Damage to the Thimble Shoals tunnel (left) shut down the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel for part of the day Monday. Intermittent closures and alternating lane closures delayed travelers by as many as six to eight hours. Those stuck in traffic made the best of their time on the bridge, like this unidentified man who happened to have his fishing gear on hand.

Truck Scrapes Tunnel Top And Halts Travels for Hours

By Stefanie Jackson

A tractor-trailer traveling northbound on the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel was involved in a single-vehicle accident inside the Thimble Shoals tunnel on Monday at approximately 11 a.m.

No one was injured, but traffic delays persisted for about 16.5 hours until approximately 3:30 a.m. Tuesday. Some travelers reported on Facebook being delayed as much as 6-8 hours.

The tractor-trailer belonged to Chesapeake Tunnel Joint Venture, the company constructing the new parallel tunnel at Thimble Shoals channel.

Bridge-tunnel officials gave details about the accident in a follow-up press release. The truck was transporting a piece of heavy construction equipment from Island One to Island Two, one of four manmade islands that are part of the bridge-tunnel system, when the tractor-trailer struck the tunnel ceiling.

Northampton Hopes Level Literacy Intervention Will Boost Middle School Reading Skills

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton Middle School Principal Ron Yorko met with the Northampton school board on Sept. 27 to explain his plan for schoolwide implementation of the Level Literacy Intervention in what he called “an all hands on deck approach” to improve student reading skills.

The larger goal is for Northampton Middle School to surpass its current state accreditation rating of “accredited with conditions” and achieve the top rating of “accredited.” The school division’s other three schools, Northampton High School, Kiptopeke Elementary School, and Occohannock Elementary School (where Yorko was the principal last year) are all currently accredited.

English teachers, special education teachers, and others will collaborate to make the initiative successful and engage students in an extra 45 minutes of reading every day that will happen during fifth period English skills classes.

Yanko recommends the Level Literacy Intervention because unlike other supplemental materials for improving reading skills, LLI is not a computer program, but puts “real books in kids’ hands,” he said.

He wanted to clear up the misconception that the Level Literacy Intervention is only for elementary school students. In the LLI program, reading levels correspond to the letters of the alphabet, with A as the lowest level and Z as the highest level for elementary school through middle school. High school and adult-level reading levels are categorized as Z+.

There are several other Virginia school divisions that use the Level Literacy Intervention at the middle school level, including Hanover County, which implemented an LLI initiative in grades K to 8.

According to Yorko’s research, the two “most methodically rigorous, independent studies of LLI found that students in LLI intervention groups made statistically significant improvements” on a variety of assessments “compared to students in control groups who receive no literacy intervention.”

The Level Literacy Intervention is recommended by the Literacy Collaborative committee, with members from Hampton University in Cambridge, Mass., and The Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio. The Literacy Collaborative is based on the work of educators, researchers, and authors Irene Fountas and Gay Su Pinnell.

The Literacy Collaborative is defined as a “comprehensive literacy reform model” for providing, in addition to a “good first teaching, multiple layers of intervention” that “are theoretically aligned and research-based.” LLI is recommended as an appropriate literacy intervention for use in small groups.

One obstacle Northampton Middle School must overcome is that staffing is limited, so LLI activities must be done with groups of eight students instead of four, the ideal small group size for the intervention to be most effective, Yorko said.

To help mitigate that issue, Yorko said students will be grouped by reading level. For example, students on reading level A as the lowest level and Z as the highest level for elementary school through middle school. High school and adult-level reading levels are categorized as Z+.

40+ Years of fulfilling dreams for folks of the Eastern Shore
Travelers made the best of the situation. “The weather is nice, the windows are down (and the car turned off) and I’m listening to a good book on CD,” posted Channing Warick Governor, of Onancock, to Facebook. She spent 2½ hours trying to cross northbound. She was alerted early about the shutdown and spent time at the nearby outlet mall before venturing onto the bridge-tunnel. She fared better than most.

Deborah Martson spent six hours trying to cross with a 3 year old in tow. “It was insanity,” she posted on Facebook. “I feel the bridge should have been closed. No food, water or bathroom is crazy!” she continued. “Why were they taking our toll money? Makes me a little crazy just thinking about it.”

Usually, the proportion of northbound and southbound vehicles crossing the bridge-tunnel is 50-50, but on Oct. 1, there were 20 percent more southbound vehicles on the CBBT. At 9:30 p.m., southbound vehicles were prioritized to alleviate traffic delays. At 10 p.m., about 6.5 hours after the single lane had been opened to traffic, the bridge-tunnel closed again so all remaining vehicles could exit.

A third attempt to remove the tractor-trailer and equipment from the tunnel was made around midnight, which eventually succeeded, allowing the bridge-tunnel to reopen at 3:30 a.m. The CBBT issued an apology on Tuesday for the “extreme inconveniences” its customers experienced. Due to “legislative enablement and bond contracts,” the CBBT is unable to refund tolls, but Chesapeake Tunnel Joint Venture, who is responsible for the accident, is setting up a toll relief fund for travelers who were inconvenienced.

That was cold consolation to Jennifer Oneil Slovinski. “I want my time back,” she said, adding the toll “is nothing.”

The CBBT will release further information on the toll relief fund as it becomes available.
Onley Town Council Talks About New Town Office and Interim Council Member

By Linda Cicoira

Hot topics before the Onley Town Council Monday night were the proposed new town office that could cost more than $1 million to construct and the appointment of an interim council member to replace the seat left empty when Mayor Dawn Dize moved up to the mayor’s post recently.

Former Councilman J. Lance Eller won the seat in a 4-1 vote of council with Councilman Matt Hart being opposed.

Former Councilman Fred Gardner was favored by Hart for the job. Both Eller and Gardner wrote letters of interest to the council for the interim position that would last until the end of the year. Neither man is seeking a seat on council in the November general election.

Gardner was in attendance but was not permitted to speak about the job. Eller was stuck in the traffic backup from the Chesapeake Bay-Bridge Tunnel accident that occurred Monday night (see page 1 for details). Officials said choosing between the two was difficult, so the majority decided to pick Eller because his letter was received first.

Hart favored Gardner because he attends more meetings, making it appear to Hart that Gardner is more interested in serving.

Dize was appointed to the top post after Mayor Jack Pierson died in September. Hart is running for mayor against former Councilman Billy Ferguson.

Regarding the proposed town hall, Town Manager Jamye Salazar said Onley has spent about $100,000 for the design of an “approximately 3,000 square-feet free-standing town hall building and associated site. The scope of services includes: architectural design, structural design, mechanical design, electrical and plumbing design, civil design, surveying services and geotechnical testing services.”

George Miles & Buhr LLC, an architectural and engineering firm in Salisbury, Md., prepared the plans. The only bid received for construction was from RH Contracting Inc., of Temperanceville, for $1.07 million.

Several council members said they could not vote for such an expensive structure.

“I don’t go buy a car without looking at other cars,” Hart said. “We have nothing to compare it to … building materials have gone up. It would be nice if we can get more bids … Anything over $1 million I think we can all agree, is too much.”

Councilman Ted Bliss was also not in favor of spending so much. He said on top of the bid, the architect would get 20 to 30 percent, which he also opposed. Bliss agreed with Councilman Woody Zember that another advertisement for bids was needed. Bliss said they initially anticipated spending $650,000.

The consensus was that the next council would make the decision. The board did not reject the bid after the town attorney advised to wait until another meeting when they could review all information.

“We don’t need seating for 100,” said Gardner, adding, 16 was the highest attendance he had seen at a session.
Former Supervisor Granville Hogg Accused of Brandishing Firearm in Trespassing Dispute

By Linda Cicoira
Former Northampton Supervisor Granville Hogg was accused late last month of brandishing a firearm at two men he says were trespassing on his property. The men claim they identified themselves as Fed-Ex workers and were trying to make a delivery but were still “held hostage” by Hogg.

Complaints were taken out against Hogg, 71, of Butler’s Court near Cape Charles. They were filed by Kyle Edward Miller, of Quarterpath Triangle in Chesapeake, Va., and Anthony C. Sivels, of Aggonne Avenue, in Norfolk, Va.

According to papers filed in Northampton General District Court, the misdemeanor offenses occurred Sept. 23, and involved brandishing “a firearm in such a manner as to reasonably induce fear in the mind of another” or holding a firearm or an air or gas operated weapon in a public place in such a manner as to reasonably induce fear in the mind of another of being shot or injured.”

“I called 911 dispatch because me and my helper were being blocked in a driveway by a man holding a gun,” Miller wrote. “The road was Secretary Drive and we were delivering to 21444 Oyster Cape Road, off Secretary. He pulled out in front of us, blocking me from exiting or even getting away ... while holding us up from performing service to the Eastern Shore. We are employees of Fed-Ex ground.”

Already shaken up by being held hostage, we produced paperwork and badges showing (our) reason to be there,” Miller continued. “He said he didn’t care and wouldn’t let us leave. I have a picture of him standing in front of my van with gun in hand.”

Sivels wrote, “Me and my driver were pulling out of a driveway (to) deliver a box to someone and this man had pull(ed) in front of our truck and block(ed) us in. Then got out with a gun and ask why we (were) on his property. So we told him and show(ed) him ID information. But he still don’t let us leave and refuse to put gun away.”

Commonwealth’s Attorney Beverly Leatherbury, who also serves as the county’s attorney, asked to be removed from the case saying in a court document that it would be improper for her to handle the case. Judge W. Revell Lewis III appointed Commonwealth’s Attorney Spencer Morgan of Accomack to the case.

In an email, Hogg indicated the men were not in a Fed-Ex vehicle. Instead, he said, they were in a Penske rental truck. Hogg said they were trespassing and obtained warrants for them in that regard. The warrants were not yet returned to the court because they are in the process of being served and were not available for inspection by a reporter.

“Based on the conduct I witnessed, out of fear and respect, I have never been close enough to the individuals to read any identification they presented and (that was) the reason the sheriff’s department was notified,” wrote Hogg.

He said a “No Trespassing” sign is on Secretary Road about 500 feet south of the intersection of Secretary and Townfield roads. “Don’t proceed beyond the sign without an invitation … as a citizen, how many times have you noted a delivery vehicle like UPS, FedEx, or DHL delivering packages on Sunday? How many persons does it take to drive a delivery van? Do logistics companies like UPS, FedEx, DHL have requirements for their vehicles to be identifiable? … In today’s world most logistics companies have GPS units. Did they have that capability? … To my knowledge, they did not have a parcel addressed to me or the tenant nor any former tenant … Is there anything wrong with contacting the sheriff’s department and requesting assistance in determining the identity of someone acting out of character that is trespassing on your property? When you see individuals driving recklessly, acting totally out of character, not being able to provide good reason for being on your property, I believe I have good reason to think my life is being threatened.”

A hearing will be held at 10 a.m., Nov. 14. Jack Wescoat of Eastville has been retained to represent Hogg.

Sheriff David Doughty said the incident occurred on a road belonging to Hogg, the warrants didn’t require an arrest or bond, only a promise to appear. A deputy went to the scene and will be subpoenaed as a witness. Due to Hogg’s previous position as a supervisor, “any other potential criminal issues will be investigated by the state police,” Doughty said.
Wife Claims Husband Stabbed Himself

A Chincoteague man, who admitted that he was unfaithful to his wife, told authorities that on Sept. 8, his wife awakened him early in the morning by stabbing him in the chest with an eight-inch kitchen knife, according to court documents.

Esveire Nava-Gandara, 37, of Willow Street on the island, was charged with maliciously wounding her husband of 14 years, Edgar Flores. She says he stabbed himself.

Nava-Gandara was arrested on Sept. 11. She was released about a week later on a $5,000 secured bond. The woman was ordered to stay away from Flores, her home, and the neighborhood. The suspect was also required to surrender her passport.

Chincoteague police officers C.A. McPherson and David Gladding responded to the home and found Flores was stabbed several times in the chest and arm.

“Edgar was stabbed three times and (he had) a laceration to his finger,” according to the record. “The stabbing to Edgar’s chest was deep enough to puncture his right lung. Each knife puncture was deep enough so that Edgar needed staples to close the wounds. The laceration to Edgar’s left hand finger required approximately 10 stitches.”

Nava-Gandara told McPherson she had gone to bed between 9:30 to 10 p.m. that night. At about 1 a.m., she got up and went to the bathroom. When she returned to the bedroom, she saw that her husband had stabbed himself.

A day earlier, the daughter observed a text message her mother made to her friend that told about the husband’s affair, according to the record.

Accomack Grand Jury Indicts 21 People

An Onancock man was indicted Monday by an Accomack grand jury on counts of possessing an array of illegal drugs, guns, and pipe bombs.

Rashem Huhi Aman-Re, previously known as Terrell Stewart, 39, of Boundary Avenue, was indicted on counts of possessing heroin, fentanyl, cocaine, a firearm while in possession of cocaine, a stolen firearm, and two “fire bombs or explosive materials or devices.” The offenses occurred in August.

He is being held without bond. Trooper B. Tripp gave information about the charges to the grand jury. According to court records, 21 grams of cocaine were among the items found at the residence.

Trooper Clifton Hughes smelled marijuana coming from inside the house where he had tracked a man suspected of fleeing from a traffic crash. Officers later seized the bombs, ammo, a total of $2,858 in cash, marijuana, cocaine, heroin, scales with white residue, fentanyl, a bulletproof vest, six guns, several off-white powders, packaging materials, two cell phones, two laptops, grinders, and drug paraphernalia. Aman-Re was not the man involved in the accident.

A warrant stated Aman-Re is a felon with convictions of robbery and abduction since 1999. Documents noted he has lived on Eastern Shore his entire life. Two of the six firearms and both pipe bombs were found in the man’s bedroom. A bomb was found “in the left pocket of a jacket hanging in his closet,” according to the court.

“In the living room, a scale with white power residue was in plain view on the coffee table,” a court document stated. “I entered the bedroom and further discovered a loaded pistol underneath the dresser in plain view. I then spotted a small baggie of marijuana on a nightstand. In plain view, there was a large sum of cash and a pipe bomb in a glass bowl in plain view. Further investigation in an opened closet discovered a large sum of cash and a baggie with suspected crack cocaine. Underneath the bed was a loaded M&P handgun that came back stolen along with more drug paraphernalia.”

In another case, Laquida Burton, of Exmore, was indicted on two counts of embezzling from the post office in Pungoteague between November 2017 and September of this year. Special Agent K. Durkin, of the U.S. Postal Service Office of the Inspector General, investigated.

Edward Cherise Brabham, 49, of South Main Street in Suffolk, Va., was indicted on counts of assault and battery of Deputy Aaron Turner, attempting to disarm Turner, and grand larceny of property belonging to Shelly Ferguson, a customer at the Regal Inn, in Onley. The incidents occurred March 18. Court documents state Brabham has 14 pages of prior convictions. He is being held in Accomack Jail.

Jean Denis Adolphe, 46, of First Land in Onley, was indicted on a count of maliciously wounding Jean Louis Augustin, of Oak Hall, on April 17. Adolphe is alleged to have struck the victim in the head with a prybar. The defendant told authorities he “hit the victim with a rock.” Records state he has a prior criminal history that is 12 pages long. Chief John Spivey, of Onley Police Department, investigated.

Investigator Aaron Turner, of ACSO, handled the case. A checklist for bail determination stated Giddens confessed to the crime.

Ronald Lee Hess Jr., 19, of County Road in Parksley, was indicted on counts of abducting and strangling Mehreen Awan on July 26. Awan told authorities Hess “would not let her leave his residence although she asked to leave several times.” She “had multiple marks across her face, head, chest, neck, and back that appear to be consistent with an assault,” according to court records.

Mark Warren Holcomb, 56, of Ridge Road on Chincoteague, was indicted on a count of possessing cocaine on June 22. Deputy K.A. Reese of ACSO investigated. Holcomb is being held in Accomack Jail. He is also awaiting trial for assaulting a police officer this past April.

A construction site near Accomac where 10 poultry houses are being built has “uncontrolled stormwater discharge” in violation of the Chesapeake Bay/Atlantic Preservation Act, according to Chris Guvernator, environmental programs director for Accomack County.

“We received complaints on the property,” Guvernator said. There was a “breach of stormwater leaving the site where it was not expected to leave the site,” he said. “I’m not sure why. Either a deficiency in construction or design. In heavy rainfall, it is supposed to leave the site, but not in this location.”

Tri M. Nguyen, of Taylor Wood Lane in Houston, Tex., and Albuquerque Drive in Virginia Beach, Va., is the owner of the Anna Farm’s construction site on Mary Nottingham Smith Road.

“We have received two complaints related to excessive sediment leaving your active construction site,” Guvernator wrote to Nguyen. “After making a site visit and evaluating the situation, we have discovered that discharges of sediment-laden stormwater are breaching the stormwater management system and leaving the site in a location other than a defined outfall. This situation is serious and needs immediate and direct attention.”

A Sept. 4 letter was sent directing Nguyen to take action. Nguyen addressed the issue of seeding and stabilization of the channel, according to Guvernator’s notice, but still needs to seed and stabilize side slopes around the farmer’s pond; remove sedimentation from the forebay and regrade and stabilize; repair rills around the culverts at the southern end of the site and provide outlet protection; stabilize infiltration basin side slopes; and address sediment-laden stormwater leaving the infiltration basin and discharging off-site.

“We also contacted your contractor on Sept. 10, 2018, and discussed this situation,” Guvernator wrote. “They are indicating that additional coordination is needed with you and the engineer. As of this date, we do not have any evidence of design modifications being submitted to this office … the breach of the stormwater management system must be repaired as soon as possible to eliminate the future potential of sediment-laden runoff leaving the site. The current erosion and sediment control practices may not be adequately minimizing erosion, so additional measures are required.”

If the corrections are not made in 15 days, a notice of violation will be placed on the job site and civil penalties will be imposed in accordance with Accomack County code, the letter advised.

“We would like to meet with you, your engineer, and your contractor on site as soon as possible to discuss this situation further and your proposed plan of action, which may need to include cleanup of sediment … Contact us as soon as possible to schedule the meeting.”

Guvernator said he is expecting a positive outcome. “We don’t see any issue here. However, we don’t normally get to a formal notice to comply. … We have not placed a stop work order on the site. They may have stopped work until they can figure out what to do.”

As of Wednesday, Guvernator did not have a meeting date.

Chincoteague Woman Says Mosquito Spraying Hurt Late Husband

By Linda Cicoira

The case of an 82-year-old widow, who is asking Accomack Circuit Court to award her $750,000 in damages for harm caused to her now late husband when the Town of Chincoteague repeatedly sprayed “unhealthful chemical insecticide” on her property for mosquito control, was continued last week because former Town Manager Robert Ritter could not be found to testify.

While prospective jurors waited to be chosen to decide the case, lawyers from both sides met in chambers with Judge W. Revell Lewis III and the trial was continued until Feb. 12 and 13.

Lawyer Kevin Martingale, of Virginia Beach, who represents the widow, Geraldine Florence Abell, contends the “unwanted and unauthorized chemicals” caused her husband, Joseph W. Abell, to suffer severe personal discomfort, respiratory distress, and other damages. She blames the town, Ritter, Public Works Director Harvey William Spurlock Jr., and Mosquito Control Supervisor Robert Joseph Watson. The lawsuit says those men were negligent in their duties to keep her property from being sprayed. Joseph Abell died in January 2016.

Martingale said Richard Matthews and Jeffrey Hunn of Pender & Coward, also of Virginia Beach, represent the defendants and wanted to use portions of Ritter’s deposition as evidence because they had lost contact with him.

“We spent a half hour debating it,” Martingale said. “The judge ultimately cut them a break,” and continued the case. “The defense is supposed to track down Ritter and get back with the court.”

Ritter was fired from his 10-year job with Chincoteague in November 2016 following a closed session of the town council. After the vote, he was escorted from the premises. Ritter was given 90 days of severance pay, which equaled about $25,000 of his annual salary of $101,000. In May 2017, he got a job managing the northern Virginia town of Dumfries. Mayor Derrick Wood was reported to say Ritter was fired in August from Dumfries because “he was not a good fit for the town.”

When Ritter left the Chincoteague post, now former Councilman Jim Fresc complained Ritter “was not a person people. We tried to get across to him that you have to interact with the citizens — find out what they want and what they don’t want, so you know what to do. And he wouldn’t do it. We tried to work with him. It was very difficult. He didn’t interact well with people. People would bring a problem to him and it was like it never happened.”

In the lawsuit, Geraldine Abell claims her husband was one of the people who repeatedly brought a complaint that was ignored. The lawsuit says Joseph Abell wrote letters to Ritter, which were filed with the court, “Yet no effective measures were ever put into place to accommodate Mr. Abell’s needs.”

“My regular letter dated April 2, 2015, to you, regarding not to spray for mosquitoes in front of my home has gone unheeded again this year, as in years past,” he wrote to Ritter. He listed four times in July 2015. “This has caused serious breathing problems for me, such as shortness of breath, needing additional nebulizing treatments, severe exacerbations of my COPD (Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease). I called your office yesterday, July 30, 2015, at approximately 8:45 a.m. regarding the spraying the previous day. I was told you were on a conference call. I left a message for you to call me back and the reason for the return call. I did not receive a call from you as yet,” Abell wrote.

Geraldine Abell’s complaint states Ritter had supervisory authority over the other defendants. Spurlock, in his authority as public works director, “was responsible for supervision over the insecticide spraying program” and reported to Ritter. Watson supervised the “spraying program and activities” and reported to Spurlock. Watson also performed spraying and had control over others who sprayed.

“Although Mr. Abell and his wife were told repeatedly that they were included on a list … who would not receive mosquito spraying from the town, agents of the town repeatedly sprayed the Abells’ property … on occasions when the town conducted spraying from an aircraft instead of the more commonly used spray truck, town officials and agents would routinely provide advance notice and warnings to individuals involved in raising bees, seafood, and similar activities, but never provided Mr. Abell with any notifications … Abell was deprived of any opportunity to protect himself or leave the area while certain beekeeper and seafood industry professionals were able to take precautions.”

“They value money over people,” said Martingale. “That to me is absolutely wrong. They have lots of options to keep this mistake” from happening. His example was to mark mailboxes so the drivers will see when they need to stop spraying as is done in Virginia Beach.

“If there’s nothing harmful about it why is it regulated by the state of Virginia?” Martingale asked. “It’s obviously very dangerous … Some people have a sensitivity to the spray … he was already a very fragile breather. Letters (were sent) from three doctors. They can’t claim that they didn’t know.”

A letter dated July 2, 2013, was sent to the town regarding Abells’ Chick-en City Road home from his doctor, Edward Rusche, of Towson, Md. “His lung functions are critically low and inhaled chemical pollution could cause a further constriction, temporary or even permanent, of the already critically narrowed airways in his lungs. Occupational dusts and chemical pollutants in general are a frequent cause of hospital admissions for severe shortness of breath in patients with asthma, but also for patients who do not have classical asthma but other obstructive airway disease with a bronchospastic component. I would recommend that the effects of mosquito spraying be seriously considered and accommodations be made to minimize the ill effects of Mr. Joseph Abell.”

Martingale said there were more instances of negligence but a two-year statute of limitations keeps him from going back further. The lawsuit, filed in 2016, focuses on incidents in 2014 and 2015.

The town denied the allegations and asked that the complaint be dismissed because it has sovereign immunity. Town Manager Jim West would only say the case was continued.

The Northampton planning commission, having completed revisions of the county’s comprehensive plan, voted Tuesday to submit the plan to supervisors for consideration at their next meeting on Oct. 9, but not before three out of seven commissioners either quit or planned to quit, leaving Senior Planner Kelly Lewis Parks worried about the commission’s ability to establish a quorum at future meetings.

As of Oct. 2, District 1 Commissioner Anna Lee had stepped down, and District 2 Commissioner Kay Downing and Chairman Mark Freeze had announced their upcoming departures. The Tuesday meeting was Downing’s last, but Freeze said he would attend the Oct. 17 work session.

According to Northampton County’s website, Downing’s and Freeze’s terms expired on June 30.

Neither Freeze nor Downing gave a reason for leaving except to say jokingly, “ask my wife,” or “ask my husband,” suggesting their duties on the planning commission had kept them away from their families too often.

Parks didn’t have to worry about a quorum for long. A new planning commissioner, Glen Anders, unexpectedly showed up to replace Lee, and Vice Chairman Michael Ward informed Parks that a quorum is established based on the actual number of commissioners, not the number of available seats.

Freeze and Downing’s last regular meeting centered on discussion of a minor special use permit application submitted by Chad Ballard, owner of Ballard Brothers Fish Company near Cheriton.

Ballard wants to dig a clam seed pond on his property. It would be 2 feet deep and cover about one-half acre. Less than one acre of land would be disturbed.

The pond would be used to research how clam seedlings grow in various conditions. It was designed to minimize water impacts from hurricanes, nor’easters, stormwater runoff, and other sources.

Ballard said he has operations in South Carolina and Florida similar to the one proposed, but he would like to relocate them to Northampton.

He could dig the pond without a permit if his property belonged to the agricultural zone, but it is designated as an existing business.

Commissioner Janet Sturgis was skeptical. “I want you to have the pond,” she said, “but what’s the difference between your pond and an agricultural irrigation pond?”

“Groundwater,” John Salm, the project engineer answered. An irrigation pond holds groundwater, but the aquaculture pond, which would be lined, would need to be filled with saltwater for the clam seeds.

Sturgis was hesitant to recommend granting permission for an aquaculture pond because such a pond is not defined in Northampton’s zoning ordinance.

“I just don’t want to visit the land of unintended consequences,” Sturgis said, like setting a precedent allowing someone to have a fish farm and the accompanying odor.

Commissioner Dixon Leatherbury said agriculture and aquaculture are two “separate and distinct” businesses and the aquaculture pond should not be considered an irrigation pond.

Parks said the proposed use of the pond is consistent with the zoning ordinance.

Ward agreed with Sturgis that a definition of “aquaculture pond” is lacking in the ordinance. “I think there are deficiencies in the zoning ordinance and this is one of them.”

Freeze said of the zoning ordinance, “We did try to fix it a couple years ago — it didn’t work.”

Commissioners were also concerned about how close the aquaculture pond would be to Cherrystone Campground, which Ballard also operates.

Salm said the aquaculture pond would be about 500 or 600 feet away from the campground. Ballard added that the pond actually would be closer to his own backyard than the campsite.

Leatherbury made a motion to forward the application to the board of supervisors but add a requirement for a vegetative buffer around the pond to serve as a visual cue for campers to stay away; the motion was seconded and passed.

Way Forward Unclear After Latest Captain’s Cove Legal Challenge Dismissed

By Linda Cicoira

If you testify against yourself at someone else’s trial, the evidence cannot stand alone to convict you at your own proceeding.

That section of the state code was reviewed Monday in Accomack General District Court just before Judge Gordon Vincent dismissed a charge of posting the IRS tax form 1099-MISC to the internet against Justin Wilder.

In July, Wilder, who was then Captain’s Cove’s communication coordinator, testified that he posted the information that included the Social Security numbers of 32 people who had served on the homeowners’ board or had done other work for the community. Wilder was unable to recall if he was directed to do so by Timothy R. Hearn, president of the board of directors of Captain’s Cove Golf & Yacht Club. Wilder has since been promoted and holds the position of Cove manager.

Wilder was testifying at Hearn’s trial. Seven charges against Hearn were also dismissed by Vincent. Wilder told the court that he was directed to post the information but could not remember who told him to do it. He called Hearn after he realized the Social Security numbers were included and Hearn told him to redact the information.

The posting was made to the Captain’s Cove Homeowners’ Association website, which is visible by about 1,300 members who could then have copied and pasted the information.

“My 1099 was one of those,” said John Ward, a former board member, who filed the warrant against Wilder. Ward was also among several former board members who filed the complaint against Hearn. The post was made in November 2017.

With the dismissals, Ward is left wondering what to do next that won’t cost him a fortune in legal fees.

Assistant Commonwealth’s Attorney Elizabeth Wolff said even with redacted information, posting the forms is a violation of state and federal code.

The original seven charges contended secrecy of information, restricted use of Social Security numbers, and the Virginia Consumer Protection Act of 1977 were violated. In addition, the charges say posting the information is contrary to the Internal Revenue Code, the Social Security Act of 1942, and the Social Security Number Privacy and Identity Theft Protection Act of 2007.

Hearn previously said the underlying issue is money. “From 2008 to 2012 while these individuals and others were on the board of directors, the association lost on average $250,000 per year … through fiscal mismanagement,” said Hearn. “Every year an audit was done and those numbers were shown” but the directors didn’t try to make it up. “They were not investing in capital improvements,” he added. “They had not been transparent.”

Ward claims mostly former directors were targeted because they were paid for serving. “He (Hearn) decided to tell everyone that we stole,” Ward said. “He decided to tell everyone we took money we weren’t supposed to take. He stopped the stipends.” Ward said the payments were legal and were included in the group rules. But giving out the Social Security numbers or employer identification numbers of those recipients is not legal. “Everybody who got a check in a two-year period” got a 1099 tax form that included their numbers, he said.

“John Ward challenged the current board of directors to prove they took the money,” Hearn said in July. “A piece of the evidence was the 1099s.” Ward went to the state HOA ombudsman and requested the forms be shown without redaction and then claimed they showed too much information, said Hearn. The former directors “were taking money from the association under the guise of being reimbursed for travel expenses” of between $200 to $400. “Very creative … when most were a quarter-mile away. Over five years, the money they took, and as members of the Environment Control Committee, was close to $200,000 … None of the (new) board members have taken any money or requested any of this fictitious travel money.”

“The president (Hearn) ignored a warning not to do this, but chose to proceed,” the warrants stated. “In doing so, I believe he maliciously endangered my present and future financial well-being and exposed me to years of potential identity theft,” the complainants continued. “I believe this action violates a number of state and federal laws.”

Ward said another problem is Hearn and four other directors are among the joint owners of 1,345 lots. Ward says they were chosen to be on the board because they have the majority of votes. Ward believes the five directors are part of the limited liability company that owns the clubhouse and are selling it to the community for $3 million.

The Northampton Yellow Jackets hosted the Middlesex Chargers last Friday night in Eastville during their annual Homecoming festivities.

Northampton kicked things off late in the first quarter when senior Corey Smith Jr. rushed for a six-yard touchdown to put up the first six of the night for the Yellow Jackets. Trip Wescoat kicked for a good PAT, earning Northampton a 7-0 count entering the second quarter.

The Chargers hit back with a touchdown with 9:52 left in the second, and with the extra point good, things were all tied up on Hamilton Field. Just 17 seconds later, the Yellow Jackets answered on a 94-yard kickoff return by Kasai Clark for a touchdown to move Northampton up 13-0, with another kick good from Wescoat.

Dustin Splawn put up another six for the Yellow Jackets off a 40-yard pass from Wescoat with just 2:54 left in the second. Another PAT good from Wescoat would lengthen the lead for the Yellow Jackets even farther. Just before the halftime buzzer, Smith earned his second touchdown of the night, rushing 35-yards to propel Northampton to a 28-7 count over Middlesex, with another kick good from Wescoat to end the first half.

After a commanding performance by the Delaware State University marching band that brought the crowd of Yellow Jacket supporters and students to their feet, the boys came back to try and cement a home victory.

Things got off to a slow start in the third, but the cheers ensued with a 31-yard blocked punt by Josh Splawn for a touchdown to move Northampton up another six.

The Ponies started their second possession on the Vikings’ 46-yard line and Chincoteague sophomore quarterback Ayden Leonard immediately completed a 34-yard pass to Wes Britton to move the ball to the Viking 12-yard line. Leonard punched the ball into the end zone a few plays later for the first score of the game. A unique extra point formation that lined Chincoteague players up from sideline-to-sideline did not yield points, as Viking senior lineman Matthew Albertson sacked Leonard for a loss in the backfield.

The next possession proved pivotal in the game. The Vikings found themselves in a fourth down and eight situation on their own 42-yard line. Rather than punt, Vikings head coach Eddie Spencer elected to give the ball to sophomore Gunnar Gustafson, who battled down the left sideline for a gain of 20 yards and a first down to keep the drive alive. A few plays later, facing a third and 18 situation, Broadwater sophomore quarterback Brant Bloxom threw deep for receiver Wade Smith. The ball deflected off a Pony defender’s helmet, but Smith maintained his focus, dove and caught the deflection for a 21-yard gain and a first down on the Chincoteague 20-yard line.

On the next play, Viking offensive linemen Brian Drummond, Charles Hickman, Jonathan Graham, Reade Nichols, Caleb Floyd, and Garrett Miles gave Brant Bloxom all the protection he needed to connect with Gustafson over the top of double-team Pony pass defense for a 20-yard touchdown reception in the back of the end zone. Senior quarterback Finn Kelly passed the ball back and scoring. The Vikings found themselves in trouble with about four minutes remaining and facing a fourth down and two yards to go on their own 45-yard line.

Conventional football wisdom would have dictated a punt, but Broadwater’s coach Spencer liked what he saw in his offensive squad. Instead of punting, Kelly pitched the ball to Gustafson who, behind strong lead blocking by Clay Wardius and Cain Taylor, powered up the left sideline for a 15-yard gain and a clock-eating new set of downs. The Vikings never gave the ball back to Chincoteague and the Broadwater players and fans celebrated the first Broadwater win over Chincoteague in three years.

Despite the rivalry, the game was characterized by good sportsmanship by players and fans, a high level of effort on the field, and creative coaching on both sides.

Vikings will be back in action against Isle of Wight Academy at 7 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 6, on their home field. The Ponies are set to host Portsmouth Christian tonight (Friday) for their first home game of the season at 7 p.m. on Chincoteague.

C.J. Smith scored the final touchdown for the Yellow Jackets, rushing 11-yards with 10:38 left in the final quarter. The Chargers responded with one last effort with 1:34 left in game, but Northampton would take the win, finishing the night 41-14.

The Yellow Jackets will host Atlantic Shores Christian tonight (Friday) in Eastville at 7 p.m.

Nandua dropped a 64-21 home loss to Cambridge-South Dorchester last Friday.

Damani Baines rushed for 17-yards to score for the Warriors. Jahiem Bailey also rushed a seven-yard touchdown. Bailey’s 32-yard pass to Joe Teasley aided in the Warriors last touchdown of the evening.

The Warriors will travel to Snow Hill tonight for a 7 p.m. kickoff, and the Firebirds are scheduled to host Delmar in Oak Hall.

Despite threatening skies and a stiff breeze, it was a fine day for 57 Eastern Shore youngsters who gathered Sept. 23 at the Saxis Fishing Pier. More than 160 fish of various species were caught by the children, all of whom received a fishing rod and reel and a great introduction to angling under the auspices of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club. After the rigors of baiting hooks and landing fish, the children enjoyed hot dogs and soda and a presentation to the three youngsters who caught the largest fish. Additionally, a special silver dollar presentation was made to Melissa Mendoza and Ziera Savage for the two largest fish caught by girls. The coins were presented by Hannah Glisson, whose mother was married to Harry Tull, one of the founding members of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club, in remembrance of a women’s auxiliary that was part of the club decades ago. The free event was made possible by the Virginia Marine Resources Commission; Schmidt Baking Co.; Sea Hawk Sports Center; Sherry Jo’s Custom Baits; Bill and Sheila Wolfram; Wolff’s Sandwich Shop; Bill and Donna McCready; Didlake Inc.; Watsons Gas; and volunteers from the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club. Eastern Shore Street Hockey League Game Summaries

By Michael Garbacz

Game 1: Blues 2, K&E Marine Capitals 6

The day’s slate of games started off with a make-up from last go-round, in which two sets of blueshirts squared off prior to the regular schedule. The defensive-minded Blues kept the Pat Trick’s influence to a minimum, but his teammates were more than able to pick up the slack. Jumping out to a 3-0 lead early, the Caps essentially put the game on ice in the first. Luckenbach rang up a goal and two assists, as did James Haley and Bradley Colona. Matt Yetter registered two goals; Dustin Aigner scored a goal and added a helper; Ben Bundick picked up an assist. For the Blues, Alex Cornwell scored a goal and added an assist; Michael Garbacz found the back of the net on the only shot he registered; Randall “The Animal” Stapleton chipped in a helper.

Game 2: Hoyt Insurance Ducks 0, EZ Loan Bruins 2

In a premier matchup of top contenders, the General’s Ducks faced off against the Smooth Criminal’s Killer B’s. Those two effectively canceled each other out, with neither managing to register a point in an overall great, haut game. It was T.R. Hoyt who broke the stalemate, notching all the goals his team needed. Meanwhile, young goalie Cabe Morgan was sharp as a scalpel in net, fending off the Quackers’ speedy offense, out-dueling league president Brad Ford to boot. Joe Cornwell, Sharkey Parks, and Cliff Windsor each picked up a helper in the Bruins’ win.

Game 3: Eastern Speed Shop Canucks 0, K&E Marine Capitals 4

Call it the Curse of Dan Cloutier; the Onancock Kid’s Nucks have started the season with three consecutive shutout losses. This time, it was the Pat Trick’s squad doing the deed, absolutely strangling the Canucks to the tune of allowing only five total shots on net. With possession of the ball all game long, the Caps cruised to victory. The Pat Trick and Dustin Aigner each twice tickled the twine; Ben Bundick and Matt Yetter added a helper apiece. Canucks’ goalie Ray Johnson deserves a lot of credit for keeping the score much less ugly than it could have been.

Game 4: Blues 9, Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 2

The Parksley Original constructed his team to be defensively minded. It therefore is quite surprising to see his Blues team hand anyone a blowout loss, but here we are. For whatever reason, every other shot seemed to find its way into the back of the net for the blueshirts while the Wings just could not get the motor going. Brandon Morgan led the offensive barrage, exploding for five goals and an assist; Paul Thornes registered a goal and two assists; Alex Cornwell and the Animal each found a goal and an assist; power forward Jennie Rice provided a trio of helpers; local hero Dean Dedicatoria banged home a beauty of a one-timer; Wes Stapleton added an assist. For the Red Wings, the Huntsman produced a goal and an assist; Mike McCready picked up a goal; Wayne Ayer chipped in a helper.

Game 5: EZ Loan Bruins 2, K&E Marine Capitals 1 (SO)

The General’s Ducks squad doing the deed, absolutely strangling the Canucks to the tune of allowing only five total shots on net. With possession of the ball all game long, the Caps cruised to victory. The Pat Trick and Dustin Aigner each twice tickled the twine; Ben Bundick and Matt Yetter added a helper apiece. Canucks’ goalie Ray Johnson deserves a lot of credit for keeping the score much less ugly than it could have been.

Game 6: Hoyt Insurance Ducks 5, Blues 1

Playing their third game of the day, the Blues clearly ran out of gas at exactly the wrong time, in the face of a young, speedy Ducks squad. And those youngsters made the blueshirts pay, doubling up the Blues on shots 26-13 and putting the game away in the first period after jumping out to a 3-0 lead. While the Blues did manage to mostly keep the Ducks’ shooters out to the perimeter, that did not prove to be much a problem today; as the two Zachs, Mills and Webb, feasted to the tune of two and three goals, respectively. The General also added an assist; Kim Mills added a hat trick’s worth of helpers; Devon Corbin also picked up an assist. Wes Stapleton spoiled President Ford’s shootout bid for the Blues on an assist from Jennie Rice.

Game 7: Eastern Speed Shop Canucks 5, Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 4 (SO)

It was the Miracle and Catherine Street. The Huntsman’s Wings stormed out to a 4-0 lead on a ‘Nucks squad heretofore down on its luck. Slowly but surely, though, the Onancock Kid’s team clawed and dragged themselves back into contest, fending off a Red Wings team hungry for their own marker in the win column and forcing the game into a deadlock, knotted at four apiece at the final buzzer. Moving into the shootout, noted Islander Keith Hagler scored what can only be described as a bonkers goal, securing the first big “W” of the year for his team. Now that they’re off the schneid, look out for those ‘Nucks! Lovable chin-wagger La Boca, Jesse West, picked himself up a “pace yourself” hat trick for the Canucks; the Onancock Kid found his first goal of the campaign; Hagler produced two assists. For the Red Wings, C.J. Jones and the Huntsman each potted two goals; Stapleton also added a helper; Michael Vargas, Wayne, and Ethan Ayer also each registered an assist for the Wings in the loss.

Eastern Shore Kings Aim to Lock in No. 1 Spot

Submitted Article and Photo

They say a picture is worth a thousand words. Going into this third season, the Eastern Shore Kings were uncertain of a lot things, players, field, finances. What came up from the hard work, blood, sweat, and tears was loyalty and dedication.

“Chip or bust” is the motto for this season. The talent, the heartbreak, and the sacrifice these young men have made is worth mentioning. The Kings are still currently in first place, undefeated and can lock in the No. 1 spot with a win this Sunday.

They will be playing a stingy New Jersey Broncos team, who is currently No. 2 with a 3-1 record. Come catch all the live action Sunday at 2 p.m., at Snow Hill High school located at Snow Hill High School 305 S. Church St.

Youth Win Big at Anglers Club Bay Challenge

The Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club conducted its annual Bay Challenge fishing tournament last Saturday, Sept. 22, with over 100 participants. Supported by numerous local businesses, the event was a scholarship fundraiser for local youths to attend outdoor education camp at Chincoteague Bay Field Station. Pictured are young anglers who caught the top fish in the many youth divisions. Back row (from left): Ethan Willett, Abigail Bull, Seth Taylor, and J. C. Morrison. Front row (from left): Conway Turner and Cara Thomas.
The autumn red drum surf run is just beginning as a couple of large reds and puppy drum have started to make an appearance in the suds of the northern barrier islands. This fishery should slowly improve and last through this month and into November, barring any major storm appearances. Speckled trout fishing should also continue to improve as the fish become more aggressive with declining water temperatures. Offshore, dolphin (mahi mahi) is better than it has been all year.

Lower Shore – Chris Snook, of Chris’ Bait & Tackle, reported that anglers are finding some speckled trout and puppy drum off Kiptopeke. Speckled trout are also on the increase on the bayside as the shop had registered citations for a couple of fish exceeding 5 pounds. The fish were believed to have been caught in Hungar’s Creek. Red drum continue to be caught and released on Lattimore Shoals, where a late season cobia was also landed on Sunday. Keeper-sized flounder have been caught by anglers jigging around the pilings of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. A few limits of flounder have also been caught by anglers drifting along the span. The pier at Kiptopeke State Park has produced a mixed catch of spot, croaker, flounder, and even a couple of baby cobia.

Jeb Brady, of Bailey’s Bait & Tackle, told me that the shop is still registering release citations for red drum being caught around the bridge-tunnel. He said that the speckled trout fishing is picking up when anglers can find clear water. He had heard of a few puppy drum being picked up on the seaside, but most of them have been above the slot limit. Bottom fishermen are catching spot while using bloodworms for bait.

Upper Shore – Captain Matt Abell, of Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported that the number and size of striped bass and speckled trout in the southern Maryland waters is on the increase. The mouths of the Manokin and Wicomico Rivers have also produced a number of large white perch. Some of the perch have even hit Bass Assassin lures intended for their larger rockfish cousins. Red drum continue to be caught in the shallow waters of Pocomoke Sound, as a pair of customers landed four reds while fishing for speckled trout over the weekend. Anglers casting lures have been finding lots of undersized stripers and speckled trout, plus some surprisingly nice bluefish to 7 pounds. Speckled trout and rockfish have also been taken near the mouth of the Pocomoke River. On the seaside, despite some dirty water, anglers are finding a few keeper flounder out of Folly Creek. One customer had a pair of keepers, landing nine fish in all over a period of a couple hours. Lots of dolphin (mahi) catches were reported from the Washington Canyon.

Chincoteague – Pete Vasilou, of Captain Steve’s Bait & Tackle, reported that a few red drum have showed up in the Assateague surf over the weekend. Both slot fish and large fish up to 52 inches were landed and released. Pete said that there were plenty of pan-sized fish also in the surf, such as kingfish (whiting), spot, and snapper-sized bluefish. The shop registered a citation 1-pound, 12-ounce kingfish for Karen Myers. The warm ocean water is still holding plenty of sharks. In the waters of Chincoteague Bay, some puppy drum have been landed inside of the creek mouths. The flounder fishing is also showing improvement as more keepers are being landed as the water temperature begins to fall. Offshore, lots of large dolphin (mahi) are patrolling the weedlines. Some vessels are enjoying success with targeting white marlin and wahoo, but the tuna bite has been on the poor side. Flounder and black sea bass are being landed on the near shore and offshore wrecks respectfully.

Donna Rae, at Captain Bob’s Marina, reported that anglers are having to work for their catches in the back bay waters, including having to go through a number of undersized fish to find some keepers. She said that the Chincoteague Channel has produced a “fair” number of keeper flounder. A few legal sized fish have also come from the waters of Assateague Channel. Live large minnows/squid strip combinations and/or Gulp Swimming Mullet with squid flavored Fish Bites have been the top producing baits for keeper-sized flounder. Inshore coastal sharks in the 2- to 3-foot size range are hitting cut mackerel and chunks of bunker freelined back into a clam or bunker chum line. Wreck fishermen were finding a few keeper flounder, some black sea bass, and sharks over the Blackfish Banks. Captain Bob’s is running a big 20 percent off sale on most tackle and clothing. Does Pre-K Make Difference In Grade 3 SOLs? Questions Remain

By Stefanie Jackson

A data study that Northampton Schools Director of Special Programs Keren Plowden presented to the school board on Sept. 28 highlighted both conflict between members who disagree how limited staff should spend their time and confusion about the effect of pre-K attendance on students’ future test performance.

When the meeting started, school board member Nancy Proto suggested postponing Plowden’s presentation to allow more time to find answers to Proto’s questions about the correlation between pre-K attendance and performance on the Standards of Learning (SOL) tests in third grade, when those assessments are first administered.

Since Northampton schools does not employ a data analyst, Plowden had to take time away from her regular duties, including coordinating programs for special education, talented and gifted students, and English learners, to conduct the study assisted by teacher and intern Justin Wheeler (who is working toward a school administration degree).

Superintendent Eddie Lawrence was in favor of Plowden proceeding with her presentation and said, “Time is a resource to me.”

School board member Randy Parks agreed Plowden didn’t have any more time to devote to the project.

An emphatic exchange ensued between Parks and Proto, during which Proto criticized Parks for talking over between Parks and Proto, during which agreed Plowden didn’t have any more time and confusion about the effect of pre-K attendance on students’ future test performance.

Their findings did not appear to indicate a correlation between pre-K attendance and third-grade test performance.

At Kiptopeke Elementary School, 53 third-graders were tested; 40 attended pre-K and 13 did not. About 69 percent of students who did not attend pre-K failed one or both third grade SOLs, and about 38 percent failed reading.

Kiptopeke third-graders who attended pre-K did not fare better. About 60 percent failed one or both third grade SOLs and nearly 53 percent failed reading.

At Occohannock Elementary School, 48 third-graders were tested; 27 students attended pre-K and 21 did not. About 19 percent of students who did not attend pre-K failed one or both third-grade SOLs, and about 14 percent failed reading.

Occohannock third-graders who attended pre-K actually fared worse on the assessments. About 33 percent failed one or both third grade SOLs and about 19 percent failed reading.

“It is unclear at this time to determine if enrollment and success in the universal pre-K program can predict future success on SOLs due to a number of factors,” the report stated.

Some of the findings were encouraging. A “strong majority” of new kindergartners had acquired the skills necessary to succeed in kindergarten, according to the YCAT results.

Plowden noted that students who left kindergarten at Tier 3 (who need the most help to learn) were English learners or were later identified as needing special education.

The study left Plowden with questions like, “What are we doing as a division to address our Tier 3 students in reading in first grade and then again in second grade? Are interventions being used with fidelity?”

She believes teacher inexperience plays a role. The transition from kindergarten to first grade and the impact of instruction in grades 1 to 3 should be examined more closely, Plowden concluded.

Northampton Parent Tries to End School Lunch Shaming

By Connie Morrison

A Northampton parent, concerned about students being denied hot lunches because parents either refused or were unable to pay the student lunch tab, has established a GoFundMe fundraising page to offset student meal debt.

Tommy Lynch saw a letter in September about a child owing $10.90 for school lunches at Kiptopeke. The letter stated if the balance reached $15, the student would be given a cold cheese sandwich, fruit, and milk — at a cost of 75 cents per day — until the debt was discharged. In that case, it was a miscommunication and easily taken care of. But he was concerned about other students.

“I researched it and found all sorts of horror stories,” he said. “I don’t feel children should be punished for the parents’ shortcomings.”

Lynch saw the potential for children to be stigmatized by the cold debtors’ lunch for something over which they had no control: whether their parents were willing to pay the bill.

He immediately set up a GoFundMe page with a goal of raising $5,000 to help settle student lunch debt and avoid what some have termed “lunch shaming.” So far the fund has raised $645.

Lynch is not alone in his concern. Food shaming has received national coverage in the last year and state legislators have been tackling the issue. Gov. Ralph Northam signed HB 50 into law in March which requires Virginia school boards to adopt policies that prohibit employees from requiring a student who cannot pay for a meal and has meal debt to do chores or other work to retire his or her debt. Students also cannot be made to wear a wristband or hand stamp to identify them as owing money. The new law also requires school board employees to direct any communication relating to a school meal debt to the student’s parent.

It does not prevent what some, including the American Bar Association, consider more subtle forms of lunch shaming, including providing inferior lunches. A 2014 USDA report showed that withholding a hot meal in favor of a cold sandwich was the most frequent means of compelling parents to square up accounts.

In Virginia, Mount Lebanon Baptist Church paid more than $4,000 last year to pay all the lunch debt at all of Chesapeake Public School’s elementary and middle schools.

“The donations are a short-term solution,” said Lynch. “We are also looking into a federal USDA program which we do qualify for. This program would give all students free breakfast and lunch.”

The program to which Lynch refers is the Community Eligibility Provision which will provide free school breakfasts and lunches to all students in low-income school districts and eliminates the burden of collecting individual applications from each household.

A federal website indicates that Accomack and Northampton school divisions are eligible for the program, which requires local or state matching funds.

Northampton Schools Chief Financial Officer Brook Thomas said the school division had looked into the program in the past, but off the top of her head couldn’t recall “all the pros and cons that were considered.” She was unable to provide the information in time for this week’s edition, but agreed to do so for a follow-up article.

Accomack County Public Schools was also asked about the program but had not responded as of press time Thursday.

Shore Soccer has signed onto the effort and concession proceeds this weekend will go toward the fund.

“All proceeds from the concession stand will go to overdue lunch bills over $15,” said Lynch.

The GoFundMe page will end after 30 days — on Oct. 20 — but Shore Soccer has said if it can offer the fundraising effort another weekend, it will.

Lynch said he hasn’t determined yet whether the funds will be turned over to the school or to the PTA to administer when the GoFundMe account is closed.

The important thing is to get it going. “I can’t imagine my 4-year-old being told she gets a cheese sandwich because dad didn’t pay for her,” he said. “Just bothers my mind.”

Lighting the Shore With Smiles

Bill Schmidt stopped by the Eastern Shore Post earlier this week and handed out Lighthouse ornaments he hand-painted. Schmidt estimates he has painted about 10,000 lighthouses, which he frequently hides for others to find or gives out just to see the smiles in return.

Fresh Paint for a Fresh Start

Broadwater Academy Director of Operations Ron Anson (left) is congratulated by Northampton Lumber Company owner Josh Lattimore on the school’s receipt of a 30-gallon paint grant from the True Value Foundation’s Painting a Brighter Future program. The Nassawadox lumber company nominated the school for the grant.

The paint was used to give Broadwater classrooms and offices a much-needed makeover. “The donation will not only save the school money, but more importantly will create an environment that fosters learning, inspires creativity and instills community pride,” Lattimore said.

Black Narrows Brewing Company
Named ‘Brewery of the Year’

By Linda Cicoira

Black Narrows Brewing Company, of Chincoteague, was named the “Brewery of the Year” this week by The Virginia Restaurant, Lodging & Travel Association (VRLTA).

Recipients were honored at a special dinner at the Hilton Richmond Hotel & Spa/Short Pump in Richmond, Va., Tuesday night. The winners were announced in front of the sold-out audience of more than 160 hospitality and travel industry peers and leaders from across the state. The winners were selected from more than 100 nominees and “represent all the extraordinary people and companies that make up Virginia’s hospitality and tourism industry,” said Eric Terry, president of the association. “On behalf of the VRLTA, our staff, and board, we applaud the efforts of these individuals for the exemplary work they have done and will continue to do.”

Lottery To Recognize Best Of Public School-Educated Virginians

Submitted Article

The Eastern Shore’s public schools have produced some extraordinary adults. Because the Virginia Lottery helps to fund public education, it has introduced a new campaign to recognize exceptional individuals who got their start in Virginia public schools. Nominations are due Oct. 12.

Launched on Sept. 4, Made in Virginia is calling for individuals to nominate public-school educated Virginians who have found success in their career, overcome adversity or demonstrated a passion for service to their community.

Each of the four selected graduates will get the opportunity to award $9,000 in prizes to the Virginia K-12 public school that played an instrumental role in their future success. The four winners will be featured in a statewide commercial set to air in early 2019.

The launch of Made in Virginia coincides with the lottery’s 30th birthday. The first Lottery ticket was sold on September 20, 1988, and since 1999, a combined $9 billion in Virginia Lottery profits have benefited K-12 public schools.

“We can’t think of a better way to say ‘thank you’ to Virginians for 30 years of good fun for such a great cause – our K-12 schools,” said Virginia Lottery Executive Director Kevin Hall. “We are excited to commemorate our 30th birthday by celebrating those remarkable graduates and the K-12 schools which played instrumental roles in their ultimate success.”

The $9,000 in prizes, which will be awarded to the Virginia public school of the winner’s choice, includes $5,000 from the Virginia Lottery and $4,000 in school supplies from The Supply Room Companies. The four schools that are honored may use those winnings to address their unique needs.

“Education has the power to positively influence individuals’ paths and the future of communities big and small – it influenced me, and it’s why I chose to be a public school teacher,” said Virginia Secretary of Education Atif Qarni. “Ask around and I guarantee you’ll hear of success stories that began from a lesson in school, an inspirational teacher or life-changing academic experience.”

Nominations will be accepted at MadeinVirginia.com through October 12, 2018. Four winners will be selected – one each from the northern, southern, eastern and western parts of Virginia – and announced later this year. To qualify, winners must have attended a Virginia public school and graduated between 1999 and 2018.

For more information about the Made in Virginia nomination process and eligibility requirements, visit MadeinVirginia.com

The Lottery generates more than $1.6 million per day for Virginia’s K-12 public schools. Operating entirely on revenue from the sale of Lottery products, the Lottery generated more than $600 million for Virginia’s public schools in Fiscal Year 2018. SURVEY RESPONDENTS SAY HEALTHCARE AND ILLEGAL IMMIGRATION ARE THEIR TOP ISSUES

By Linda Cicoira

Healthcare and illegal immigration were the two top political issues Accomack and Northampton residents said they want to solve when they answered a recent email survey conducted by the Eastern Shore Post.

Nearly 75 percent of the participants won’t join a mission to colonize another planet if it meant never returning to Earth. They said they appreciate their families and friends too much to do so or wouldn’t want the aggravation.

About 58 percent would never consider putting pineapple on pizza. Nearly 62 percent said they would take a knife or hatchet if they were stranded in the wilderness with nothing else.

Michael Stephano, of Cashville, picked healthcare as the top political issue. “I would give it to everyone free,” he wrote. “I would never consider putting pineapple on pizza. His favorite subject is “my dog.”

Linda Nicola, of Onancock, said straightening out healthcare “would solve so many problems … and not just health. People could work instead of taking government assistance. Small businesses could compete with large businesses that offer healthcare. Healthcare would actually improve emergency rooms being used as primary healthcare.”

Nicola said the best way to make new friends is to join groups, which “provides instant socialization with people” with whom you already have things in common. She appreciates computers as a positive way the world has changed since 1999.

“A bucket and a machete are the best tools to have” when left in the middle of nowhere, Nicola wrote. “But, I would choose water. You would die in three days without it.” Nicola was against putting pineapple on pizza. “Not with tomato sauce or cheese. Just can’t see it,” she said.

Her favorite subject to talk about is politics, preferably the Middle East. “It’s a fascinating topic with so much misunderstanding and ignorance around it.”

Anthony LaFaso, of Onancock, wants to solve immigration issues. “Enforce the existing laws, let it be known that we will close the borders until those who’ve already entered can be processed, have Mexico develop a policy to keep folks from crossing through their land into ours, increase the ranks of ICE (Immigration and Customs Enforcement) and the border patrol … and build a wall once the flow has stopped to maintain our borders.”

“9/11 woke us up to the reality that we are hated by Muslim terrorists and they are still bent on our destruction, that Israel’s medical and technical advancements are benefitting the world, (and) that the Berlin Wall has come down,” LaFaso wrote about accomplishments since 1999.

“NO” was his response to a mission to another planet. “I’ll wait until Jesus returns and creates a new heaven and a new earth.” God is his favorite thing to talk about.

LaFaso said his wilderness tool would be “a hatchet enabling me to chop wood, build a shelter, make kindling for fires, make spears to catch game, and protect myself.” He would “never ever” put pineapple on pizza.

Bill Payne, of Cape Charles, said he would solve the abortion issue by beginning a national dialogue. Smartphones changed the world since 1999, Payne wrote. Being a listener is the best way to make new friends. He would not go to another planet. “There’s no place like home.” But, if Payne was left alone in the wilderness, he would want “a bottle of good gin.” His favorite subject is history.

“I would, already do, try very hard to be tolerant of people’s opinions, no matter which side they are on,” said Nicki Tiffany, of Cape Charles. “I do this by refusing to engage in arguments or debates.”

Since 1999, “More people are aware of things that hurt the environment,”
Tiffany said, “Just wish more people would actually do something about it.” The best way to make new friends is to “participate in community events and volunteer,” she wrote. Tiffany would not go on a space exploration. “There is enough work to do right here to take care of the Earth.”

She would take a metal camp cup on her wilderness expedition. “It could be handy in a lot of different situations.” Her favorite subject is mindfulness. “I LOVE Hawaiian pizza,” Tiffany wrote.

Wesley Edwards, of Belle Haven, said the political issue he would solve is “illegals in the USA. Close the borders with walls, fencing, electronic monitoring, and more border patrol officers.”

The best way to make new friends is to “get out and mingle,” Edwards said. But, he wouldn’t go to a far-off galaxy to do it. He is “happy and at peace right here on the bay.” If left alone in the wilderness, he would choose his wife, Terry, to come along. “Trust me, she is an item,” Edwards said. His favorite subjects are politics and family.

Bruce MacMaster Jr., of Onley, wants to “re-establish the security of our borders in every way possible.” On a wilderness trip, he would take a cell phone with a signal or a big gun if cell service was unavailable “I promise to read the Bible when I get back home again.”

“No!” he said about colonizing another planet. “I am very happy here with my family and friends!” By “being approachable and ready to recognize the qualities of others,” MacMaster is able to make friends. “Nauseated,” is his reaction to pineapple on pizza. Traveling is his choice subject.

Jay Davenport, of the Onancock area, said he would solve political problems by getting “the electorate and our elected politicians” to treat with respect those who differ from them. “Party leaders need to take the initiative to do this and to encourage others to do it.” To make new friends, he said, “Be the first to say, ‘Hello,’ to a stranger.” He would take “a good knife” into the wilderness.

Denise Bowden, of Chincoteague, wants to bring peace to the world. “I appreciate the life God has given me, but the world is in such a sad state of affairs that it’s hard to appreciate much it has to offer as far as technology, employment opportunities, etc. The world went up and got itself in a big hurry.”

Bowden would “never” go on a space mission to colonize another planet. “This life can be hard enough!” If she was left in the wilderness with one item it would have to be a “toothbrush. Can’t stand having that feeling of socks on my teeth! Yeah, visualize that! Eck!”

Judy Brunk, of Jamesville, wants to solve the differences in political parties. “If I knew we would all be happy,” she added. Brunk appreciates digital photography, says people can make friends by being one, wants to stay on Earth, would take a map with her to the wilderness, and likes to talk about crabs.

Sam Serio, of Melfa, said stopping illegal immigration would be his goal. “I believe the southern border needs to be controlled … If that is done we could create a path to citizenship for those that are already here illegally.”

“Streaming videos are great accomplishments” and have changed his life for the better, he said. Serio would not help colonize another planet. “Life on Earth is strange enough for me.” If he was left alone in the wilderness, he would choose a set of encyclopedias to keep him company. Serio’s favorite subject is gardening.
Volunteers Tackle Habitat For Humanity Roofing Job

Submitted Article
Habitat for Humanity was incorporated in 1988 on the Eastern Shore of Virginia and is committed to its mission of providing safe, efficient home ownership in the form of affordable housing. The Eastern Shore of Virginia Habitat for Humanity has completed and dedicated 46 homes in Northampton and Accomack Counties since its inception.

Del. Rob Bloxom has been a champion and supporter of Habitat for Humanity for many years and he assembled a volunteer roofing team for home number 47. Spangler Construction from Chincoteague led the installation donating labor, tools, and skills. Volunteers from the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, Grace United Methodist Church, and Market Street Methodist Church also lent a helping hand. With the guidance of Spangler Construction, the entire roof was installed in three hours. Thank you to Nick Spangler, Pat Luckenbach, Lane Spangler, Ashley Ayersman, David Filipic, Angela Crist, Mike Crist, Glen Smith, Jose Ballesta, Roger Escobar, Joan Casado, Rip Rippon, Ryan Banks, Wayne Parsley, Aaron Johnson, Alan Layman, and Del. Rob Bloxom for sacrificing a Saturday morning to make this a dream come true for one lucky family.

It is a common myth that the Habitat for Humanity homes are given away without the burden of a mortgage. This is simply false. Habitat for Humanity chooses families based on their level of need, their willingness to become partners in the program and their ability to repay the home loan through an affordable payment plan. The chosen homeowner must put a down payment on their home in the form of sweat equity. This consists of 350 hours of volunteer work on their home or alongside other Habitat homeowners. Once the home is completed, Habitat homeowners purchase their houses through affordable, interest free, monthly mortgage payments.

If you are interested in volunteering on a Habitat for Humanity home, check out their website http://www.eastern-shorehabitat.org/ or give the Habitat office a call at 442-4687. Home 47 is still in need of volunteers to finish the inside of the home. No experience is needed to participate in this program and everyone is welcome. We encourage schools, youth groups, construction companies, etc. to get involved!

Perdue Grant Helps Two Families
Perdue Farms, through a $35,000 grant funded by the Franklin P. and Arthur W. Perdue Foundation, is helping Habitat for Humanity provide homeownership opportunities for two families on the Eastern Shore.

“Thanks to the support of the Perdue Foundation, we have completed two full houses each year for the last three years,” said Nancy Gonzalez, executive director for Habitat for Humanity. “These families are now living in their own safe and affordable homes and paying their mortgages faithfully. Their lives have been completely changed.”

What Makes You Happy?

By Pastor Andrew Matthews
Special to the Eastern Shore Post

If only had - if I only drove - if I only wore - if I only knew - if I only won - then I would feel better about myself. Then, I would be happy. We may not actually say those words but we all think those thoughts and have feelings that long for happiness.

The society around us consistently says you have to have certain things in order to be happy. Those things can be expensive in the money they cost and the energy they require, but in the end you’re still not happy. Think back to a time when you felt happy and it likely is associated with a “who” more than a “what”: a parent, a child, a spouse, a best friend. Happiness depending on the “what” always leads to a “what else.” The new phone you just bought will have a newer version in just a few months. The new car will lose its “new car smell” and soon will become just “the car.” At the end of life the regrets people have are usually relational (the who) and not related to possessions (the what.) What makes us happy? No thing ever can!

One of the strangest realities of life is that some of the happiest people in the world have a lot less than most of us. But the one thing that all happy people have in common can be summed up in one word: peace. They have dealt with their lives and are at peace within themselves. They are also at peace with others, not harboring bitterness or forgiveness, and many of those happy people are at peace with God. At some point in their lives they have come to peace with God and that peace has led to a deeper sense of happiness. Happiness is not found in the things of life but in the relationships.

Now here is the reality check: anything that undermines your peace in one of these three areas directly undermines your happiness as well. When we fall out of peace with other people we lose our happiness. When we live with regret, the peace we had with ourselves disappears and we are unhappy.

If you read the Bible at all you will know that the New Testament speaks a lot about how to live at peace with yourself and with others. In Ephesians 2:14 Jesus is described; “For he himself is our peace . . .” Jesus is what brings true and lasting peace, first with God, then within ourselves which is the only way we can hope to live in peace with others. Happiness in not in a “what,” but in a “who” and the ultimate “who” is Jesus Christ.

Andrew Matthews is the pastor of Zion Baptist Church, on the Corner of U.S. Route 13 and Metompkin Road.

Dear Editor:

You put in the Eastern Shore Post that we had to clean off any and all things off the graves (at Capeville Masonic Cemetery) for the grass cutters because they couldn't do their job.

I removed a rose bush that grew at the foot of my mother's resting place for six years. I kept it cut back. It was beautiful. I also pulled weeds around it and kept the grave nice. Now there is nothing in the way and they have sprayed grass all over the tombstone to the point I have to buy a brush and scrub it off. You couldn't read her name.

I'm asking the ones who have hired these people to replace them. They get paid to cut keep graves clean and still it's not being done. My next move is Channel 10.

Pride Coverage a Step Forward

What a treat to see the Eastern Shore Post step up and cover something a little out there! Way to go! I'd like to think this is a step forward for the Shore in opening our eyes to something different.
rule the world. Then I could always have pleasant conversations with everyone and life would be beautiful. I’m sure there are many of you who agree with me, only perhaps the reasoning goes by another name.

When my roommate in college, Julie Dorman of the Cincinnati, Ohio area, didn’t agree with me about something or marveled (I’m not sure if that was a good marvel or a bad one) about something I said, she would ask if I was quoting Linda Logic. It got to be a joke and has evolved as a thing we refer to whenever I am trying to explain the right way to think about any philosophical subject. So I decided I would research Linda Logic by putting the name into www.google.com to see what would appear.

Yippee! There are others! I’m not alone. Well, let me put it this way, I have no idea if my thoughts coincide with those of other Linda Logics. But there are others. There is a Linda Logic who is on Facebook and plays Words with Friends, just like I do. And there is a website, www.lindaloganslogic.com, that belongs to Linda Logan, a personal and business life coach, referred to on her website as “Dynamic, insightful, inspirational, down to earth, riveting, talented and versatile — these are the monikers associated with Dr. Linda Logan, a motivational teacher, speaker, counselor, life coach, and ordained minister. Dr. Logan has conducted workshops and intensive training sessions throughout the United States and Canada.”

I wonder what Julie would think of that. I called her and she assured me I was not that person. The Googling I continued to do led me to an article at www.psychologytoday.com that told how things really are. “People are more motivated by fear of losing than the possibility of gaining something,” the site stated. “We are basically all control freaks. The desire to control starts as young as four months old.”

It also said, “People are more motivated to reach a goal the closer they get to it.” I find that my enthusiasm level increases at that point, which is why I have to spend time relaxing to compensate.

Using nouns is more persuasive than using verbs. “For example, saying, ‘Be a Donor’ versus ‘Donate Now,’ results in more people taking action … because nouns invoke group identity.” I did not know that.

“People are more likely to comply with a request if they trust you and the best way to get others to trust you is to first show that you trust them.” That was just incorporated into Linda Logic. “If people feel that something is difficult they will be more motivated to do it.” That is definitely something I do.

“Giving rewards is more effective than punishment.” Oh, I like that one.

“People filter out information they don’t agree with, but you can get past those filters by first agreeing with them.” Okay everyone, let’s agree that the 60th birthday of Linda is coming up on Oct. 21, and if you want to have a chance at winning $25 (which is being provided by Editor Connie Morrison) you should send or hand-deliver a birthday card to me before that all-important date. Yippee!
