Supervisors Look at School Budget Cuts

By Ron West

Northampton County Schools Superintendent Dr. Richard Bowmaster fielded questions from county supervisors Tuesday regarding how best to cut the 2010-11 school budget.

Supervisor Richard Tankard reminded those present that the school system had not faced the same level of cuts and unpaid furloughs as other county departments in the current fiscal year. Dr. Bowmaster remarked that a survey of school employees had shown that they favor not receiving a raise if it meant other school employees could retain their jobs. He said building administrators are already developing a budget for the coming school term based on level funding.

Tankard suggested that they begin to look at a possible 5 percent or 10 percent decrease in local funding.

The school system recently received a $270,000 educational technology grant, which will provide funds for replacing some computers and connectivity in the buildings.

Dr. Bowmaster reported that repairing or replacing a wall in the high-school cafeteria is still an issue. At present, students are not allowed in the room when winds reach 35 miles per hour because of safety concerns. Dr. Bowmaster said they are looking at using some operations funding to cover the cost.

Supervisor Tankard raised the issue of retiree benefits, including paying them for unused sick leave as well as assisting with insurance premiums. Bowmaster noted that the sick-leave buyout policy was changed in recent years to limit the amount a retiring employee can receive. When Tankard asked Dr. Bowmaster if a pay raise for staff members is off the table for the coming year, Bowmaster replied that it is.

Also on the supervisors’ agenda were numerous applications from property owners to add more acreage to agricultural and forestal districts. The supervisors supported most of the requests as presented and tabled others until additional information can be provided.

Supervisor Spencer Murray reported that a group from the county had met with U.S. Congressman Glenn Nye to discuss the possibility of acquiring more prisoners for incarceration at the regional jail complex in Eastville. He noted that the county is losing approximately $800,000 per year by not having the jail filled.

It was reported that Northampton County had recovered $413,109 in delinquent taxes in the past year.

Richard Leal urged the supervisors to consider sending out tax bills twice a year to reduce the one-time bill residents receive just prior to Christmas. Additionally, Leal suggested that the county begin letting residents pay online with credit cards or receive a 5 percent reduction if they pay early.

The supervisors conducted a public hearing on a request by Peter and Marcia Zanetich to have a horse training area on their property adjacent to the high school in Eastville. The supervisors unanimously approved the request.

NASA Airplane Noise Reverberates for Supervisors

By Linda Cicoira

People are grumbling about the noise in the northern part of Accomack County, an issue officials believe is due to the influx of residential developments.

“We are starting to get complaints for the first time,” Caroline Massey of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) at Wallops Island told Accomack’s Board of Supervisors and Planning Commission last week.

“It’s amazing to me that there’s an airport there that is not realized until after people move in,” said Planning Commissioner George T. Parker.

Virginia Department of Transportation (VDOT) put up signs on Route 679 (also known as Fleming Road) “when development first started, to alert people of low flying aircraft,” said Massey. “Somebody keeps taking those signs down … this is the only runway we can extend.”

“I think it will pick up,” Massey said of air traffic. “Cargo coming from Kennedy will be flown in. It certainly won’t decrease.”

Planning Commission Chairman Phil Hickman said four or five planes come in every day. “Big jets from Oceana. They can make a lot of noise. It’s like having your own private air show.”

The issue was raised during discussions by the two panels regarding proposed Planned Unit Developments (PUDs). The zones focus on residential clusters with common open space.

In an e-mail to Planning Director James McGowan, Massey suggested language to be included in the PUD ordinance. “NASA strongly prefers to submit the NASA impact area assessment to the county at the county’s request. We actually would find it difficult if not legally impossible to deal with developer’s requests,” she wrote.

“NASA as the property owner will prepare one area assessment that reflects the consensus positions of NASA … partners” since NASA is the landlord, Massey continued. “This is the informal process we have in place with the county now. You would not want and we do not want the county to deal with several different assessment from NASA/Navy/NOAA etc.”

She suggested that the proposed PUD ordinance state, “WFF shall prepare an area impact assessment that will include an analysis of potential hazards and public safety and operational interference issues posed by the proposed location and type of” PUD. The issues “could include operational hazards for the area, public safety issues, evacuation criteria and concerns, building height, noise, radio frequency, lighting, electromagnetic interference, and storm water management pond/waterfowl conflicts.”

Supervisor Wanda Thornton wanted the draft proposal to be simplified and complained that it was too vague in some of its guidelines. “If you want it more specific, we can do it,” said McGowan. However, he stressed that the language would allow the officials more flexibility. “We review the reports and tell them whether or not it’s adequate,” he said.

Supervisor Grayson Chesser favored McGowan’s approach. “I don’t see how you can add one cookie cutter approach to it,” Chesser said.

Thorton agreed, “One size doesn’t fit all.” However, she said, “There should be a mechanism that tells them what that is.”

Parker, who worked on PUD issues in Florida, said, “In the beginning you’re better off (being flexible) because you don’t have so much pressure. I don’t think we’re at that point yet.”

“I think the board needs to look at this document as a whole,” said Hickman. “Only Parker has worked on this before. We’ve taken another county’s ordinance to give planning staff flexibility. That’s the reason for putting in only areas already zoned for village development, he said. “It’s got to be a very profitable project for a developer to go through with all this.”

The officials agreed the process could take at least three years before any construction is even started. In the end, the supervisors informally supported McGowan’s approach.

Causeway Name Reflects Vision of Island Residents

By Linda Cicoira

Chincoteague Town Council members said Monday they plan to continue to honor the late Capt. John B. Whealton by keeping his name on the causeway to the island. They informally agreed that they had no plans to change the name of the causeway or the bridges.

The announcement came a month after a petition signed by more than 400 residents was presented to Council asking that the new drawbridge be named for the late William Lee (the Fish Man) Moore who died earlier this year.

At that time, Mayor Jack Tarr said, “We will take this under consideration.” Council is “not sure what the process will be yet.”

Members spoke out against a change Monday. "I'm a transplant," said Councilwoman Ellen Richardson. “I came here 51 years ago. I agree with Mr. Whealton … I say leave things alone.”

Richardson was referring to Dan Whealton, who spoke before the panel and is an ancestor of Capt. John B. Whealton.

“I too do not wish to disrespect a family member of one of our Chincoteague Island families, Dan Whealton said. Still he asked the officials to "weigh the enormous visionary and pioneering spirit that" Capt. Whealton "brought to a reality. If you rename the drawbridge, then you will have to eventually rename all the bridges. … Whealton will be forgotten and drowned under a sea of names.”

According to history, Capt. Whealton formed the Chincoteague Toll Road and Bridge Company in an effort to connect the island with the mainland. Eventually the road and its six bridges were opened in 1922.

“I have known Willie (Moore) all my life and understand he and his family are grieving as we all miss his father," Dan Whealton continued. But changing the bridge name “would not only cause us to lose part of our island history, we would lose a valuable Whealton family history and” his endeavors “would be nullified.”

“I am not asking for memorials for all the Whealtions," he said, naming off relatives who included the island's first millionaire; first , “who played a major role in preventing the island from seceding during the Civil War"; a causeway builder; and a school supporter who left a “sizeable endowment to that school to benefit the education of the island's children.”

"I would respectfully submit to honor Mr. Moore with the naming of the dock behind the American Legion as the William “Fishman” Moore Town Dock as he spend most of his life on that very dock," said Whealton. “I believe this would be most appropriate."

Last month, while fighting back tears of grief for the 68-year-old Oyster native who died in May, Willie Moore recounted his father's good deeds. The son suggested that Council pass a resolution regarding the naming and submit it to the Virginia Commonwealth Transportation Board.

Around July, “it came to the family's attention that several members of the community had initiated and were circulating a petition on the island to have the new drawbridge named in Dad's memory ... our family is humbled by this gesture,” Moore said. “The love the community has for my dad and the outpouring of support they have given our family, especially over the last year with the illnesses and passing of both Mom and Dad. We, as a family, have been asked to present this petition to you for your consideration.”

“Dad lived on Chincoteague for over 55 years and worked at Edgerton Seafood for over 50 years … if you asked Dad where he wanted to go on vacation, he would say Chincoteague," Moore said. "Naming the new drawbridge after William Lee Moore, beloved father, grandfather, great-grandfather, and friend, is the most meaningful gift Chincoteague can give back to a man who gave so much of himself for so many years,” said Willie Moore. "We trust that you will give this petition serious consideration and respond in a timely manner. We hope that William Lee's contributions to this community and the outpouring of support that the community has shown by initiating and circulating this petition, will lead to an easy decision and bring a resolution to fruition," he added.

“Is it important to our family, and I know it would be important to Dad that this request not start a debate or noise in the community,” Willie Moore continued. “We realize the causeway bears the name of John B. Whealton because of his vision and pursuit of building a road to connect the island with the mainland. We mean no disrespect to him or his family. I stand before you tonight representing those who cared for Dad enough to initiate and sign this petition to memorialize him.”

can't live at my house," the part time post office and part-time restaurant worker said. "I came here begging to (Scott and Linda Chessen). I can stay until Presidents' Day. I am homeless. I am 49 years old. I lost everything." She found accommodations for her dog with a friend.

Mardis spent all her savings to buy the house and move here from Pennsylvania. "I'm used to snow and ice. I'm not used to this stuff," she said. She has paid her flood insurance premiums but said the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) isn't anteing up. Mardis said one agency representative told her, "'I can't do anything for you.' Tough luck is basically what he said ... I'm just learning about all this stuff ... my premiums are paid, who's getting all the ... money?"

"I don't understand why you pay and can't get it to kick in," she said. She asked Town Council to help. The mayor and building official told her they would write a letter to FEMA. "It gives me a little bit of hope," she said. "The community has been unbelievable and caring. But I need the money to kick in."

Officials agreed that there could be hold-ups because the island wasn't declared a disaster area and her house is in a flood zone. "Get her in a future program to lift that house up high enough so it won't flood again," said Councilman John Howard.

"I know I bought a lemon," Mardis said, admitting she became aware of some problems right before the final papers on the sale of her house were signed. "I couldn't afford to lose the down payment," she said. She was told a drainpipe that was installed on Bunting Road would solve the problem.

"This time there were a lot of people who had been flooded out," said Joe Justice who owns rental units on Chicken City Road. He spent thousands to replace carpets of water in her garage. "I have crawdads crawling in the yard," Justice said. "You've got to have a backbone ... you've got to talk with" the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

"My vision is to develop a master plan ... rather than dealing with a spot approach of moving water from one place to another," Spurlock said.

"Something has to be done with the floodgates," said Councilwoman Nancy Conklin. The center of the island is having problems, too. She said there were six inches of water in her garage. "I have 12 to 15 inches of water around my house," said Councilman Terry Howard. "It's not much fun to see the Atlantic Ocean all around you."

"I think our approach is wrong," said Councilman Jim Frese. "What we have to do is go the political route ... in Washington. We're not the only place that's getting flooded." He said he would look for ideas.

In other business, Council sent its proposed wind energy ordinance back to the Planning Commission and Town Attorney Jon Poulson for further study. Concerns about specifying the turbines as special or conditional use and including mounted equipment were raised.

Town Council also passed a resolution of commendation for Supervisor Donald Hart. "He has earned the admiration and high regard of those with whom he has come into contact and the affection of his fellow public servants who are proud to call him 'friend,' " Mayor Jack Tarr read from a plaque presented to Hart. "His exceptional performance of the duties and responsibilities has not only earned respect throughout Accomack County but throughout each county of the Commonwealth of Virginia by his election as Chairman of the Virginia Association of Counties."
The flooding resulting from recent heavy rains serves to remind Virginia vehicle buyers to conduct a water-damage inspection before buying used or new vehicles.

“Nearly one out of every three car sales occurs directly between individuals,” said Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) Commissioner D.B. Smit. “I caution consumers who plan to purchase a vehicle to be aware of the possibility of water damage.”

The dangers of water-damaged cars are often hidden. Aside from mold and rust, electrical systems could erode and fail over time. Computer sensors could be damaged, and safety protections like air bags could fail in a crash.

If a motor vehicle has more than $1,000 in water damage, Virginia law requires the owner to notify DMV, even if the owner plans to keep driving the vehicle. Violators of this law face either jail time for up to one year, a fine of up to $2,500, or both. Also, if a water-damaged vehicle is re-sold and is later involved in a crash, the buyer could sue the seller if the water damage was not reported to DMV and it contributed to the crash.

While there is no sure method to test for vehicle flood damage, here are several inspection tips that may help detect significant water damage:

- Examine the interior and the engine compartment for evidence of water and grit from suspected submersion.
- Check for recently shampooed carpet and check under the floorboard carpet for water residue or stain marks from evaporated water not related to air-conditioning pan leaks.
- Look for rusting on the inside of the car and under interior carpeting, and visually inspect all interior upholstery and door panels for evidence of fading.
- Check under the dashboard for dried mud and residue, and note any evidence of mold or a musty odor in the upholstery, carpet or trunk.
- Check for rust on screws in the console or other areas where water would normally not reach unless submerged.
- Check for mud or grit in alternator crevices, behind wiring harnesses and around the small recesses of starter motors, power steering pumps and relays.
- Complete a detailed inspection of the electrical wiring system, looking for rusted components, water residue or suspicious corrosion.
- Inspect the undercarriage or other components for evidence of rust and flaking metal that would not normally be associated with late model vehicles.

While these inspection suggestions will not detect flood damage in every case, they do provide some information to protect consumers from purchasing a vehicle damaged by floodwaters. If you are purchasing a vehicle that you suspect may have been damaged by flooding, consider having it inspected by a licensed mechanic.
Invasive Coastal Kudzu Banned on Eastern Shore

By Linda Cicoira

Virginia's Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (VDACS) has made the Beach Vitex quarantine permanent in Accomack and Northampton counties. The plant is also known as coastal kudzu.

Commissioner Todd P. Haymore said the same areas that were temporarily quarantined in October were cited and also include Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

“The Board's action to limit the spread of this highly invasive plant was very timely,” said Haymore. “Beach Vitex grows rapidly along dunes and shorelines, causing damage to these areas by crowding out native plants and threatening the habitats of various animals, including the endangered loggerhead sea turtle.”

The plant “is less effective than native grasses in controlling dune erosion and crowds out those native plants that are considered superior for dune stabilization,” said Haymore.

The quarantine restricts the movement of the plant itself, in any life stage, including roots, stems and seeds, as well as the movement of other regulated articles such as sand, soil or mulch known to contain any life stage of Beach Vitex.

“VDACS will continue to monitor this situation and work with localities and other partners to protect Virginia's coastal ecosystems,” said Haymore. “If warranted, the agency has the authority to expand the Beach Vitex quarantine as needed.”

The first confirmed finding of Beach Vitex in Virginia occurred in Norfolk in 2008, an announcement stated. Since then, it has been detected in other coastal sites in the state. Water currents to uninfested coastal areas could carry seeds and stems. The plant can reproduce easily from seeds and even the smallest pieces of broken stem, the statement continued.

Van Collides With Fire Truck

By Linda Cicoira

An Accomac woman was charged Monday with failure to yield the right of way to an emergency vehicle after attempting to pass and then colliding with a Parksley fire engine on its way to a fire.

Sgt. Michelle Cotten said the accident occurred at 7:13 a.m. on Lankford Highway. The fire truck had lights and sirens going. Firefighter Willie Kirkpatrick of Parksley was attempting to enter a driveway at 734 Church Hill Rd. when the 1996 Plymouth Voyager minivan driven by Venes Merilus of Accomac attempted to pass the emergency vehicle.

“The right front corner of the truck hit the left corner of the minivan,” Cotten said, adding there was minor damage to the fire engine.

Northampton Granted Assistance After Storm

Gov. Timothy M. Kaine has announced that President Obama has granted a request for federal assistance to specific state and local governments, including Northampton County, in the wake of November's nor'easter.

The declaration makes FEMA's Public Assistance Program available to cover eligible government and certain non-profit costs for damage to critical infrastructure, debris removal and related emergency services.

On Sept. 24, 2009, a three-judge panel in the Virginia Beach Circuit Court imposed a public reprimand with terms on local attorney Carl Herman Bundick for violating disciplinary rules that govern diligence and communication. The misconduct occurred in his representation in a divorce.

Exmore Council Considers Fate of Attack Dog

By Ron West

At their meeting Monday, Exmore Town Council learned of an alleged unprovoked attack on a resident by a dog on the north end of town.

Mamie Taylor reported that her mother had been severely injured by an untethered bulldog on Nov. 22 while walking near her home. Taylor showed graphic photos from the injuries as well as a video of the dog and urged Council to enact stronger animal ordinances for the town. Taylor said the dog has been impounded pending the outcome of a trial to be held Dec. 17 in Eastville.

Councilman Kenneth Carpenter noted his outrage that a town resident would have such an animal, as well as the owner’s blatant disregard for public safety by not having it penned.

Some councilmen noted the need to have stiffer animal control regulations for the town.

“Exmore will lead the way to show others how to get tough on vicious dogs,” said Carpenter. “The public needs to know that the Town of Exmore is serious about dog and leash ordinances.”

Following a discussion, Council voted to press for euthanization of the animal, and should that fail, have it barred from being kept in town.

In other business, Ruth Wise advised Council of progress by the New Road Community toward construction of a community center on Occohannock Neck Road. “We need to channel the energy of the young people in the community toward the positive,” said Wise. She said the proposed center would be approximately 10,000 square feet and would have meeting and breakout rooms. The New Road Community is talking with the U.S. Department of Agriculture to work on grants to help fund the structure.

Exmore Interim Town Manager Arthur Miles reported that the town is still working on obtaining the permits that are needed to allow golf carts to operate within the town and to cross streets with posted speed limits in excess of 25 miles per hour. Miles indicated that should the speed limit reduction being requested for streets on the north and south ends of town not be approved, he hopes to see two golf cart crossings approved.

Such crossings would allow golf cart users to legally move from one side of town to the other.

Miles offered a report on a recently held meeting concerning the possible expansion of the town’s wastewater system that could provide support for Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital in Nassawadox. He indicated that talks are ongoing among Nassawadox, Exmore, the hospital and the county. Councilman Dave Scanlan noted that such an arrangement would be a win-win situation and might help the county retain the hospital rather than see it relocate to Accomack County.

In other action, the town discussed the possible sale of property near Willis Wharf Road to the Eastern Shore Broadband Authority. The property is currently assessed at $10,000. The Broadband Authority needs the property to set up a structure to house a backup generator and equipment necessary to help connect the town to the broadband line that runs the length of the Shore. Council agreed to have Miles and representatives of the Broadband Authority reach an agreement on the actual property needed and then advertise for a public hearing on the possible sale of the site.

In a final action of the evening, Council approved a small Christmas bonus to town employees. While supporting the concept of a bonus, Scanlan had suggested that the town hold off on providing the funds for the bonus until the town is in a better fiscal position.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC OF AN APPLICATION BY DELMARVA POWER & LIGHT COMPANY FOR APPROVAL OF A TRANSMISSION LINE IN ACCOMACK COUNTY, VIRGINIA

CASE NO. PUE-2009-00106

On September 24, 2009, Delmarva Power and Light Company ("Delmarva" or "Company") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to construct and operate a 138 kV transmission line in Accomack County, Virginia. Prepared testimony, exhibits, copies of correspondence, and other material were attached to the application.

The Company proposes to install a 138 kV transmission line addition to the existing line and to operate the two lines as a double circuit 69 and 138 kV line ("Proposed Line") in order to prevent several projected contingency overloads. The Company will replace the existing poles with larger, weathering steel poles that can support both circuits on the same structure and will be placed in the approximate locations of the existing poles. The average height of the new poles above ground level will be approximately 75 feet, varying with the topography of the right-of-way ("ROW"). The desired in-service date is June 1, 2010. The estimated cost of the project is $3,500,000. A description of the proposed route appears in Ordering Paragraph (12) of this Order, and a map of the route may be found in Attachment I.E attached to the application. A description of the route for the proposed transmission line follows:

The proposed route, from Oak Hall Substation to Wattsville Substation, exits the east side of Oak Hall Substation and travels parallel to Withams Road for approximately one mile, before turning northeast and crossing Withams Road. After crossing Withams Road, the line stretches approximately 0.1 mile and turns back east before crossing Holland Road. The line continues east for approximately 0.35 mile before crossing Route 13, and approximately 0.6 mile after crossing Route 13. The line then heads southeast for approximately 1.2 miles and turns back northeast for approximately 0.4 mile before crossing Dream Road and Chincoteague Road, respectively. After crossing Chincoteague Road the line continues northeast for approximately 0.1 mile, then turns east for approximately 0.1 mile before reaching Wattsville Substation.

The Company’s application, Commission Orders, and all documents filed in Case No. PUE-2009-00106 may be inspected in the Commission’s Document Control Center, Office of the Clerk of the Commission, First Floor, Tyler Building, 1300 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia, during Commission business hours. The application, unofficial text of the Commission’s Orders, and other materials in Case No. PUE-2009-00106 may be viewed at the Commission’s website: www.scc.virginia.gov/case by clicking “Docket Search.”

This application and all exhibits, attachments and maps made a part hereof and the Commission’s Order for Notice and Hearing will be available for inspection at the following location:

Delmarva Power Bay Regional Office
2530 N. Salisbury Blvd
Salisbury, MD 21801
Attn: Calvin Williams

Comments may be submitted in writing, on or before March 16, 2010, to the Clerk, State Corporation Commission, c/o Document Control Center, P.O. Box 2118, Richmond, Virginia 23218-2118. Diskettes, compact disks, or any other form of electronic storage medium may not be filed with comments. All correspondence shall refer to Case No. PUE-2009-00106.
A second public hearing was conducted regarding a request for a zoning text change to allow solar energy projects. Lincoln Renewable Energy representative Joseph Jordan spoke of how the introduction of solar energy production could increase the tax base for the county by $800,000 to $1,000,000 per year. Granville Hogg urged the county to try to seek royalties for any such facilities built. Ralph Dodd urged the board not to make things too restrictive for businesses such as Lincoln to locate in the county. He noted that solar panels in a field are as good as no-till farming in that they don’t increase water runoff into local creeks. Following a brief discussion, the supervisors voted 4-2 (Walker and Murray voting no) to endorse the text change.

In other business, the board voted to establish a rental inspection program to help ensure that low-income housing is made more livable. The program will begin in Weirwood and Cheapside. Under the plan, landlords must have their property inspected by the county and fix any safety or health-related problems found. Should the landlord fail to make the needed repairs, the property would not be deemed livable.

Prior to recessing for the evening, the supervisors voted to support Planning Commission recommendations regarding zoning corrections for property in Exmore, requested by Charles Ames, and in Bridgetown, requested by Rev. Debbie Bryant of Shorter’s Chapel.

December is a glorious month for oh, so many reasons. Of course, there’s the birthday of Jesus Christ. Most Eastern Shore residents will gather with family and friends to worship at church services, exchange gifts, eat a big dinner, sing Christmas carols and count their blessings.

There’s also the Jewish holiday, Hanukkah, which starts tonight. The eight-day celebration marks a stride for religious freedom. Historians believe Jesus would have lit the menorah (a candelabrum with seven branches, one each for the days of creation) in accordance with the laws and customs of his community. In 167 B.C., Greco-Syrians were driven out of Judea (modern Israel), where they forced the Jews to worship Greek gods. Upon victory, there was only enough oil in the temple to keep the menorah burning for one night. Miraculously, the oil burned for eight days and eight nights, after which more oil became available.

Then there are the other historic days. Dec. 2 marks the day in 1865. Radio City Music Hall opened the coffee percolator on Dec. 26, 1903. James Mason invented the coffee percolator on Dec. 26, 1865. Radio City Music Hall opened Dec. 27, 1932, and chewing gum was patented on Dec. 28, 1869.

December also is filled with unusual celebrations like today’s National Noodle Ring Day. Tomorrow is Fünsietta Day and National Ding-a-Ling Day. Sunday is Ice Cream Day (I thought that was every day), and Violin Day. Dec. 15 is National Lemon Cupcake Day (Hint) and the next day is National Chocolate Covered Anything Day. Double-Dipped Yippee!! Look for an Evergreen Day and Oatmeal Muffin Day on my husband’s birthday on the 19th, Go Caroling Day on the 20th and Forefather’s Day and BAH Humbug, National Flashlight and Look on the Bright Side Day on the 21st.

Festivus (with the slogan for the rest of us) is the day that originated on “Seinfeld” on Dec. 23, although it aired on Dec. 18, 1997. The holiday, promoted by Kramer, was first celebrated somewhere in 1966. And let’s end the year with Make Up Your Mind Day. It’s almost time to make those New Year’s resolutions. Let me know what they are by emailing shoredog@verizon.net.

Dear Editor:
Collie Broad was often described as “having a big heart.” After her mother died of cancer, Collie helped to found Hospice Care of the Eastern Shore, a volunteer support Hospice which was the start of our current medical organization — Hospice and Palliative Care of the Eastern Shore, a community-based, non-profit organization that provides physical, social, emotional, and spiritual support for people with life-limiting illnesses.

In one of life’s ironies, Collie became a Hospice patient herself and died of congestive heart failure on Oct. 22, 2009.

At Hospice, we are deeply saddened by Col-
