Candidates Square Off in Forum

By Linda Cicoira

Three lawyers answered questions posed by a local Girl Scout troop and touted their qualifications in the race for Accomack's commonwealth's attorney before dozens of spectators Monday in a forum held at the North Street Playhouse in Onancock.

Members of Troop 615 selected the questions with the help of a community survey taken by the Eastern Shore Post. The candidates took turns at having the first opportunity to reply.

Each of the candidates, Commonwealth's Attorney Matthew Brenner, who took office last month after Gary Agar retired; Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan; and defense lawyer Carl Bundick said they were the best candidate for the job.

Brenner said it was a smooth transition when he took the post. He boasted that he has prosecuted more cases in his 15 years working for Agar than any other candidate, that he was groomed by Agar and is the only one who has proven he can do the job by actually doing it.

Agar has not endorsed any of the candidates. Morgan is endorsed by both Accomack Sheriff Todd Godwin and former Commonwealth's Attorney Jon Poulson.

Bundick noted that he is the only "local" candidate in that the other two did not grow up on the Shore. He has been a lawyer for 25 years and handled all types of serious offenses for defendants, he said.

"I've won those offenses without the benefit of some-

Northampton Gets Fiscal Checkup

By Ron West

The Northampton County Board of Supervisors received a financial report card from Davenport & Company at its Oct. 24 work session.

Courtney Rogers, vice president of the firm, said the board has done a good job of paying debt accumulated in ten years or more for projects including the courthouse, regional jail, sheriff’s office and renovations to county offices. The report stated the debt has been reduced by half, leaving approximately $28 million to be repaid by 2033.

Chairman Spencer Murray noted the school board wanted a timeline for the replacement of the 60-year-old high school in Eastville. The estimates for a replacement for both high and middle schools has ranged from $28 million to more than $35 million. With that in mind, Murray said if funds were borrowed to cover all costs, it would likely cause tax rates to be unbearable. He suggested a better option would be to seek as many funding resources as possible and try to hold the amount borrowed to $20 million. He also suggested waiting to borrow for a few more years so more existing debt could be paid.

Resident Dave Kabler urged the board to consider using local contractors for construction to help the local economy. Murray agreed that by doing so money would remain in the county.

Supervisor Oliver Bennett said groups and individuals needed to stop opposing new business. He also said the school board should find good examples of low cost school buildings in other areas.

Murray read a prepared statement regarding the need for more revenue. He said the county needs to stop discouraging business and allow those that can come in by permit. He noted that the convenience store that has been proposed for the Kiptopeke area was approved by two different boards and meets the criteria of the zoning ordinance. If the store moves forward, it could provide up to 30 new jobs and thousands of dollars in revenue. He added that it would be adjacent to an existing motel and would help provide funds to construct the school.

Supervisor Granville Hogg said more ways to get revenue from tourists need to be found.

The board reviewed proposed changes to the zoning ordinance that involve the Chesapeake Bay Preservation Act, which locally is referred to as the Chesapeake Atlantic Preservation Act. The board reviewed some minor changes that could provide support to areas designated as working waterfront. The proposed changes would need to be reviewed by the State Department of Environmental Quality. County staff will need to provide a map that shows the actual areas that are listed as seaside and bayside.

The board voted to follow state guidelines for holiday office closures, with Hogg opposed. He said county citizens would be better served if the offices were open on some of the days the state listed.

County EMS staff operate from Machipongo, Bayside and Exmore and not Nassawadox despite pleas from Northampton Volunteer Fire and Rescue.

With the hospital moving and increased travel time for ambulances and workers, the county agreed there was a need and voted to approve the staffing effective Nov. 1. The board also approved contracts for the three volunteer squads that would provide some revenue generated when transporting patients to the hospital. It was agreed that when a volunteer squad uses one county EMS staff member, the squad would reimburse the county $50 per run and $100 if two county staff personnel were used to handle the call. Currently, a portion of the revenue collected when the squads bill patients, is returned to the county. It was projected that the new contracts could increase this amount by a few thousand dollars.

For fun, the survey also asked what cartoon character would be the best choice, what comic book and cartoons are favorites of the participants and what superpowers presidents and local commonwealth’s attorneys should have.

Included below are a few of the answers.

James Bridge of Onancock chose Clinton for president. “She is far from perfect, but at least I’m not getting that Nuremberg vibe from her.” Bridge said a president should be an empath. The president “should have to feel the consequences of his decisions.”

Bridge’s cartoon pic for the top job was Eric Theodore Cartman, one of the main characters of the TV series, South Park. “Because he tells it like it is.” His favorite cartoon of all time was “American Pop” and his favorite comic book character was Ozymandias from the Watchmen. Bridge said a commonwealth’s attorney needs a “good BS detector.”

Bruce MacMaster Jr. of Onley chose “Mr. Trump. I am sick and tired of the so-called establishment, be it Democrat, Republican or any other party. In my humble opinion, we should clean house and senate at local and national levels, establish term limits and cut salaries, all of them. Remove all the parasites from the national teats!”

MacMaster picked Lamont Cranston for the cartoon character on the ballot. “I’m old, what can I say?” That character, also known as “The Shadow,” is also his favorite cartoon of all time and his favorite comic book character.

Presidents shouldn’t have superpowers, he said. A president should only have the powers “constitutionally granted to the office. Even the power to (give) pardons should be taken away and given to the judicial power, where it belongs.” He also doesn’t believe in superpowers for commonwealth’s attorneys.

“I will vote for Hillary but not because she would be my choice but because I could not bring myself to vote for Trump,” wrote Kathleen Crockett of Gargatha. She picked Avatar as the cartoon character “for his wisdom.” Her favorite cartoon is Peanuts. She’s never read a comic book.

She said the best superpower for a president is the ability “to see into the future.” Commonwealth’s attorneys should have that and the ability to see the past.

Robert Doughty of South Chesnesssex said, “Since 1968, I have voted Democrat because of the fundamental differences in the two parties.” For fun, he picked “Senator Belfry from … Shoe” because the candidates act the way “Senator Belfry is portrayed in the comic strip.”

Doughty said a president should have “the superpower of common sense. Most average Americans already have it.” A prosecutor should have “the ability to follow the letter of the law,” Doughty added.

Richard McDowell of Pungoteague said his choice for president was Jeb Bush “But, I’ll hold my noise and vote for the Donald.” McDowell’s favorite cartoons are almost anything by Michael Ramirez, a Pulitzer Prize winning political cartoonist. His favorite comic book character is Calvin of Calvin & Hobbes.

Both presidents and commonwealth’s attorneys should be able to “read minds,” McDowell said.

Amy Eckard of Temperanceville is undecided in the real race. She “doesn’t like the current choices, will decide on Election Day, leaning towards independent can-candidates. My conscience won’t allow me to vote for Trump or Clinton. But, I will vote.”

“Snoopy!” is her cartoon pick. “He’s well liked by lots of dog lovers out there, he has common sense and he looks out for the little guy, Woodstock,” she wrote. Still, the Pink Panther is her favorite cartoon character. For comic books, her choice is Superman.

Eckard said presidents should have “wisdom” and commonwealth’s attorneys should have “discernment.”

Abra Jacobs of Exmore picked Clinton for president. “We are not perfect people and we make mistakes. We have to take ownership and take responsibility for our actions. Senator Clinton has displayed leadership in the past and I believe she will work hard and continue to strengthen our nation. She cannot do this by herself. All of us need to make a commitment to improve our nation and start in our own communities. We need to display agape love and start healing. It appears that people have more hate than love towards one another.”

Jacobs would pick “The Incredibles! The whole family has superpowers to successfully fight crime!” The favorite cartoon for Jacobs is the Road Runner. For comic books, it is Wonder Woman. Jacobs said a president should have “great insight, the power to heal, the power of invisibility, super memory, telepathy and endurance” while a commonwealth’s attorney would need the power “to time travel and telepathy.”

Tracy Lovell of Onancock is undecided. “I have no choice. I still don’t know what to do. Both major parties have offered candidates I find untenable.”

If she could, she would vote for Wonder Woman, who “always fought for truth and justice with integrity. We need that right now,” she wrote. Wonder woman was her favorite comic book character because she “was a strong female role model.”

Lovell said presidents should have the ability “to time travel so they can see how their decisions will affect the future.” A commonwealth’s attorney should be able to read minds “so he/she would know where the evidence is, determine guilt or innocence, and know when a jury is persuaded.”

Bill Payne of Cape Charles picked Clinton because she is the “most qualified.”

For fun, he would choose Wile E. Coyote. His favorite cartoon is Snoopy. His favorite comic book character is Wonder Woman. A president should have “the ability to establish world peace and eliminate all disease” while the prosecutor should have the superpower to “eliminate drug traffic.”

“I really don’t have total confidence in either of the candidates, but Trump’s actions give me no choice but to vote for Clinton,” wrote Doug Stewart of Wardtown.

For fun, he would vote for Micky Mouse’s friend, Goofy. His favorite cartoon of all time is Yosemite Sam. Stewart chose Spiderman for the best comic book character because “who wouldn’t want to be able to swing from place to place on a web capturing criminals?”

A president’s superpowers should include the ability “to read minds” so the leader “would help to make the decisions the people support.” For a commonwealth’s attorney, “being able to travel back in time to determine the facts would be helpful.”

Charles Wilbur of Melfa is a staunch Trump supporter. “He is pro-life, a strong supporter of the second amendment, business savvy, wants to lower taxes on working people and drain the swamp of corruption in Washington. His proposals to enact term limits on Congress and ban lobbying activities by ex-Washington politicians are great and certainly struck fear into the hearts of the power elite that is enriching themselves at our expense … Based on the amount of lies and pure propaganda thrown at him from all sides, it is clear that the power brokers are in a panic and will stop at nothing to ensure that he does not put an end to their corrupt schemes. Clinton has trouble telling the truth, says one thing to the common people and another thing entirely to her powerful Wall Street supporters, and has endangered all of us by her careless handling of classified information. … A Clinton administration would be a continuation of the current malaise where over 40 million of our fellow citizens are living in poverty and on food stamps. Trump puts America first, Clinton puts the powerful global elite and cronies first.”

A joint meeting of the Cape Charles Town Council and the Northampton County Board of Supervisors was held Tuesday in an effort to come to an understanding regarding several issues.

“Our interests overlap,” said Chairman Spencer Murray of the supervisors. “We would both lose if we become competitive.”

The panels discussed development of the town edge of Cape Charles. It was the consensus of town leaders that anything located near the entrance to Cape Charles should complement the town and encourage visitors.

Councilwoman Joan Natali said Cape Charles was the only town in Northampton that does not have a presence on Route 13 and needed a way to divert a portion of that traffic to town.

Mayor George Proto suggested that any building that might spring up near the entrance should have the look and feel of the town itself.

Supervisor Larry LeMond noted areas just north and south of the Cape Charles traffic light, which are adjacent to Cheriton are premier commercial areas for the county. He said the county’s zoning ordinance decides what may go there with an eye on impacts to the towns. LeMond noted the county should not put too many restrictions on land along the highway.

Councilman Chris Bannon suggested incoming businesses be asked to kick in funds to make their buildings look more inviting to visitors.

Supervisor Oliver Bennett, while noting he was sympathetic to the needs of Cape Charles, said the county has large bills in addition to finding funding for a new school. “We need to work together to help bring things in that will help the county as well as the towns. We need to develop jobs for young people in the county,” he said.

Supervisor Granville Hogg suggested that better signs are needed to help direct traffic into towns. He wanted a longer tourist season.

Natali said more benefits are needed from funds Cape Charles and Northampton contribute to the Eastern Shore Tourism Commission. Proto agreed.

The issue of providing medical care once the hospital is closed was mentioned by Proto. He said it was the most important thing that needs to be addressed.

“If you have children it’s a good place to raise them but without medical care, it’s a concern,” the mayor said. He said it is the same for retirees.

Hogg and Murray reported that more EMS workers for Nassawadox were approved. The county’s annual EMS budget is $1.6 million, which provides personnel, rolling stock and the EMS headquarters located in Machipongo. The EMS plan also calls for repositioning of an ambulance in the south should the one staffed in Bayview be unavailable for an extended time. By shifting personnel and an ambulance, it would enable those in that area to receive medical care sooner.

Murray also reported that the schools received about $8 million in state and $8.5 million in local funds. Federal aid brings the total to $21 million. He said that while the high school does face some serious structural issues, it is not falling down. He continued by stating that spending millions to make repairs to the building in line to be replaced would be a waste of the taxpayers’ money.

While no decisions were made, both panels agreed that the meeting was a good start at helping to understand each other’s issues and needs. The mayor suggested that they meet again in a few months.

Accomack General District Court

Four Accomack residents were charged with felonies recently, according to records filed in general district court.

James Edward Haley Jr., 52, of Chincoteague Island, was accused of hit and run involving more than $1,000 worth of damage on July 23, 2016. He was arrested in early September. The preliminary hearing was set for next week. Pfc. T. J. Adams of the Chincoteague Police Department (CPD) investigated.

Gary Joseph Fleig, 40, of Greenbackville, was charged with grand larceny in connection with a Jan. 6, 2014 incident. He was arrested on Oct. 5. Papers were filed with the court on Oct. 19. Investigator Sam Castiglia handled the case. A December preliminary was scheduled.

Jamie Allen Johnson, 30, of Chincoteague Island, was accused of credit card larceny on Sept. 14. A November preliminary hearing was set. Officer Tyler Greenly of CPD investigated. Johnson is being held in Greensville Correctional Center.

Amanda Rachel Wiley, 39, of Chincoteague Island, was charged on Sept. 14 with taking or obtaining a credit card. Greenly also investigated this case.

Northampton Circuit Court

A Painter man admitted Monday in Northampton Circuit Court to robbing a 9-year-old girl at gunpoint in 2015.

Khirey Akeim Six, 26, of Linhaven Circle pleaded guilty to breaking into the El Ranchito convenience store in Cheriton while armed with a deadly weapon and robbing or attempting to rob the girl on Aug. 7, 2015. He was also charged with robbery and possession of a gun by a felon. A presentence report was ordered.

In another case, Jeffrey Allen Baker, 46, of Newport News was given a three-year suspended sentence for possession of a gun by a felon. He was fined $1,500 and ordered to be on supervised probation for two years and good behavior for five.

Glenn Derrick Belton, 60, of Virginia Beach was sentenced to a three-year suspended term for credit card larceny; 30 days with 20 suspended for credit card fraud; and a 30-day suspended sentence for attempted identity theft. He was also fined $500.

Ricky Waldon Sullivan Jr., 61, of Belle Haven, was sentenced to five years in prison with four years suspended for driving while being an habitual offender. Supervised probation and good behavior were set for three years. He was also given a 30-day suspended sentence for DUI and fined $500.

Lawrence Linwood Bright, 33, of Birdsnest, was sentenced to five years in prison with all but two years suspended for possession with the intent to distribute cocaine. He got 10 years with eight suspended for distribution of imitation cocaine to run consecutively for a total of four years to serve. Bright will be on supervised probation for five years and good behavior for 10.

James Carter Walker, 26, of Duncan Road in Petersburg, Va., pleaded guilty to possession of a gun by a violent felon, obstruction, eluding, reckless driving by passing two vehicles abreast on the highway, reckless driving by going in excess of 100 miles per hour and driving on a suspended license. The incident occurred Sept. 12, 2015. The case was continued pending completion of a presentence report.

Tanisha Renee Johnson, 44, of Peach Street in Cape Charles, pleaded guilty to passing bad check. The case was continued pending completion of a presentence report.

Glennena Weeks, 53, of Banks Road in Cheriton, pleaded guilty to possession with the intent to distribute cocaine and possession with the intent to distribute oxycodone. A presentence report was ordered.

Patrick Tennyson Scott Jr., 33, of Hampton, pleaded guilty Wednesday to possession of Phencyclidine or PCP, a Schedule II drug. He was sentenced to three years with all but a month suspended, and intensive supervised probation for three years. For driving under the influence of drugs, he was sentenced for 365 days with all but 30 days suspended, his driver’s license was suspended for 12 months, he was ordered to attend VASAP, his license was restricted for 12 months and an interlock was ordered for his vehicle.
Mr. Edward (Buddy) L. Perry Jr., 88, of Onancock passed away Tuesday, Oct. 18, 2016, at his residence. Born April 28, 1928, in Wilmington, Del., he was a son of the late Edward L. Perry, Sr. and Julia E. Perry. He retired from C&P Telephone Company and was an avid sports fan who will be remembered for his love of baseball and the New York Yankees. Mr. Perry attended many of their games in the Bronx. He was a devoted member of the Naomi Makemie Presbyterian Church in Onancock.

Mr. Perry is survived by his daughter, Betty Ann Perry; grandson, Ed C. Perry (Kara); brothers, Calvin T. Perry (Verna) and Phillip M. Perry (Lynn); and several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his wife, Betty Lou Perry; son, Edward (Ned) L. Perry III; brothers, Richard A. Perry and Gerald A. Perry; and sisters, Norma Lee Elliott, Barbara E. Craver and Janice R. Banks.

The family wishes to acknowledge and thank Kathy Merritt for her kindness and care given to Mr. Perry. She worked tirelessly to ensure his comfort and maintain his dignity.

Funeral services were conducted Oct. 21 from the graveside of the Fairview Lawn Cemetery with Rev. Albert C. Crockett and Rev. Monica Gould officiating. Memorial donations may be made to the Naomi Makemie Presbyterian Church, c/o George Heinrichs, P.O. Box 397, Onancock, VA 23417 or to the Onancock Volunteer Fire Department, c/o David Mason, P.O. Box 124, Onancock, VA 23417.

Arrangements were made by Williams-Onancock Funeral Home.

Hopeton Woman Passes

Mrs. Elaine Taylor Kimble, 78, of Hopeton, wife of the late Stephen Craig Kimble, passed away on Oct. 18, 2016, at her home, surrounded by family.

VDOT Retiree Passes

Mr. Jerald Lawson Crockett Sr., 78, beloved husband of Kay Hall Crockett, and a resident of Melfa, passed away peacefully at his home on Monday, Oct. 24, 2016.

Born May 27, 1938, in Urbanna, Va., he was a son of the late Henry Lee Crockett Sr. and Ella Shore Crockett. Mr. Crockett retired from the Virginia Department of Transportation after 42 years of service. He loved NASCAR, was a devoted Washington Redskins fan, and especially enjoyed drag racing.

Mr. Crockett was well known at the Del Mar racetrack, where he raced his 1969 Chevelle, winning point champion that year. He loved hunting and fishing; adored his cats, affectionately known as his “Fur Babies”; and looked forward to spending weekends going to yard sales with his wife, Kay.

In addition to his wife of 36 years, he is survived by three daughters, Margaret Ann Sargent (Terry) of Onley, Jayne Drummond (Prince) of Exmore, and Gerlina Strawser (Matt) of St. Augustine, Fla.; son, Kevin Jones (Joann) of Onancock; brother, Henry L. Crockett III (Mary) of Wachapreague; sister, Eva “Suggie” Robinson (Billy) of Spring Hill, Fla.; brothers-in-law, Richard “Rick” Hall (Kathy) of Wachapreague, Sam Hall (Laura) of Milawaukee, and William Justice “Bubba” Hall of Quinby; sisters-in-law, Barbara Crockett of Melfa, and Mary Pittman (Greg) of Hampton; a special niece, Texena Anne Crockett; nephew, Jackie Crockett; Marvin Nuttall, who was like a brother and grew up with Jerald; best friend and buddy, Randy Miller; and numerous grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces, and nephews.

Besides his parents, he was predeceased by a son, Gerald L. “Jerry” Crockett Jr.; a sister, Martha Louis; a brother, Fred W. Crockett; brothers-in-law, George Thomas Hall and Vernon Francis “Bud” Hall Jr.; and sisters-in-law, Nancy Hall Wallace and Connie Hall Weaver.

Funeral services will be conducted from the graveside at the Wachapreague Cemetery on Wednesday, Nov. 2, 2016, at 3:30 p.m., with Rev. John Burr officiating. Visitation will be offered at the Williams-Onancock Funeral Home prior to the service, from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m.

one assisting me,” Bundick continued. “I’m looking to join them (Morgan and Brenner) as a team … for the victims of crime. They want someone who is willing to get into the crowd … I will be a person you will know and you will see and we will work together to solve the issues of Accomack County.”

Morgan, the youngest of the three and in his 30s, cited his energetic youth as a positive. “Communication, a commitment, being available, answering any call at any hour and confidence; those … things are what make a good commonwealth’s attorney,” said Morgan. “And empathy, most of the people you meet are not there because they’ve had a good day … you need to be able to connect with them … but at the end of the day you still have a job to do.”

Brenner said his thorough knowledge of the law and his ability to know where to look because laws are always changing is a plus. “We don’t have everything off the top of our heads.”

Brenner said he has the patience for the job. “Defense attorneys will test your patience constantly,” he continued. To get justice for your victim,” one must “be willing to try tough cases … sometimes there are cases we know are just not winnable.” The commonwealth’s attorney needs to have “the smarts to know these from another kind of case.” He said determination and an even temperament are the keys.

Bundick said the most difficult part of the job is “to come up with a strategy that would be reasonable … you have to know the case better than anyone in the room and look at all possible alternatives.” Bundick said his experience as a defense lawyer would help him with that.

Illegal Drugs

In regard to illegal drug use and sales locally, Morgan said the problem is “two pronged.” There is “clearly an epidemic including heroin, cocaine and a small amount of methamphetamine” and there is abuse of prescription drugs. “The two at times go hand-in-hand and they feed one another.” In some cases “drugs intended to cure addiction” are used and sold.

“The best way I can fight it is to prosecute those who distribute large amounts of narcotics,” Morgan continued. “The use of those drugs has gotten out of control. We need to take a better look at the medical profession.”

“The epidemic touches us all,” said Bundick. He contended that the problem sometimes starts with prescription drugs that get left in the cabinet and are used when they aren’t needed. “As a community we have to decide to support programs with rehabilitation, use available resources … the behavior has got to stop. Support and make sure the people in our community know where to get help. The way we defeat it is to work as a community.”

Brenner said he has prosecuted the vast majority of the drug cases since 2001. “You have to go after the dealers,” he noted. “Unfortunately the problem is vast enough, as you get one guy locked up another will go in his place.” Brenner said another problem with addiction is it causes more crime as the addicts break laws to get more money to do more drugs.

He favors establishing a drug treatment court, which he said has reduced offenses and drug addiction in other areas. “It may be too expensive for the county. I don’t know that yet. I think we should try to do that.”

Plea Bargains

Bundick has been on the other side of these deals but said it can work for the prosecutors as well. “I’m not an advocate in all instances,” he said. But the bargain could “accomplish our goal to take a person off the street for a time … they are a tool that is used” when a case is not “solid.” If he wins the election, he said the three men would meet “to talk about our cases, talk about strengths and weaknesses to prevail on a regular basis.”

“No, there’s not always a place for a plea agreement,” said Brenner. “Why should we offer them a bargain? They should be found guilty of the crime they have committed.” He acknowledged that in larger jurisdictions, like Northern Virginia, plea bargains are “a matter of course. They have to just to manage their caseload. We don’t have to do that here. I’m thankful.” He also admitted that plea bargains can be useful. “If there is an issue … the victim doesn’t want to testify … then there’s a problem with the case.”

“What both have missed here is the victim,” Morgan said of his opponents. “Has the victim been consulted? What impact is this discussion going to have on this person? One of the worse things you can have is when victim says, “This system is broken or this system isn’t working for me.”

“The victim may want it,” a plea bargain, said Morgan. “Then the prosecutor has to make a decision. While discussing it with the community is nice, the community does have something to say.” But so does the victim, especially in a domestic abuse case. “We can’t always make this a misdemeanor,” Morgan said referring to what he said Bundick always asks him for the defendant.

Safety vs. Tax Dollars

Brenner said that the budget for the commonwealth’s attorney is set by the state with some supplemented by the county. “Keeping people safe, that has to be paramount,” he said. “The budgets that we work under do that.”

Morgan seemed to agree. “Much of our budget goes toward salaries and office supplies not buying bullets or vests; having all personnel in the office, in court trying to help the public.” He said the bigger issue is “giving them the best value of the monies that come into the office.”

Bundick said confiscations and forfeitures can add to the budget. He said it shouldn’t cost “another dollar” for the commonwealth’s attorney’s office to speak to the community. “There should be no limitation when it comes to community safety.”

Death Penalty

Brenner was the only candidate to come out strongly in favor of the death penalty.

“I’m not afraid to say I’m in favor of the death penalty when the case warrants it,” he said. “Murder with aggravating circumstances. If we have the evidence to prove those things (and when) particularly heinous, we should strongly consider and go after the death penalty for somebody. The state will pay for a team of capital defenders, if you charge a capital offense. Large offices can assimilate the work. In small office like ours it would be very, very difficult to take on. There’s enough work in one of those cases… motion after motion upon motion. One prosecutor would work on for several years. That would make the rest of the work suffer.”

Morgan said he only knew of one case that Agar had for the death penalty. It was on Chincoteague many years prior. “Agar got a conviction and the defendant was put to death. “The decision to presume should not be taken lightly,” Morgan said. “There are circumstances that I could see … should be considered.”

“Across the commonwealth many of the death penalty cases are ending with life without parole,” said Bundick. “It seems to be a better alternative … also the aggravating factors that have to be proven … I would be looking to the people I serve.”

Important Duties

Bundick said the most important duties are “being responsive to the people we serve. Responsive and sensitive, preparing cases, getting ready for trial, investigating leads.” He said the office needs someone who is “quick on his or her feet” and one who “listens for minute details … the case is lost in absence of that.”

Bundick said the job is suited for one who is good with evidence, good with details, rebounds quickly and is not necessarily the most flamboyant.

“First of all, I think Mr. Bundick just described me,” said Brenner. He added that he learned from Agar that one must have the mindset of a prosecutor, have determination despite setbacks, he able to listen to your victims with the ability to “counsel to some degree.” Brenner said he was once the victim of a burglary. “I do know what it feels like to be a victim. That’s something I think I do well too.”

The persecution of crimes successfully “is paramount,” said Morgan. He gets there by preparing his cases, having discussions with office workers, victims and being ready to go. “It is best when prepared well in advance,” he said, adding that that preparation can begin before a charge is brought when talking to the investigators. “Winning the case is the most important part of this job and to listen and empathize with a victim; at least appreciate the position they find themselves in. Often times it is a partnership.”

Crime Prevention

Brenner wants to get outside the office and become more involved with youth to work with communities “to prevent crime in our neighborhoods.” He favors more anti-drug education in schools and through families at a younger age. “We have to get to them before” the fifth grade.

Morgan said the best way to handle it is by showing “serious consequences” for offenses. “Young people act without thinking things through … people don’t want to get involved in criminal prosecutions. … It’s because they’re afraid. … The parents of the students in these schools are afraid in their own homes … It has to go beyond the schools.”

Bundick said it would help for the commonwealth’s attorney to be seen as a leader and be known in local schools. “We need to be at the schools at the sporting events and look people in the eye and say there are consequences, live in an environment that is crime free. That core of people have already started… working together.”

Mental Health

All agreed there is an issue with mental illness in the community because there is no ward at the local hospital and no plan for one at the new facility, which is slated to open next year.

How to Start

“My plan would be to make sure early on that each of us to do the same amount of work,” said Bundick. He wants those with particular skills to handle cases that are corresponding. He said a prosecutor needs to be available to each court on a daily basis. Bundick also wants to form a vol-

The Eastern Shore Gators football teams took the Nandua High School field on Saturday for their last home games of the season.

Playing first were the Tiny Mites, who defeated the Berlin Seahawks. Massai Giddens led the offense, scoring all seven of the team’s touchdowns. Another standout was Jordon Nock, who is the only female player to ever run the ball on the Tiny Mites football squad since its inception.

Next up were the Mitey Mites, who battled the Harrington Spartans. Both sides took some tough hits that stopped the action in order for the players to recover, but after 48 minutes of play, the Gators came out on top, 28-0.

Wrapping up the last home series with a hard-fought loss to Woodbridge, 26-0, were the Jr. Varsity Gators.

The teams will head to Laurel, Md., Saturday, Oct. 29, for a round of games before they finish out the season with a playoff run Nov. 5th - 6th in Maryland.

The Jr. Pee Wee Gators cheerleading squad finished third in their regular season competition and will travel to Trenton, N.J. to compete in regionals on Nov. 12.

Founded in 2012, the ES Gators are under the Eastern Shore Pop Warner Football and Cheer Association; a chartered member of the Eastern Region of Pop Warner Little Scholars Inc. and league member of Henlopen Pop Warner Inc. Their cheer and football programs bring together residents ranging from ages five to 15 from across the Shore in Maryland and Virginia.

The purpose of the Pop Warner program is to develop young athletes on and off the field. Their mission is to help youth on the Eastern Shore through scholastic achievement, football and cheer.

As a non-profit organization, the Gators thrive from the support of the surrounding community. For more information about how to get involved, visit www.easternshorepopwarner.com
The Arcadia Firebirds boys’ cross country team took home first place during the Eastern Shore District Championship meet last Thursday afternoon at the Assateague Island Wildlife Loop.
Warriors Extinguish Firebirds

Story and Photos by Krystle Bono

The Arcadia Firebirds played host to district rival, the Nandua Warriors, last Friday night in Oak Hall during the school’s homecoming festivities. The Firebirds fell to their opponent, 35-27, after a grueling four quarters.

Marking the board first were the Warriors, who by the conclusion of the opening 12 minutes, managed to hold a 12-0 lead over the Firebirds.

Six minutes into the second quarter, Nandua pulled away and extended their score to 21-0. Arcadia found fuel to their fire when Jakori Dickerson recovered the ball and rushed the Firebirds to their first touchdown of the night with just 44 seconds left in the second quarter. By the halfway mark, Arcadia added the extra point and brought the score to 21-7 in favor of the Warriors.

A turnover with 9:02 left in the third paved way for Nandua to gain another scoring opportunity, however, an interception at the 40-yard line by Trey Ballard put the ball back in the hands of the Firebirds. Arcadia was finally able to tally another six points with just 1:56 left in the third quarter, bringing the scoreboard to read, 21-13.

The final 12 minutes of play was a chance for Arcadia to fire back in full-force. Nandua scored two more touchdowns and racked in the extra points. The Firebirds closed the gap with two more touchdowns, but were unable to catch the Warriors in time, resulting in a 35-27 loss to Nandua.

The victory pushed the Warriors’ overall record to 6-3 and the Firebirds to 3-5. Nandua will celebrate their annual homecoming celebration as they battle the Northampton Yellow Jackets in Onley this evening. The Yellow Jackets now own a 4-4 record coming off a 35-21 loss to Quantico.

Arcadia will battle the Kent County Trojans (4-4) tonight on their home turf.

The Broadwater Academy Vikings will try to advance their 2-7 season record when they travel to Hampton Roads Academy (1-6) tonight.

The Chincoteague Ponies extended their win streak to four last Monday, when they shutout the Hampton Roads Generals, 36-0. The game was rescheduled from its previous Oct. 29 kickoff. The Ponies will look for a fifth straight win on Friday, Nov. 4, when they face the Greenbrier Christian Academy Gators in Chesapeake.
Shore Athlete Spotlight

Ten-year-old Naomi Sterling is a young girl with big dreams of one day playing in the National Football League (NFL). As a fifth grader at Chincoteague Elementary School, she has always wanted to play football; she was given the opportunity three years ago when she signed up to play for the Eastern Shore Gators.

She is currently gearing up with the Pee Wee league within the Pop Warner organization and is one of the few females that make up the many boy-dominated rosters. Naomi hopes that she can encourage other girls her age to play alongside the boys, too. Anyone is welcome to suit up with the Gators, no matter their gender.

Unfortunately, Naomi has been unable to play this week, as she suffered a fractured middle finger in her last game. She will be cleared and back in action for playoffs on Nov. 5.

Her favorite professional football team is the Washington Redskins and she gives credit to her parents and her brother and sister as her biggest supporters in her football endeavors. When she is not on the field, she enjoys drawing and she aspires to one day attend Salisbury University in Salisbury, Md., for her undergraduate studies. When asked what keeps her coming out year after year to suit up in the black and yellow Gators attire, the answer was simple; her team is like family.

The best part about playing football, in Naomi’s opinion, is being able to tackle. “Tackle is my favorite part. It’s really fun.”

Do you know a Shore athlete that deserves special recognition? If so, please contact us at sports@easternshorepost.com so they can be featured in one of our future issues.

Nandua Warriors Varsity Volleyball
Claim ES District Title

The Nandua Warriors defeated the Northampton Yellow Jackets Tuesday night in Eastville, 3-1. The matchup between the Yellow Jackets and the Warriors would mark the district tie-breaker, as both teams entered the game each earning one win and one loss in their previous encounters. Nandua claimed the first and second sets, 26-24 and 25-13. Northampton fought back and topped the Warriors in the third set, 25-13, but fell during the fourth, 25-20. This gave Nandua the number one spot the ES District, with Northampton settling in second place.

Youth participants and their parents during the SportsFest event last Saturday.

The National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration at Wallops Island Virginia (NOAAWIVA) Sportsmen Inc., hosted the eighth annual Youth Sportsfest Event last Saturday. The event was hosted by 38 staff members from the NOAAWIVA club and gave the opportunity for 27 girls and boys, ranging from ages eight to 18 to enjoy a free shooting experience. The focus was on gun safety and shooting education, while giving youth a chance to have fun. Even with a challenging blustery and rainy day, a number of girls and boys with little experience in a shooting competition, shot high scores. Trophies were presented to the top shooters in junior and senior divisions. All safety and shooting equipment was provided, along with free food and drink. The activities included target shooting with CO2 and .22 rim-fire rifles, breaking clay birds with 20-gauge shotguns and junior high power rifle competition.

The NOAAWIVA Club hosted the shooting education event as a free community service. A Brownells/NRA grant helped finance part of the event.

Mackenzie Hand: Cape Charles Native Is Tour Guide to Crew Mates

By Connie Morrison

You could say Mackenzie Hand took the long way home.

Hand’s family farm is two miles outside of Cape Charles, but last week she sailed into Cape Charles Harbor as one of nine crew members on the 170-foot private sailing yacht Meteor, destined for Cape Charles Yacht Center.

Finding work as a crew member was not easy. “No one wants to hire you without experience,” she said. There are a few main ports where aspiring crew members can start to build a track record: Fort Lauderdale, Palm Beach, and Newport, RI.

The solution? “I went up there in summertime, and I moved into a crew house,” Hand said. She began to pick up day work where crews had quick turnover or projects where they needed extra hands. Fortunately, said Hand, “There is endless work on boats. As soon as you think you have cleaned everything, it’s time to start cleaning again. It’s constant upkeep.”

By September 2015 she had enough experience to land a position as second stewardess on Meteor. The Royal Huisman has three cabins including a master suite, a wood burning stove with a delft tiles surround, and mahogany cockpit and deckhouse. It is currently on the market for $55 million.

As a crew member she has been in ports throughout New England, Bermuda, and across the Caribbean. Still, Cape Charles is never far from mind, so when Meteor needed maintenance, Hand was instrumental in convincing the crew to bring the sailing yacht to the Cape Charles Yacht Center.

“We are a great place to get the work done,” said Yacht Club owner Eyre Baldwin. Open for its third season, the Yacht Center has grown to 10 full-time employees and 20 sub-contractors. Specialty painting, welding, and stainless steel workers were among those called in. “We said we could get the subs,” said Baldwin. “We are doing it, and we are doing it really well.” So well, in fact, that Meteor’s original stay was extended by another 10 days.

At the time this story was written, Meteor was one of three $50-million-plus yachts at the center, with a total of 39 crew members. Baldwin said yacht owners are only on board, on average, about three weeks per year, so “it’s really about making the crew happy.”

A crew vehicle, golf cart, paddle boards, and a scooter are made available to captain and crew during their time in port, along with access to Bay Creek resort. The added advantage of being on the Eastern Shore is its attractions, affordability and small-town authenticity, something echoed by Hand. “We just had a full season of yacht towns, so for the crew to step off the boat and meet real people is not something we get to do: to go to a bar, have a drink, and spend money in a shop,” said Hand.

Re-visiting a shop in Nantucket is not high on their list, said Baldwin. But a chance to hop on a paddle board, or go up a creek in a skiff and fish for speckled trout, has real appeal — a chance to “come here and let their hair down,” he said. Because the Eastern Shore retains its authenticity, crews are able to have experiences they can’t have in destinations like New Port and Palm Beach. Baldwin recalls taking the crew of a recent 110’ mega-yacht to the Northampton Agricultural Fair and to the barrier islands.

The benefit of crew members with time and disposable income on hand has not been lost on local merchants, said Baldwin. “Town merchants have been so gracious to them,” he said, but it isn’t hard for them to see that the benefits extend well beyond the crew. “Meteor showed up one day, and by the next morning people were filling into town to see the 170’ Royal Huisman,” and shops derive businesses from this increased traffic, he said.

Hand sees another benefit for local folks. “Without leaving home, they get to see what a big world it is,” she said. The vessel’s captain is from England, and its multi-national crew hails from the U.S., Dominica, the Netherlands, South Africa, Brazil, and New Zealand.

Next year, as Meteor heads in the America’s Cup in Bermuda, and Hand later makes her first transatlantic voyage, Baldwin will be in the midst of expanding the Cape Charles Yacht Center. Cape Charles Town Council approved a plan in August that will allow the center to almost double in size, adding 1,400 feet of new waterfront and an additional 23-acres in the parcel adjacent to the yacht center. “We’re going to put in a bigger lift to be able to service super yachts in a bigger way,” said Baldwin.

His biggest challenge is finding people to do the highly specialized work. “There are so many opportunities for people who want to work for themselves,” he said. “I can’t get enough people to stop by and see what they can do to help.”

With Meteor on the market, Hand looks to her own future as well. “It’s something that’s on my mind,” she says, “but once you’ve gained experience, you’ll find other work. You can go anywhere in the world.” Not that she’s in a hurry; she is managing to sock away a nice nest egg because crew on-board expenses are paid, allowing her to bank most of her paycheck. “I’d like to go traveling; visit friends all over the world,” she said.

How does her home town stack up with all the ports she has visited? “I love Cape Charles,” she said. “It will always be my home town.”

Dental Exams At School for Nandua Middle School Students!

Register now for your child to be seen at school.

Eastern Shore Rural Health is offering dental exams and cleanings for Nandua Middle School students at NMS beginning Friday Nov. 11. We will be at the school each Friday until all returned registrations are completed.

To participate, a signed registration packet must be returned to the school nurse now. Forms were sent home with students the week of Oct. 17. Look for the bright orange flier!

NMS Students will be scheduled first come, first served as forms are received and as space allows.

Tooth decay is the most common chronic illness for children! Nationwide, each year, kids miss more than 51 million hours of school due to dental disease.

North Street Playhouse Announces 31st Season, Beginning With “Bus Stop”

Submitted Article

The North Street Playhouse announced its 31st season of plays and events, kicking off Nov. 4 at 8 p.m., with a champagne reception and the opening night of the classic romantic comedy “Bus Stop,” by William Inge.

Additional productions in the Main Stage Series include “Santa’s Mixed Bag — A Merry/Christmas Spectacular,” running for four performances Dec. 9-11, featuring a “mixed bag” of songs, comedy, and production numbers, followed by “The Mountaintop,” by Katori Hall in February. Recently on Broadway, this warm, funny and touching play is an imagining of Martin Luther King Jr.’s last night on earth.

In April, the Playhouse will produce the first full production of a new comedy, Divinity Place written by Greg Jones and in June, the return of last season’s popular “Stronger than Steel,” written by historian, Kellee Blake, telling stories of Eastern Shore women during the Civil War.

draMAStic dance works will be returning in March with a cabaret program featuring choreography by company members. Other Etc. Series offerings will include performances in January of “EDGAR, (I Nothing Am),” a play conceived and directed by Cat Yudain, artistic director of RAWHIDE Theatre Company and frequent guest artist at the Playhouse, and “The Sherlock Holmes Project” in August, a collaboration between draMAStic and RAWHIDE.

Chester Hall ACPS Coordinator of Student Services

By Linda Cicoira

Chester Hall, a truancy worker and teacher for Accomack schools, was approved by the School Board last week to be the division’s Coordinator of Student Services/Human Resources effective Nov. 1.

“He will direct and coordinate student discipline hearings; develop student personnel policies; assist with planning social, recreational and curricular programs; and monitor attendance, truancy and out of attendance zone issues,” according to prepared announcement made Wednesday by Superintendent Chris Holland.

Hall has been in the public education field for 15 years. Holland said, Hall “recently served as the Prevention and Intervention Specialist for the school division, which included representing Accomack County Public Schools in court regarding student truancy as well as conducting home visits for student matters. Prior to that he served as an Administrative Intern and Marketing Teacher at Nandua High School,” Holland said.

Hall was given the 2008 Omega Psi Phi, Pi Omega Chapter Educator of the Year Award. He is a Certified Academic Life Coach and received the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc. Accomack/Northampton Alumnae Chapter's 2016 Distinguished Author's Award.

Hall got a Bachelor of Science Degree from Hampton University and a Masters of Education Administration from Salisbury University. He holds teaching and administrative credentials in Administration and Supervision, Marketing Education, Middle School Science and Elementary Education.

Hall is also the son of Dr. Rhonda Hall, director of school improvement and federal programs and a former assistant superintendent for the division. On Thursday, Holland said Chester Hall’s salary would be set at the Nov. 1 school board meeting. A photo was also not provided.

Gordon Martin is honored, but also humbled, at joining some select company as the 2016 Artist of the Year for the Eastern Shore of Virginia Ducks Unlimited Chapter.

“With all the great carvers on the Eastern Shore, I was really surprised when they asked me to be the Artist of the Year. I am honored beyond words,” said Martin, 70, who lives in New Kent County about 25 miles west of his native Williamsburg.

However, Martin is no stranger to the Shore and has been a strong supporter of the local DU chapter in recent years. An avid hunter and fisherman, Martin often hunts with Russell Fish, a Chincoteague carver, and has shared stories and carving tips in the workshop with local carvers Pete Peterson and Ken Marshall. He counts decoy collector Tommy O’Conner as one of his good friends. For many years, Martin kept an RV on the Shore and camped here most weekends.

“I grew up hunting on the Chickahominy River,” said Martin one recent day from his shop in Lanexa, a small town not much more than a mile off Interstate 64. “I still love waterfowl hunting when a lot of people my age have given it up.”

Part of the lure of hunting for Martin is watching ducks stool into decoys he has carved. “I guess you’d say I carve contemporary working decoys,” said Martin, who won Best in Show for both Antiques and Gunning Decoy categories in a White Stone decoy show last spring. “It’s a great feeling seeing ducks pulled in by decoys you carved,” said Martin, who also carves fish and various songbirds.

He has been carving decoys for about 40 years, and his start can be traced to the Eastern Shore. During one of his hunting trips with the late Charles Fish, Russell’s uncle and also a carver, Martin stopped into The Decoy Factory, once located at T’s Corner, and bought a carving kit.

“I looked at the decoys at the store and thought I could do that, although I had no artistic talent whatsoever. Cigar Daisy started giving me tips whenever I came to Chincoteague. Cigar was a tremendous help,” referring to the legendary island carver who helped to pioneer the working decoy into a more detailed decorative style.

Working on weekends and some evenings when not at work as manager of safety and security at the Anheuser-Busch brewery in Williamsburg, where he spent 30 years before retiring eight years ago, Martin began to build a clientele who wanted his decoys for their hunting rigs. His stools are hunted over throughout the country.

While his decoys are sturdy enough to hunt over, they are decorative enough to be placed on a mantel. A Vietnam War veteran, Martin rarely participates in decoy shows because he’s not fond of sitting in one place too long. “I am fortunate I have enough orders I am backlogged for about a year,” he said. “A weekend at a show can be long, and although I enjoy meeting people I don’t need to be adding to my workload right now.”

Despite all his Shore carving buddies, Martin says his number one critic and supporter has been his wife of 36 years, Glenna. “She’s been very supportive, which is important because carving can be very time-consuming,” said Martin, adding that his wife enjoys fishing with him.

Featured in an article in Hunting and Fishing Collectibles in 2012, Martin was chairman back in the 1980s of the Williamsburg Ducks Unlimited Chapter. He provides carvings each year for four chapters, including the Eastern Shore chapter, which will hold its annual oyster roast and banquet Saturday, Nov. 19, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. at The Barrier Islands Center in Machipongo. Martin plans to carve a pair of widgeons for the event.

Founded in 1937, Ducks Unlimited has more that 600,000 members and conserves, restores and manages wetlands and associated habitats for North America’s waterfowl. These habitats also benefit other wildlife, as well as people.

The chapter’s Greenwing event for youth is Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. at the Nature Conservancy’s Brownsville Farm near Nassawadox. The event will be open to children of all ages, although activities will target 8- to 17-year-olds. The purpose of the event is to encourage local youth to take an interest in outdoor recreation and natural resource conservation.

Northampton United Way Event
Schedule for Nov. 18

Submitted Article
Northampton County residents will gather on Friday, Nov. 18, from 5-6:30 p.m., at the newly renovated Sunset Beach Resort to celebrate a number of local charities active in the county that rely on the United Way for annual support.

“Many of my friends in Northampton County are just not aware that United Way-supported agencies are providing so many essential services in their own communities. United Way of the Eastern Shore provides a critical safety net for their elderly, their young people and neighbors in crisis,” said co-chair Deborah Christie. “We are hosting this celebration to get the word out.”

Guests will enjoy food and drink while they meet agency executives and volunteer board members from the Randy Custis Memorial Park, home to Little League and other sports programs for Northampton youth, and New Roots, which teaches children farm-to-market skills in the Town of Cape Charles. Representatives from Boys and Girls Clubs will also talk about the many after-school programs they provide to help young students succeed, and leaders from the Eastern Shore Coalition Against Domestic Violence will discuss their family shelter and other new programs that now operate in Northampton County to help families dealing with domestic violence and abuse.

Co-Chairs for the United Way Celebration are Bill Payne, who serves as board chair for Boys and Girls Clubs, Elizabeth Dodd, executive director of the Northampton County Chamber of Commerce, and Todd Burbage, president of Blue Water Development and owner of Sunset Beach Resort.

Admission is $20 per person or $30 per couple. For reservations or for more information please call Christie at 757-709-9483.

Calm Under Fire

Pictured above are two firefighters from Tasley. Units from four local companies were dispatched to a residential fire at 24072 East Point Rd. near Onancock last Saturday, Oct. 22.

Onancock was first on the scene and found the two-story wood-frame house was heavily involved in fire. Also arriving were firefighters from Melfa, Onley and Tasley. Then additional requests for help were made to Parksley, Wachapreague and Painter companies for rural water supply operations, according to www.easternshorefire.com

The incident occurred at about 1:45 p.m. No injuries were reported. “All crews worked together to complete extinguishment, salvage and overhaul.”

The cause was not available at press time Thursday.

This year, three Riverside Shore nurses, Jane Kellam, MSN, RN, CWOCN, Sarah Shotwell, RN, BSN and Annette Hempel, FNP-BC, MSN are finalists for the 6th annual Virginia Chapter March of Dimes Nurse of the Year award.

Kellam, Director of Nursing at Riverside Shore Rehabilitation Center, has been in nursing for 39 years and is also a Certified Wound Ostomy Continence Nurse. A lifelong career nurse, she remarked, “Being a finalist for this award is something I never expected. I do not consider myself special...just dedicated to caring for others. I am part of a large team of colleagues who are just as dedicated as I am. I truly believe in Riverside’s mission statement to care for others as I would care for my own loved ones. Caring for the elder population is an amazing gift; I enjoy each and every day with our residents and am blessed that they (and their families) trust us to care for their loved ones. In the midst of the busiest day, to be able to reach out and hold a hand, give a hug, provide care for those in need, is a blessing that I give thanks for daily.”

Shotwell, a 7-year team member at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital (RSMH), recently earned her certification as an International Board Certified Lactation Consultant. Shotwell completed five classes, performed 1,000 hours of clinical experience with breastfeeding mothers and babies and passed a rigorous exam. Shotwell commented, “As natural as breastfeeding is, it can still be difficult. I work to make the process easier on both mother and baby so that breastfeeding can be as successful as possible”. Shotwell was chosen as a finalist for her work to support new moms and help them solve common breastfeeding problems. Her goal is to improve breastfeeding success and thereby improve the health of the Shore’s children. Shotwell established a breastfeeding support group twice a month and a support line for anyone in the community with breastfeeding questions.

Hempel has been a nurse for 15 years working primarily in Critical Care. She recently earned her MSN, FNP and is now working with cardiac and neurology patients on the Eastern Shore with Dr. Lloyd Kellam III and Dr. Robert Paschall. Annette is passionate about excellence in both patient care and in nursing professionalism. Hempel remarked “I’m honored to be recognized as a nursing leader and professional and to represent Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital. My work is challenging and yet so fulfilling, and to considered as a finalist for such an award is humbling.” Hempel was also a finalist this year for the Virginia Nurses Foundation’s Nurse of the Year awards.

Carvers Honored During Delmarva Heritage Days

By Linda Cicoira

Three local longtime carvers were honored last weekend at the Delmarva Discovery Center & Museum during Delmarva Heritage Days.

Delbert (Cigar) Daisey of Chincoteague (now Pocomoke, Md.), Oliver (Toots) Lawson of Crisfield, Md., and Grayson Chesser of Jenkins Bridge, were presented with bronze wood ducks made by sculptor David Turner, whose studio is near Melfa.

“We want to recognize several blue ribbon decoy carvers whose artistic achievement will perpetuate America’s original art form,” said Barbara Tull, a founder and a lifetime director of the center.

“Daisey, the embodiment of Chincoteague great decoy carvers,” was noted by Tull for his “contribution to the development of the art.” Lawson “carried on the work of the (late) Ward Brothers and continues to be a long-time contributor,” Tull continued. And Chesser was commended for his “decoys, stories and hunting style.”

She explained, “The Ward Brothers, Lem and Steve, led the way transitioning from working decoys to highly decorated birds capturing the essence of the bird.”

Daisy, 92, managed to get in a little work during the event. Another carver, Herbie Watson, who is originally from Atlantic but has lived in Pocomoke for years, wheeled around Daisy, who has been a little under the weather.

Carvers — Mayor Arthur Leonard of Chincoteague, Cameron McIntyre of New Church, and Carroll Lee Marshall of Sanford — were also among the carvers who had displays at the event.

Sheriff Seeking Information in Shootings

By Linda Cicoira

Two shooting incidents occurred in Accomack County earlier this month, according to Sheriff Todd Godwin.

At about 11:15 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 16, Godwin said a report of gunshots on Second Street in Gargatha was received by his office. When deputies arrived, they determined “several shots had been fired striking an occupied residence as well as a vehicle parked in the yard.” Godwin said no injuries occurred.

At approximately 8 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 20, Godwin’s office was notified about a shots fired at Corner Mart convenience store in Painter. It was determined “that shots were fired from a red compact car traveling northbound on Lankford Highway.” Godwin said the shots were aimed “in the direction of a vehicle parked at the gas pumps.” There was damage to the vehicle and the front of the Painter firehouse. Exmore Police Department assisted in the investigation.

Anyone with information about these or any other crimes is asked to contact the Accomack County Sheriff’s Office at 757-787-1131 or 757-824-5666. Tips may also be submitted through Godwin’s website at www.acomackcountysheriffsoffice.org

In Christian theology, God created the universe in six days. On the seventh day, he rested.

It took Rev. Judy Worthington six years to recreate, in needlepoint, the six days of creation, and she did not rest when she was finished. Instead, she created a Bible study and reflection around each of the 16” x 16” pieces, which will be exhibited at a reception Thursday, Nov. 10, 3 to 6 p.m. at Franktown United Methodist Church, where Worthington serves as pastor.

It all began in the summer of 2010 when Worthington was flipping through Smithsonian magazine while in an ICU waiting room. She was struck by an advertisement for Ehrman Tapestry needlepoint patterns based on art by Alex Beattie. “I’ve got to do this,” Worthington remembers thinking.

She had only done two needlepoint projects in her life, and never anything from a pattern, but something about these called to her. “I see God’s inspiration in each of these pieces,” she said.

Worthington found the act of needlepoint to be a form of meditation. “I think I worked on it every single day,” she said. As she stitched the intricate details of each panel — there are 144 stitches per square inch — questions would arise. Sometimes she questioned details of the artist’s interpretation of scripture as depicted in his work, but a check of her Bible would bear out the faithful artists’ faithful rendering. Other questions were theological questions, or had to do with the artist’s choice of images or color.

Worthington began to record the questions and they formed the basis of the Bible study she created to accompany the pieces.

“There are some things in the canvases that are interesting, that he (the artist) leaves for people to discover,” she said. There is also room for interpretation. One’s perception might change depending on whether one is looking at the canvas as a whole, or looking up close at the individual elements.

In a video interview posted to the Ehrman Tapestry website, Beattie discussed his motivation for creating the series. “Everyone reads those words or hears those words and has their own ideas about what’s actually happening,” he said. “I love the fact that everyone will hear these and visualize them in a completely different way.” The designs, he said, are “my take on what I see in my mind when I hear these words.”

The first two designs were the most challenging because there was so little to work with. He conceptualized the first day as “a big bang” that “begins to coalesce into a pattern”; light emerging from the darkness. The dome in the reading room at the British Museum provided the inspiration for the firmament in day two. Days three through six, “you manage to get your teeth into things that actually exist,” and it just a matter of choosing which elements to include and how to represent them.

Worthington believes that anyone familiar with the biblical creation story will instantly recognize it in its depiction in the needlepoint panels. “The division between progressive and non-progressive theology disappears here,” she said.

The reception is open to the public and a scripture and study guide will be provided to assist individuals with their own interpretations of the work.

Rev. Judy Worthington, at home in Nassawadox, points to a needlepoint she made of one of the six active days of Creation in the Bible. She uses her art as a companion to a Bible study she leads.

Above, two of the needlepoint tapestries created by Rev. Judy Worthington, will be available for viewing at Franktown UMC in November. The exhibit will incorporate a reception and reflection. The panels are based on the artwork of Alex Beattie.
Halloween Curfew

Trick-or-Treating will be permitted in the Town of Nassawadox on Monday, October 31, 2016, until 8:00 pm. The regular 9:00 pm curfew is in effect on all other nights for youth under 18 unless accompanied by an adult. By order of the Town Council.

Happy Halloween!
Conservation Award Winners

The Eastern Shore Soil and Water District awarded members of the community who have been remarkable stewards of the land and/or outstanding advocates of conservation. An awards ceremony was hosted at the Eastern Shore Community College Workforce Development Center on Friday, July 29, led by Robin Rich-Coates, board chair, and Carmie Savage, district manager. Several awardees were recognized.

The District awarded Lipman Family Farms (Kuzzens, Inc.—Eastern Shore Branch) the Clean Water Farm Award; the 2016 Conservation Farmer Award went to Michael Hart; the Wildlife Conservationist Award was presented to Grayson Chesser; Dr. Jeff Berger was awarded the District’s 2016 Forestry Conservationist Award; the District recognized Jack Humphreys for his outstanding commitment to educating and inspiring youth and community members about the environment; the District awarded Erica Head with the 2016 Conservation Student Award.

Each year, the District’s first place local winners are entered into the State’s Conservation Poster Competition. The 2015 theme was “Local Heroes: Your Hardworking Pollinators.” Representing the District and the Shore, Nia Imani Richardson, from Northampton High School, won first place in the 7th to 9th grade category. Nia received an Honorable Mention in the National Competition.

The District’s Endowment Committee awarded four scholarships in the amount of $500 each. The William H. Beasley Sr. Memorial Scholarship was awarded to Benjamin Holland, a junior at Virginia Tech. High school students, Tucker Spady, Erica Head and Carolyn Olmsted received a $500 W. Foster Fletcher Conservation Scholarship.

According to the District, the award recipients are good stewards of the land, conservation minded and overall good neighbors to the people of the Shore.

Class 4 Laser Treatment for Peripheral Neuropathy

Jason Hale of Bloxom has been an equipment operator and truck driver for most of his career. At 34, he was suffering from neuropathy in his feet due to lumbar disk degeneration. He said it got so bad he was always in pain with burning and numbness, had trouble with balance, and couldn’t play with his son. All doctors could offer him was surgery and pain medication, which was not what he wanted. He heard about Dr. Bull and the Class 4 laser treatment that increases cell permeability and decided to give it a try. After 12 sessions, he feels he is already 75 percent back to normal and can now feel his feet without pain. He has been very pleased with the results. Dr. Bull’s laser treatment has given him more than traditional medicine could offer with no side effects.

From the OutPost

Okay folks, Am I the only one who thinks the KFC Colonel Sanders commercials are creepy? I mean the guy has been dead for years, so I’m not sure I want to envision him cooking my chicken. And I don’t think the marketing people thought the whole idea through. They should of realized that at least some of us old enough to remember the real Colonel Harland Sanders wouldn’t like the new “Creepy Colonels” and people too young to remember him can’t possibly get it. Just to make it more confusing, about every six months KFC cans the actor playing the Colonel and commissions a new one.

The first actor to get the gig was Saturday Night Live alum Darrell Hammond, who was followed by comedian Norm Macdonald and then Jim Gaffigan. Not that it really mattered because by the time the makeup people got through with them, they were pretty much alike and a lot of people probably didn’t even notice. That changed during the summer, however, when the “Creepiest of the Creepy Colonels” took the role. If you watch any television at all, you must have seen George Hamilton as the “extra crispy colonel.”

KFC’s spokesman said Hamilton was chosen to promote extra crispy chicken because it is fried to a golden brown and Hamilton is tanned to a golden brown. I wonder how many folks younger than AARP age even know the media has teased Hamilton for many years because of his very dark tanned skin.

I do know that every time I saw him in a commercial, especially the one where his arms were reaching out from the sand where he was BURIED, all I could think was “Of course he’s extra crispy, he’s DEAD.” Now, if the thought of an aged, leathery-skinned actor playing the part of a dead pseudo Southern Gentleman makes you long for chicken, grab a bucket and knock yourself out.

Anyway, Extra Crispy Creepy Colonel has been retired (Yeah!) and replaced with Comedian Rob Riggle portraying the Colonel as the owner of a football team. (Another thing you can’t be if you are dead.) The only shred of reality in this version is that Riggle really is a Colonel, having earned the rank as a Marine. He was also born in Kentucky. Wow, he’s even more genuine than the real Sanders who was born in Indiana and became a “Colonel” in 1935 when Kentucky’s governor issued a ceremonial decree naming him as such. His total of five months service in the Army just wasn’t long enough to get him there for real.

Sanders may not have really been a colonel, but he amassed quite a resume’ before his success with chicken while in his 60s. Farmer, streetcar conductor, railroad worker, steamboat operator, salesman, and hotel owner are just some of his earlier professions. He even worked for a time as a lawyer after taking a correspondence course. And then there was his stint as a “midwife” while living in rural Corbin, Ky., the same town where he would eventually start his chicken enterprise. In his autobiography he explained his midwifery saying, “The husbands couldn’t afford a doctor when their wives were pregnant.” Apparently they could afford a Colonel.

Eventually Sanders opened a service station where he started cooking for truck drivers. (He also got into a shoot out with a competitor from another gas station, but that’s another story.) Later he opened a bona fide restaurant across the street from his station. That’s where he perfected his secret recipe and developed the KFC franchises. At 73, he sold KFC for $2 million.

There are a lot more interesting things about Sanders but the whole point of this rant is that he DIED in 1980 at the age of 90.

So please KFC, let him rest in peace - or at least only run your commercials during Ghost Adventures or The Walking Dead.

Maybe then I can regain my appetite for a crispy drum stick.

Democrats Not So Progressive
Dear Editor:

History has shown that whenever government imposes dependency, freedoms are lost. From the earliest settlement days until now, the American dream has been to not be dependent on government that hindered becoming master of one’s own destiny. My decision on whom to vote for is based on the transcending issue of which party and candidate offers the best hope for reversing the trend of dependency on the federal government.

Before, and during, the Civil War, it was the Democratic Party that enforced the institution of slavery and dependency of slaves on their masters. For 100 years after the Civil War, it was the Democratic Party that established segregation, poll taxes, and literacy tests to deny blacks the right to vote, which continued the dependency of African Americans. Beginning in the 1960s until today, it has been the Democratic Party’s “progressive” agenda that has produced the greatest dependency on the federal government.

After spending $22 trillion over 50 years on the war on poverty, and establishing more than 80 welfare programs, 47 percent of Americans are at or below the poverty level, 45 percent are on food stamps, lower and middle incomes are stagnant, and the labor participation rate is at its lowest in decades. The high concentrations of unemployment in urban city ghettos, people on welfare, failed school systems, crime, and the absence of hope or trust in government was wrought by Democratic control of these cities. Trade deficits of $850 billion a year, debt approaching $20 trillion, and growing unfunded liabilities, now at $205 trillion, are unsustainable.

I cannot vote for the continuation of the failed policies of the Democratic Progressive Party and the promise of Clinton for more dependency on a corrupt Washington establishment.

My vote will be for Trump.
