Fire Sweeps Bayview Office

By Linda Cicoira

About 50 firefighters from eight companies battled a blaze in a Bayview Circle office Wednesday that resulted from a lighting strike.

Cheriton Chief Eddie Stockton said the fire was reported at about 3:50 p.m. The three-story house is about two miles from town and was converted for business by owner Alice Coles about three years ago.

It took between 35 and 45 minutes to control the blaze, the chief said. Firefighters managed to contain the flames to the top floor. Stockton said it would cost about $100,000 to repair the building.

Initially, companies from Cheriton, Cape Charles, Eastville and Nassawadox were called to the scene. Stockton said more tankers were needed, so volunteers from Exmore, Painter, Wachapreague and Melfa also were alerted.

No one was in the office when the incident occurred and no firefighters were injured. “It was a very safe scene,” Stockton said.

Crash Kills Shore Native

A 24-year-old Shore native was killed Saturday morning in a Virginia Beach crash.

According to police, 24-year-old Mathew Mason was speeding west down Shore Drive when he lost control of his 2001 Honda CBR motorcycle and went through a grassy median.

Mason hit a “Welcome to Virginia Beach” sign and then struck an eastbound Ford Taurus, police said. He was rushed to a local hospital where he died a short time later.

According to police, Mason was wearing a helmet at the time of the deadly wreck. Alcohol is not believed to have been a factor.

The crash remains under investigation by the Department’s Fatal Accident Crash Team, with Officer Ted Walters as the lead investigator.

Born in Nassawadox, Mason was the son of Jack and Cindy Davis Mason of Onley and the grandson of Jean and Billy Davis of Onley and Anne and Jack Mason of Accomac.

What Businesses Does the Shore Need?

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack and Northampton county residents want more recreational opportunities to come to the area, according to those who recently participated in an Eastern Shore Post e-mail survey.

They also want daycare for their pets and their ailing or elderly family members, a 24-hour urgent-care facility and businesses that will bring jobs to the area.

Most said they are still waiting anxiously for Walmart to come to Onley. Others listed dozens of chain retail businesses including several upscale grocery stores. Residents said they favor a zoo, a firing range, a bagel shop and a public golf course.

Matt Hart of Wachapreague wants it all. His list includes a skydive center at the Accomack Airport, a concert hall that could offer plays and more, a theme park, an arcade, a bowling alley, a casino, a taxi service and a mall.

“I would LOVE to see a multiplex movie theater come to the Eastern Shore of Virginia,” wrote Felicia Stratton-Ray of Wachapreague. “One of my favorite pastimes is going to the movies. I appreciate the theaters that we have here. But ‘variety is the spice of life.’ … I am sure I’m not the only movie buff that would kill to catch a matinee with at least six movies to choose from … without … nightmare drives to and from Salisbury (Md.).”

“We need places for our young to go and have a good time,” wrote Dottie Burger of Franktown. She also suggested a bowling alley.

Karen Downing of Parksley wants such a center to also have a video arcade, a basketball court, Ping-Pong tables and concession stands, big screen TVs and a “spacious room” for youth-related activities, retreats and meetings.

Downing said she wants the center to be family-oriented while keeping the young people from saying there’s “nothing to do.”

Geolette Tabor of Nassawadox said, “We need some sort of entertainment for everyone and in either county, it really doesn’t matter. “This would provide jobs for our young people during the summer months they are out of school with nothing to do but go to other areas in Maryland to spend their money,” she said.

Norma Spencer of Cheriton wrote, “I would be interested in any business that would provide jobs … in Northampton County. We are in desperate need of an economic base. Our Board of Supervisors thinks you can make it on tourism, aquaculture and agriculture. All of these only provide seasonal jobs and the pay is not always the greatest – not enough to raise a family, buy a house and live like decent human beings.”

“More than anything we need employers, not necessarily retailers,” wrote Jim West of Cheriton.
“The government of Northampton County has never been business friendly and has never truly sought out to entice businesses to locate here.”

“We need several small to medium-size businesses not one big one,” West continued. “If it were not for the bridge-tunnel and Bayshore Concrete, lower Northampton County workers, except school teachers and aquaculture workers, would have no options,” he wrote.

“The industrial park (that) Northampton county threw our money away on was a joke and so typical of our stupid county leadership,” West said. “They finally sold it for pennies to burden the citizens with even more debt. What does it do the general population … to push tourism as our primary objective? … We need all the workers, not necessarily retail-workers, would have no options.”

“Manufacture kits and build them here,” he said. “Give classes on building kits. … Would spawn more kayak tourism. Employ local labor,” Picardi said.

Judith Grier of Onancock wants more choices when it comes to grocery shopping. “Competition is sorely needed to keep prices competitive and the selection of merchandise appealing and timely,” she said.

Added Laurie Swain of Onancock, “If the store had a salad/soup bar with entrée and dessert options I could pick up on my way home from work, I would be in grocery store heaven.”

“I’ll be happy just to see Walmart finally open,” wrote Patrick Belote of Onancock. “What I buy locally I’ll still buy locally. I just won’t want to go to Pocomoke or Salisbury for what I use Walmart for. Also for the good of the Shore’s employment opportunities, I’d like to see even more hi-tech/aerospace opportunities evolving at Wallops,” he said.

Barbara M. Thackray said, “The greatest need that I see for Chicotegue Island residents … is better public transportation. We have the STAR Transit bus, but it still takes two hours to get to Nassawadox hospital and pick-up sites are few. Most elderly people here rely on family … to go shopping.” They “become housebound, particularly in bad weather.”

David Schwab of Cape Charles wrote, “Since I do not have a boat or personal watercraft, I would love to have the ability to rent one to take advantage of all the water activities evolving at Wallops.”

“Government is bloated, slow, inefficient and corrupt in that it steals resources from individuals as well as small businesses.”

Tony Sacco of Capeville said Northampton has “three assets. We have a deep-water port, a highway (and a) railroad. I’d like gaming to come to Northampton. Off Track Betting (OTB) and a Mississippi-style river boat would bring people from Maryland, Norfolk, Virginia Beach, summer and winter tourists.”

Sacco also would like to see a “manufacturing mall selling designer labels … jobs, jobs, jobs, revenue, revenue, revenue. And the best part, people come spend, and leave.”

In 2004, Forest Drummond of Eastern Shore Auto Body asked his customers to list the businesses they wanted. Among their wants were Popeye’s Chicken, Target, outlet stores, Arby’s, Chili’s, Lowe’s, Walmart and Value City. Those residents also said they wanted another new car dealer, restaurants, window tinting services and boat supplies.

Frank Moore of Onley said the Shore needs an urgent-care facility. It “would reduce inappropriate and expensive use of emergency room facilities by patients with no insurance or no primary care physician,” he wrote.

“A large university would be fun,” said Mary Graham of Parksley. “More wineries, some good restaurants (and) a medical college … You always have to be careful what you wish for. Consequences are not always obvious.”

“How about a Sprint Car/Stock Car type race track (multi-use on) Friday or Saturday night races?” wrote Paul Muhly of Parksley. “Just southeast of Melfa on the seaside at Racetrack Road & Keller Fairground Road is an unused racetrack. Just think of the home-track: Friday or Saturday night races?”

Car type race track (multi-use on) added Laurie Swain of Onancock. “What I buy locally I’ll still buy locally. I just won’t want to go to Pocomoke or Salisbury for what I use Walmart for. Story & Photo by Linda Cicoira

While the Chincoteague ponies were making their annual swim across Assateague Channel Wednesday, another charitable pony event was going on in Belle Haven.

LaWanna Wallace of Quinby was having her 11-inch ponytail chopped off for Locks for Love, an organization that provides wigs to children who have lost their hair as a result of medical conditions.

“It feels great,” said Wallace. “It just takes a few seconds. It grows right back.”

So far, the 58-year-old grandmother has donated her tresses for the cause three times. The most recent ponytail took her three years to grow.

Her quest began when she turned 50. Wallace learned about “some little girl” who donated her hair. She was convinced it wasn’t something just the young could offer. Since then, Wallace has encouraged others to follow her lead.

“Older people can do it, too,” she said.

“I get a run on them,” Tammy Harley of Hair Country salon. “I can’t say how many I’ve done.”

Florida-based Locks for Love provides “hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children in the United States and Canada under age 18 suffering from long-term medical hair loss from any diagnosis.”

According to the Web site, www.locksoflove.org, “most of the children … have lost their hair due to a medical condition called alopecia areata, which has no known cause or cure. The prostheses we provide help to restore their self-esteem and their confidence … the children receive hair prostheses free of charge or on a sliding scale, based on financial need.”

With one snip of the scissors (above), Tammy Harley removes two-years’ worth of pony tail grown by LaWanna Wallace (right), who displays her resulting donation for Locks for Love.

Bruce Brinkley of Cape Charles has done what many of us dream about. He has merged his own childhood memories with observations of his now grown son’s youthful adventures and created a book of fiction that can be enjoyed by all.

And to top it off, “The ‘BE-BOP-A-LULA’ Kid” is set in 1956 in the Eastern Shore of Virginia town where he lives. There’s even a map of familiar streets and landmarks and a bay adventure.

“I wanted to write a … coming of age book from a man’s prospective, since most children’s literature is written by women,” Brinkley explained.

“After realizing I had no clue about how to write a book, I enrolled in a children’s literature course and began to read “more books about how to write a book.” He added, “Oh yea, it ended up being a chick book.”

Rueben, an American crow, narrates the story of a boy and girl … I’ve watched them all summer. I’ve flown above them as they moved about town and sailed overhead as they skimmed along the waters of the Chesapeake Bay. I’ve perched on their heads and shoulders. I’ve shared their meals and their most precious secrets. This story is my gift to you,” Rueben states in the
KEVIN TAYLOR, SERVICE ADVISOR

Andy Linton, Service Manager of Midway GM and Toyota is pleased to announce that Kevin Taylor of Mappsville, VA has joined the Midway Service Department as Service Advisor. It is a rare opportunity for us here at Midway to be able to have such an experienced automotive service specialist states Linton. Kevin has over 25 years as a technician, business owner and service advisor. An open invitation is extended to all of Kevin’s past customers to come to the Midway Service Department for a visit.

His best friend, Jill, is the new girl in town, a come-here tomboy from West Virginia who spits, smokes and cusses. “I’ve always loved the name Jill. I think it’s sweet but it’s slightly tart,” Brinkley said. “My goal is to have tweenagers, teenagers, or anyone else who reads it, to want to come visit the Eastern Shore and Cape Charles,” said Brinkley. He is hopeful that readers will follow Skeeter’s map and “visit the places where the kids and Rueben had their adventures. Who knows the other places on the Shore they could visit? Misty’s home?”

Publishing it myself fit my needs,” said Brinkley. “It was a great experience. I had a story to tell and I have tried to tell it well. So, I went through a company called Booksurge, owned by Amazon. I didn’t want to spend the time or energy to go the old fashioned route.”

Brinkley reminisced about the setting of his story. “My mom and I rode a bus from Little Creek to Cape Charles in 1953, then to New York City, then back again a week later. I had an antiques business in the ’60s and often visited Chalmers in Cape Charles. I bought things from a man in Eastville who ate at Paul’s Restaurant in Cheriton every day.”

These days, Brinkley has a home inspection business and works a few days a week at a lighting store in Virginia Beach. He was helping to build condominiums several years ago when he and his wife visited Cape Charles for a weekend. “She had an epiphany and believed her soul needed to live here,” he said. “Our sons have their own homes and we decided to do something different and relocate. I’m sorry I didn’t grow up in Cape Charles, but I got here as fast as I could.”
Northampton Sheriff's Office Arrest
A 34-year-old Exmore man was charged earlier this month with robbery and felony assault.

According to Maj. David Doughty of the Northampton Sheriff's Department, Keith Phillip Kerby is being held in Eastern Shore Regional Jail without bond.

Doughty said that at about 8 p.m. July 17, Kerby was driving in Exmore and picked up another town man, whom he allegedly assaulted and robbed of nearly $400. The two were on Cemetery Road in Belle Haven, Doughty added. He did not identify the victim.

Deputy Charles Graham investigated.

The next event of significance at the state level will be on Aug. 19. Gov. Kaine has called a Special Session to deal with the problems created in the aftermath of the U.S. Supreme Court’s decision in Melendez-Díaz v. Massachusetts, which requires the actual appearance by state laboratory technicians in criminal prosecutions rather than the admission of a certificate from the technician. This is obviously causing some great problems with criminal prosecutions throughout the state and the governor has called a Special Session so we can revise Virginia’s laws to conform with the Supreme Court decision.

Aug. 19 was chosen because several of us will be in be at the Capital for the annual meeting of the “Money Committee.” I serve on the House Finance Committee which will meet with the House Appropriations Committee and the Senate Finance Committee to hear an address from Gov. Kaine as to the status of revenue receipts. It should come as no surprise that those receipts are low and have fallen short of the estimates we used to construct last year’s budget. This will probably require further budget reductions when the legislature meets in January. Gov. Kaine has already instructed all state agencies to trim their budgets in advance of the legislature’s convening. At present it appears we will be approximately $300 million short of our revenue projection mark. I will provide another report after the meeting.

Virginia did receive some significant good news last week when CNBC selected the Commonwealth as the best state in which to do business. Last year, CNBC ranked Virginia number 2. In addition, U.S. News and World Report has declared Virginia one of the five best states in which to start a new business, specifically because of our low tax burden and our business-friendly environment. We have been designated by Forbes.com as the best state in which to do business (2006-08). Our broadband project continues and it is truly exciting to see the activity along the railroad right of way. This project will provide our rural area with the infrastructure in which to fully participate in the 21st century Virginia economy. In addition, I attended the groundbreaking for the Orbital Sciences Project at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Space Port. The economic impact on the area is fantastic. Projections are that the peripheral economic impact of this project on the Shore will be very significant.

I am also organizing a wastewater summit which I hope will bring all the players in wastewater issues under one roof at one time to provide information to all localities and other interested parties. It is my hope that our localities will use this opportunity to intelligent-ly plan for the infrastructure needed for continued economic develop.

While these are certainly troubled economic times, I think we can all take some comfort in the fact that our little corner of the Commonwealth continues to be confronted with tremendous opportunities for the future.

It continues to be a privilege to represent the 100th District. I am on the Shore in Accomac full-time and can be reached by mail at P.O. Box 760, Accomac, VA 23301, by telephone at 787-1094 (toll-free - (866) 787-1094), and by e-mail at Delllewis@house.state.va.us

Three Make Eagle Scout

Three members of Boy Scouts of America Troop 306, sponsored by Cheriton United Methodist Church, were advanced to the rank of Eagle Scout during an honor court ceremony Saturday, July 18.

With approximately 50 people in attendance, Jeremy Harrissmith, Henry “Trae” Jones III, and Morgan Kempster were honored for their community service, leadership and diligence in acquiring the 21 merit badges needed to qualify as an Eagle Scout.

Introduced by master of ceremony Walter Hopkins, Eastern Shore native and keynote speaker Capt. Will King, USN-RET, noted the three significant projects completed by the scouts respectively: a garden labyrinth and campfire circle at Oyster’s World Healing Institute, a covered picnic area at Exmore’s Rotary rest stop, and renovation of a Sunday school room at the sponsor church.

Also contributing to the event, U.S. Coast Guard personnel from the station in Cape Charles provided ceremonial flag and honor guard duties.

ит was his trusted accuracy alone that made me want to become a reporter, but also the way he gave all sides a chance.

Cronkite guided America from black and white to color televisions and from typewriters to computers.

I obviously wasn’t alive for much of his early career, as he was 62 when I was born, but that only made me appreciate “The Man” more. I’ve been able to watch the Vietnam War and mankind’s first steps on the moon, and share collective cries and rage and laughter with the rest of the world. Cronkite’s gift was that he could bring out the human element in just about any story, be it feature or straight news.

I’ve always felt that music is a universal connector and when Cronkite went to a Grateful Dead concert, he earned massive respect from a younger audience, who may not have always trusted “anyone over 30.” Not every grandfather would give a 15-minute rift by Bob Weir a fair chance. Not only did Cronkite grow to love the music, but the closeted “Deadhead” developed a close friendship with several members of the band, taking them out on his sailboat.

And so I end my ovation to the 92 years of prime-time life that inspired a world of journalists, including this girl. Walter Cronkite was not just a great American newsmen, but a great American … and that’s the way it was.

Obama Gov’t. Not Transparent

Dear Editor:

The nearly $800 billion Economic Stimulus Package was forced through Congress before anyone had an opportunity to read the bill, including the American people and virtually all of our representatives in Congress. Only 6 percent of this money has been spent, most of it going to supporters of President Obama to rescue states and state programs that are bankrupt because of overspending and fraud. Is this the kind of ethical and transparent government Obama promised us?

The Cap and Trade Bill — which should be called the Energy Tax Bill because it will tax all forms of energy — was recently passed by eight votes before it was entirely written. Most Americans, even today, have no idea that such legislation threatens them.

Today we are faced with another presidential rush to pass an extensive Government Health Care Plan that even President Obama has not read. The bill is already over 1,000 pages, promising to cost at least another trillion dollars. President Obama wants this bill passed and signed before Congress and the American people have full access to the specifics of it and what implications it would have on their lives and their health care. Transparency, representative government? I don’t think so.

Barack Obama, with the help of the news media (who protect and promote his extreme leftist agenda), is rapidly changing our Constitutional Republic into a Venezuelan style Banana Republic.
