beach. It was there she became involved in stranding response, where teams are called out in the case of stranded sea turtles or mammals, such as the minke whale found near Wachapreague.

“I actually met my Master’s advisor over a dead humpback whale in Hat-teras,” she laughed, adding, “It was alive when I sighted it.” Mallette had been offshore fishing on her day off. She supported her whale sighter volunteer efforts and supplemented her job at the aquarium by working in a restaurant.

She reported the injured whale to Virginia colleagues, who relayed the message to the stranding team in North Carolina. “When (the fishing boat returned) to North Carolina, the stranding team was there, and he told me to come down and visit the school.” Mallette attended the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

As part of her Master’s degree, Mallette studied bottle-nose dolphins, while continuing to respond to stranding and performing whale necropsies. It was also the beginning of the work that would eventually lead to the International Whaling Commission. Individual dolphins and whales have distinctive markings through which they can be identified, like a person’s fingerprints. By identifying them, it is possible to know where they are traveling and whether they are returning year after year.

Some of her more recent work has included using unmanned aerial vehicles to collect breath samples, which can provide information on the animal’s stress levels. “I’m just learning some of the advanced field research techniques,” said Mallette.

The work is a priority and a passion, but not much of a paycheck. “I’ve worked at a restaurant in every position I’ve ever had in science because it doesn’t pay well,” Mallette said. She gets by living frugally and “by not having much of a savings account,” she said, adding that the tradeoff is worth it, because “I absolutely love what I do.”

She brought some of that love back to the Eastern Shore this summer with a presentation to a youth group at Capeville Baptist Church. “They asked really good questions,” she said, adding that one of the most rewarding aspects of her work is being about to bring it back to students on the Eastern Shore and get them excited about science careers and making a difference on the Shore and in the world.

Recalling the serendipity of encountering the person who would become her thesis advisor over a dead humpback whale, she hopes that her student outreach will be one of those encounters that sparks an interest in budding scientist on the Shore.

“Imagine how many people each one of them will influence if they too choose a path to make the world a better place,” Mallette said. “Imagine that ripple effect. Now that’s what I’m going for!”

Ordinance No. 212
AN ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH RULES AND REGULATIONS ADDRESSING INOPERATIVE VEHICLES IN THE TOWN OF EXMORE

• Sec. 1. - Restrictions on inoperative motor vehicles.
(a) It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to keep any motor vehicle, trailer, semi-trailer, which is inoperative on any property except those kept within a fully enclosed building or structure.
(b) For the purpose of this article, “an inoperative motor vehicle, trailer, semi-trailer” shall mean any motor vehicle, trailer, semi-trailer which:
(1) Is not in operating condition; or
(2) Has been partially or totally disassembled for a period of 60 days or longer by the removal of tires and wheels, the engine, or other essential parts required for the operation of the vehicle; or
(3) Displays neither valid license plates (nor) a valid inspection decal.

• Sec. 2. - Removal of inoperative vehicles.
(a) The owners of property zoned for residential, commercial, or agricultural purposes who are in violation of section 1 shall remove from such property all improperly kept inoperative vehicles on or before the date and time specified in any notice of violation sent to such owners by the town manager or his designee, provided that the date and time shall not be sooner than 30 days from the date of the notice. The town manager or his designee shall send notice of violation to the property owner at such owners last known address as shown on the tax records of the town, which notice shall be sent by certified or registered mail.
(b) In the event the property owner in violation of this article does not remove the inoperative vehicle as directed in the notice of violation, the town manager, through the town’s agents or employees, may remove such inoperative vehicles.

• Sec. 3. - Disposal of removed inoperative vehicles; redemption.
(a) In the event the town has removed any inoperative vehicle in accordance with Sec 2(b), the town may dispose of such inoperative vehicle by such means as the town manager deems expedient, provided that notice of the pending disposal is given to the record owner of the vehicle by certified mail no less than 30 days prior to the scheduled disposal.
(b) The owner of an inoperative vehicle removed by the town may redeem such vehicle prior to its disposal upon paying to the town all costs expended in removing and storing the inoperative vehicle.

• Sec. 4. - Costs; lien for same.
(a) The costs incurred by the town in removing and disposing of inoperative vehicles pursuant to this article shall be chargeable to the owner of the vehicle or the owner of the premises from which such vehicle was removed, and may be collected by the town as taxes and levies are collected.
(b) All costs assessed by the town against the owner of the premises from which an inoperative vehicle is removed shall constitute a lien against the property from which the vehicle was removed, said lien to continue until actual payment of such costs has been made to the town.

• Secs. 5 - 9. - Reserved.

Peace In. Peace Out.

By Carla Savage-Wells
Special to the Eastern Shore Post

Why, Yes! For years, I’ve ended casual phone conversations by saying, “Peace.” Several years ago, my daughter asked why I continued what she thought was an outdated benediction.

The world peace longed for by pageant contestants around the globe is not what comes to mind when we hear, “namaste” at the close of a yoga class, “peace out” when millennials exit a room or “Go in Peace” at the close of a church service. There is, however, a universality to mans’ desire for peace.

Peace may not be at the base of Maslow’s Hierarchy of Needs, but the concept of peace seems to have a universality to mans’ desire for peace.

Peace “at the close of a church service. There is, however, a universality to mans’ desire for peace.

A loose translation of an ancient Proverb says, “when we can’t find peace in ourselves it is vain to look for it elsewhere.” Successconsciousness.com lists several tips for achieving inner peace, in the hope that it will lead to external peace that readers can share and model for others.

Don’t take everything too personally. (A certain degree of emotional detachment will increases peace of mind)

• Accept what cannot be changed. (A change of attitude about the inevitable reduces worry, saves energy and increases peace of mind.)

• Don’t hold grudges. (Releasing ill feelings and grievances promotes deeper sleep and increases peace of mind)

• Practice more tolerance and patience with family, friends and co-workers. (Exhaling fully before speaking reduces frustration, sets the stage for civil communication and increases peace of mind.)

Host: “Ms. Columnist, If a genie gave you one wish, what would it be?”

Ms. Columnist: “Let there be peace on earth, and let it begin with me”.

Why, Yes! That is a great answer. Shalom, paz, lapè peace.

Free-Standing Urgent Care in Northampton Not Feasible

Dear Editor:

I read the local papers as well as newsletters from well-meaning community groups. I am dismayed by the endless talk from folks suggesting that Northampton County deserves a free standing urgent care center. The folks who are doing the most talking seem to have no idea of the cost or complexity of actually putting this notion into play.

While I agree that a free standing urgent care center would be a nice idea, it’s neither economically feasible nor realistically doable in a low density rural county like ours. Although I have never run an urgent care center, I do have experience as a practicing physician for almost 35 years and managing partner of Eastern Shore Physicians and Surgeons when it was a private medical practice. I have also been chairman of the Shore Memorial Hospital (RSMH) Board of Directors and have some insight into the costs and difficulties of providing health care in Northampton and Accomack counties.

First some facts (Urgent Care Association of America):

• Ninety percent of urgent care locations are in urban or suburban America, so only 10 percent are in rural areas.
• Most appear to be open seven days a week for about 12 hours a day. Ninety-five percent are closed by 7 p.m.
• The average urgent care center sees about 350 patients per week, roughly 18,000 visits per year. By comparison, the RSMH emergency department sees about 17,000 patients a year.
• Start up costs are listed as $750,000 to $1,000,000 (consider that at a reasonably priced digital x-ray machine is $150,000 to $200,000)
• Operating expenses average $2.3 million a year, mostly for employees’ salaries and benefits.
• The average full time (2,000 hours) urgent care physician earns $200,000 a year, not counting benefits and malpractice insurance, which likely add another 30 percent to the cost.
• Assuming that a center is open 12 hours a day, two full-time physicians are needed.
• Nurse practitioners are less expensive- $70 per hour average, but still a lot of money.

Staffing for an urgent care center would require at least two of everything plus backup for vacations, sick days, etc. Positions needed include: Receptionist ($14 an hour), radiology tech ($20), lab tech ($25), and at least two nurses, one of whom must be licensed to give medications. This list does not include the folks who would deal with administering the center and billing for and collecting enough money to keep the place solvent.

Not to put too fine a point on this, but everyone in Northampton County would have to have one paying urgent care visit a year (at a cost of about $200) to make this wished for urgent care center a going concern. The alternative is for the community to subsidize the cost of all this either by donations or by paying more in county taxes. It is well past time to put this dream away and renew community support for the local physicians who are working very hard to provide high quality, affordable, and accessible medical care to the citizens both counties. We also need to support Riverside Health System, which is spending more than $80 million of its earnings to build a new, state of the art hospital and Cancer Center for the entire Eastern Shore of Virginia.

DMV: Liar, Liar, Pants on Fire!

Dear Editor:

As I wait in line at the Department of Motor Vehicles in Onancock, my eye landed on a sign on the wall which said there could not be more than 27 people in the room. At that time I counted 22 people and I was told there would a 45-minute wait for my turn. It turned out to be 56 minutes.

During that wait, the crowd grew from 22 people to 42 people all in the same room where the fire marshal placed the regulations on the DMV building. Do the rules not apply to the DMV in Onancock, or do they only apply if you get caught? I have no beef with this office. They were working diligently without a lunch break to wait on all the customers and they were doing their best.

There is only one full-service DMV office to serve the citizens of Accomack and Northampton counties. This is too little and too late. We have been promised a satellite DMV office in northern Accomack and we are still waiting for it.

Liar, liar, pants on fire! That bunch in Richmond DMV will tell you anything to stall you and get you off their back. Well, I am here to tell you we need to get back on track. It’s just not right to punish everyone because three people complained about the service at the satellite DMV office in Oak Hall. It should never have been closed.

To speak to the DMV commissioner on the phone, one must submit a letter requesting an appointment, but this is his email address: richard.holcom@dmv.virginia.gov

Email him and let him know we need a satellite DMV office in northern Accomack County. Voice your complaint by email.

If three complaints closed the satellite DMV office in North Accomack then he surely will close the DMV in Onancock.
