Northampton Names New Superintendent

Dr. Walter R. Clemons has been named the new superintendent of Northampton County Public Schools, effective July 1, 2011. He replaces Dr. Richard J. Bowmester who is retiring after more than 31 years in public school education.

In making the announcement, School Board Chairman Dr. Richard L. Drury, stated, "The School Board initiated a national and diverse search for the new superintendent and we are extremely pleased that Dr. Clemons has accepted our offer. His background fits perfectly with our rural environment, size of school district, and the demographics of our public school students. The School Board worked tirelessly during the screening and interview processes these past few months and we are confident our selection of Dr. Clemons is indeed the right choice."

Clemons is a native of Smithfield, Va., and has worked in public education for over 21 years. He has worked in four school divisions: Isle of Wight County (Va.), Newport News City (Va.), Charlotte Mecklenburg (N.C.) and Franklin City (Va.). Clemons has served as teacher, assistant principal, and principal, and currently serves as assistant superintendent for human resources/administrative services for Franklin City Public Schools. While he served as principal of Franklin High School, the school was fully accredited by the Virginia Standards of Learning. While serving in his current position, the percentage of highly qualified teachers in that district increased from 86 percent to 99.7 percent. Clemons also has extensive knowledge in the areas of curriculum and instruction, budgeting and finance, policy and planning, and student services.

Clemons' educational background includes undergraduate and graduate degrees in Music Education from Norfolk State University, a Certificate of Advanced Study in Educational Administration from Old Dominion University, and a Ph.D. in Educational Leadership and Policy Studies from Virginia Tech.

Dr. Clemons is married to the former LaGuamna M. Salley of Portsmouth, Va., and they have one son, Walter R. Clemons II.

Gordy Will Seek Sixth Term as Accomack Supervisor

Accomack County Board of Supervisors Vice Chairwoman Laura Belle Gordy will seek re-election as a District 7 representative on that board in the November General Election.

The Onley resident said this week that she decided to run at the urging of many of her constituents. The four-time chairwoman of the panel is seeking a sixth four-year term. She took office for the first time in 1998 and served two terms. Then she was defeated by a narrow margin of 17 votes in 1995 and came back in 2000 to serve three more terms.

Gordy said among her accomplishments are getting convenience centers, seeing new schools constructed and helping the Eastern Shore Area Agency on Aging purchase its own building. She also has served during three redistricting processes.

Gordy also served on the Virginia Association of Counties’ Nominating Chair Committee and Conference Planning and Health and Human Resources Committee. She was appointed by the governor to serve on the Delmarva Advisory Council, the Virginia Marine Resources Commission and the Chesapeake Bay Governor’s Board.

She is a member of Temperanceville Eastern Star (past worthy matron), Onancock Emblem Club 195, Friends of Onancock School, Onancock Elks 1766, and Exmore Moose, and was past president of the Women’s Club of Accomack County, Delmarva Firemen’s Ladies’ Auxiliary, the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women and Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital Auxiliary. She also volunteered as manager of the hospital’s gift shop for many years and served as chairwoman of the hospital ball.

Gordy has two sons, four grandchildren, one great-grandchild and another great-grandchild on the way.

back, if the applicant’s business is water-dependent.

Chad Ballard and Hank Bowen spoke of the value of the industry to the county, including jobs and a source of tax income. Kelly Taylor, an employee and aquaculture investor, noted that she hates to see such a great industry restrained from growing.

Builder Steve Lawson spoke on the value of the aquafarming industry to related business owners such as he. “Not approving this request would be a detriment to the building industry,” he said.

Letters were introduced from area residents supporting the proposal.

While no speakers opposed the changes for the area of Willis Wharf, one speaker indicated that it should not apply to Oyster, the only other waterfront village on Northampton’s seaside.

The Planning Commission discussed the proposed changes at length. While generally supportive of the request to change lot size and setback requirements for Willis Wharf, there was opposition to approving it as written in that it also would apply to Oyster. Three additional related amendments to the Comprehensive Plan and the Zoning Ordinance were likewise placed in limbo as they applied to the aquafarming industry. In the end, the planners tabled the discussion and agreed to bring it back up at a future session.

Local Fund for Sick Children & Their Families Needs Help Itself

In 1996, Kristin Matthews, the 10-year-old daughter of Parkslay Volunteer Fire Company President Fred Matthews and his wife, Angie, was diagnosed with Ewing's Sarcoma, a moderately rare form of bone cancer affecting primarily teenagers.

Kristin received surgical treatment and chemotherapy at MCV in Richmond. Her treatment lasted approximately 18 months, during which her parents spent considerable time in Richmond. To help the family with expenses, such as travel, food, hotels, etc., Parkslay Volunteer Fire Company established the Kristin Matthews Fund. An auction was held and fire companies and citizens throughout Delmarva contributed funds to assist her family.

Following her treatment, there still were funds in the account. The Board of Directors for the fire company decided to maintain the fund as a tribute to Kristin and to assist other children and their families battling cancer. The directors later changed it to include children with severe medical conditions.

The fund is not for paying for medical care, but since most seriously ill children must be treated at facilities off the Shore, the fund is used to provide money for travel, food, tolls and, if necessary, hotel rooms.

Several families have been assisted by the fund, which is maintained by the fire company accountant. Decisions concerning the amount of assistance to be given are made by the fire company Board of Directors.

With the increasing costs of many things, the fund has become nearly depleted.

With this in mind, a 9-year-old has been diagnosed with lung cancer and is undergoing testing and treatment at Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters and in North Carolina.

On Saturday, May 21, a dinner and auction will be held at Parkslay Volunteer Fire Company to raise money for the Kristin Matthews Fund. The dinner will start at 5 p.m., catered by Annie's of Parkslay. The menu will include chicken and dumplings, pork loin, crab cakes, vegetables, rolls, dessert and beverages. The cost is $25. A live auction, conducted by Henry Nicholson Jr., will begin at 7 p.m. A silent auction will be held from 5 to 8:30 p.m.

Auction items include decoys, paintings and gift certificates. Everyone is welcome to donate an item to be auctioned. Cash donations also would be appreciated. Checks should be made payable to the Kristin Matthews Fund and mailed to Parkslay Volunteer Fire Company at P.O. Box 14, Parkslay, VA 23421.

For tickets, information or to donate an auction item, call 710-4398, 710-5557, 710-4201 or 710-9533.

On a happy note, Kristin has been cancer-free for 13 years and is now married with a 17-month-old daughter. Kristin teaches third grade with the Campbell County School System near Lynchburg.
WELL, BULLY FOR YOU!

By Linda Cicoira

For generations, a bully was depicted as the tough guy in the schoolyard who turned smaller kids upside down to steal the coins that rolled from their pockets. Nobody really associated the title with the merciless teasers from the popular crowd who left out and persecuted those they considered not as athletic, pretty or rich.

One way schools retaliated was by requiring students to wear uniforms. They also kept the “bad” boys and girls after school and banned designer tennis shoes to sent a note home to Mom or Dad. The latter usually took care of the problem because the wrath of one’s parents was worse than anything the system could dole out.

Modern technology has brought a new wave of bullying. Now the girls and boys are not only calling each other dirty names, but they are doing it through online social networks and text messages. The kids don’t have to wait for their turn at home to spread gossip via the family landline telephone. They have their own computers and cell phones and their fingers and voices are never still.

Peer pressure is tougher than ever. An e-mail survey conducted earlier this month by the Eastern Shore Post reminded adults of their old school days and brought out the new issues.

A local 15-year-old high-school sophomore was bullied in Grades 7, 8 and 9. “The students would call me names and it would be hurtful. I felt that I was the only one that they bullied... It would happen in every class and it hurt my grades tremendously. It made me not want to go to school.

Cell phones and networks also contribute, she wrote. “Many people they don’t even know will hear lies about them. The girl added. “Now that I am in high school I see a lot of people my age being bullied and I try to help stop the bullying, but that does not always help and it continues to go on. I have learned that you just need to ignore them and hope they move on. For me they have and my life is much better and my grades are very good. I do not have to worry about what my friends hear about me and I have even made a ‘truce’ with some of the people who did bully me.”

“Cell phones and social networks make everything more accessible,” wrote Wendy Hall, the reading coach and pre-K lead teacher at Occohannock Elementary School. “Whatever someone thinks comes up and out in a matter of minutes.”

She defined a bully as someone who feels “superior to someone else’s expense.” She said the major contribution is “lack of self-worth.” She deals with it by talking to the students and involving a counselor.

Another local teacher, described herself as “in my twenties.” She asked to remain anonymous and admitted that she was bullied as a student. “I was teased on the basis of not wearing cool clothes, being short, or being nice to people who were outcast. My entire eighth grade year was my own personal hell.”

She said bullying involves “verbally or physically harming someone regularly, on the basis of something that makes them different. I would even go as far as to say that it is sometimes intentionally seeking out differences for the sole purpose of pointing them out and using them as a reason to make fun of someone.”

Then add technology to the mix. “Anyone can post anything they want to online and there’s largely nothing anyone can do about it,” she said. “You literally have access to thousands of people at the push of a button. It’s kind of scary.”

“My students are all involved in it (bullying) in one way or another. There are some who can’t handle the idea of anyone picking on them, so they quickly find another child who is extremely vulnerable and gang up as many of their friends as they possibly can to join them.”

“Largely,” she wrote, “it’s either ignored by the adults involved or they don’t realize it’s going on in the first place... There are children who cry at home because they are so afraid to go to school. That shouldn’t happen. No child... should have to feel completely alone.

"As a teacher, it's always difficult to tell at first who are the bullies and who are the bullied. After a while, you start noticing a trend. One student is always left out or always in the bullying group. There's no black-and-white with it, ever. So many gray areas. I just have to keep in very close contact with parents: keeping them aware of what's going on, finding out about the child's home situation and other aggravating factors, and so on and so forth. Parents have to instill in their children from the beginning that it is absolutely NOT okay to push anyone around. Ever."

When 56-year-old Terry Bowling of Tasley was a child, she was "pushed down the basement stairs almost every day." She also was "pushed down on the playground" and "teased terribly about my parents being divorced." This happened in the first, second, third and fourth grades." Other girls were the bullies. "Never any of the boys. The boys never got involved to try to protect me or some other classmates that were bullied."

She defines a bully as "someone trying to take advantage of another person or getting amusement at someone else's expense. Trying to show that a person is better than another. I think in my case it was jealousy and the girl/girls that did that to me had a low self-esteem. Some of them just wanted to be mean and have a good laugh. They knew that I didn't have older sisters or brothers to take care of me either."

She said cell phones and social networks are contributing to the cause. "Other people are egged on and rumors are spread. ... and no one takes the blame for anything. They use other people as their scapegoats."

Albert Ayres, a former Accomack resident who lives in Princess Anne, Md., said he was bullied once in the third grade when "playground teasing turned physical. With this particular bully, it was just my turn in the barrel. He was always looking for someone to push around or rough up. I dealt with that immediately, remembering what my mom and grandmother taught me about defending myself."

Ayres said he "never had another problem with that bully or any other bullies. ... You have to teach people how to treat you." He blamed "poor parenting and self-esteem" for the issue. Ayres also said cell phone and social networks contribute by allowing "the bully to hide behind the keyboard. They would never say what they type directly to that person."

"Recently a person used verbal bullying to try to get his way on a construction project I was working on," a Melfa man said. "As I always have, I stood up to him and refused to be intimidated. In grade school, standing up to a bully meant learning how to fight. I learned how to fight well enough that the teachers would think I was the bully even if the person was twice my size."

"Faces of Bullying," will be the subject of a parent workshop during Accomack County Schools' First Annual Parent University from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, May 21, at Nansemond Middle School in Nansemond.

Man left for Dead; Three Charged

They allegedly beat the victim with a baseball bat, shot him in the arm and leg, robbed him, put him in the trunk of a car and then left him for dead in the woods.

Two Accomack 18-year-olds and a juvenile were arrested last week and charged with robbery, malicious wounding, abduction and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony in connection with the incident, which occurred near Parksley earlier this month.

Maj. Todd Godwin of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) and documents filed in Accomack General District Court identified the suspects as Lee Scott and Robert Lee Reagan and Kembre Devon Bailey of Tyler Lane. Both are being held in the Accomack County Jail without bond.

The victim was a 17-year-old male also was charged and is being held in the Norfolk Detention Center.

The officer did not identify the victim. However, warrants charging the suspects stated that the victim is John C. Sepe, 18, of Parksley.

At about 12:40 a.m. Sunday, April 17, ACSO was notified that a gunman victim had been found on Whites Neck Road. Godwin said further investigation found that the incident actually occurred during the late evening of April 16 in the John Cane Road area.

Investigator R.E. Drummond wrote in the court file that the victim “was transported to Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury, Md., with multiple injuries including gunshot wounds, broken bones and blunt trauma to the head area.”

Sepe said police left his home on Parsons Road in Greenbush to go to Royal Farms in Parksley at around 7:30 p.m. April 16. He said Sepe had talked to him, “waved” him over and while the two talked, “an unknown vehicle approached their location from the rear of Sepe’s vehicle. Two ... suspects approached Sepe’s 1998 Chevrolet four-door Blazer. Each armed with shotguns,” the document states.

The victim told police that he thought Weathers said, “We want all your money.” The victim was then forced from the vehicle, “beaten and shot with a shotgun at least two times,” according to court records, which also allege that Weathers “beat Sepe with a baseball bat he had retrieved from his vehicle ... Sepe was jumped into the trunk of a car and ... discarded in a wooded area, where he advised he played dead so the suspects would leave.”

Court records state Weathers has lived on the Shore for about eight years. He worked at Parksley for about two months. The file also states that Bailey allegedly “was not wearing a mask when committing the crime.” Bailey has lived in the area for four years and was working toward his GED.

Godwin said the victim’s vehicle was taken during the incident, but has since been recovered. “The victim in this case is still undergoing medical treatment for the injuries,” he added.

Preliminary hearings are set for June.

Community Notes

In honor of Earth Month, Keep Virginia Beautiful (KVB) awarded “30 Grants In 30 Days” in April. The Town of Nassawadox has been awarded a $1,000 grant in the Community Greening and Beautification Category. The KVB grant program focuses greater resources and attention on individual localities throughout the state and how they are addressing the issues of litter prevention, recycling, waste reduction, beautification and education. These grants are made possible by KVB’s partners, Wal-Mart and Waste Management.

Nassawadox has big plans for several area clean-ups, the addition of landscaping to the main entrance of the town, and planting native trees and shrubs along the Lankford Highway corridor.

Island motel owners don’t want the transient occupancy tax rate increased by the proposed 1 percent. In fact, they are against any tax hike.

Tommy Daisey of Dove Winds told Town Council and Mayor Jack Terry Monday night that the proposal is a bad idea. “My clientele consists of middle-income families,” he said. “They have a certain amount of money to spend on vacation. Just about everything has gone up... but not their salaries. These people are not money people.”

“We don’t want to kill the goose that laid the golden egg,” he continued. “This is no time in our country to raise taxes on anything. We need to tighten our belts. When I voted for you all, I thought I was getting conservatives... don’t become liberal spenders.”

Daisey complained that officials gave $5,000 to the library and another $5,000 to the Eastern Shore Tourism Commission. Of the latter, he said, “I’m willing to bet you that money is spent in Cape Charles. I don’t think we have a tax problem. We have a spending problem.”

Daisey also said the town is losing occupancy tax money from those who rent their houses and then don’t contribute. “That needs to be locked into,” he said.

“Tourism is our main industry,” said Richard Cunklin, another motel owner. “We just keep on taxing them to death... Expenditures need to be cut.”

Tarr said money from the increase (estimated at $100,000) is needed to start an Assateague Beach Replenishment Fund in case a storm in May or June damages parking spaces. A system would have to be set up to take tourists to the beach, he said.

“We go to every rental site we can find” to make sure permits are obtained and payments are made, the mayor added, referring to rental houses. “We know we’re not getting them all. But we try.”

In the end, Council voted to take the proposed fiscal 2011-12 budget and the transient occupancy tax to public hearing. Nothing else is set to increase.

Councilman John Howard voted against the occupancy tax increase being included in the documents.

Councilman Tripp Muth also said he is opposed to the increase. “My business is having a hard time,” he said. “It’s not a time to be imposing any kind of tax.”

Other Council members said they want to wait until after the hearing to decide. That session was set for 7 p.m. June 6 in Council Chambers.

Exmore Interim Town Manager Arthur Miles told Town Council this week that the FY 2012 budget needs to include an increase in wastewater rates to help offset operating costs for the town system. Miles proposes that the rates be raised by $4 per month. The current monthly minimum rate is $34. Miles noted that the minimum rate being discussed for the proposed regional system is in the area of $42 per month. Council discussed the matter, but did not make a decision.

In other business, Council strongly endorsed a request from David Kabler to support efforts to attract tourism to the town in connection with tall ship visit to area harbors. Kabler, who has sought and received similar support from other towns as well as the county, is working with other representatives from Hampton Roads to support OPSAIL 2012. The event will bring in excess of 100 tall ships and military vessels from around the world to a number ports. While Exmore has no harbor, it does have several hotels that are within easy driving distance of Cape Charles and could support travelers who might come to the area to visit the ships.

Donnie Kellam questioned Council on the legality of a commercial building being used as a meeting site for a church. Miles said the building in question is not zoned for that and the group will be made aware of it.
Johnsens Lauded for Philanthropy

Barbara and Steve Johnsen of Pun- goteague have earned the 2011 Chancellor's Award for Leadership in Philanthropy from the Virginia Community College System. The Johnsons were nominated for the award by Eastern Shore Community College. The award was given at a luncheon ceremony at the Country Club of Virginia on April 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnsen have been long-time supporters of ESCC and the ESCC Foundation, through their volunteer efforts and financially. Mrs. Johnsen served on the ESF Foundation Board of Directors for seven years, including two years as president. The Johnsons were a significant lead contributor in the college’s major gifts campaign several years ago, and they continue to support the various programs and activities of the college. Mrs. John- sen currently serves on the State Board for Community Colleges as well as the Virginia Foundation for Community College Education Board of Directors.

Adult Ed. Instructor Dies
Mr. William Charles (Bill) Duncil of Parksley died Tuesday, April 26, 2011, at the age of 67.

Born in Farmington, W.Va., he was the son of Charles Golden Duncil and Evelyn Dowdy Duncil. He attended elementary and high school in Farmington, graduating with the class of 1961. Mr. Duncil then joined the U.S. Navy, serving until 1970, after which he earned a bachelor's degree from Fairmont State College and a master's degree from West Virginia University.

Mr. Duncil was employed by the West Virginia Division of Corrections for 28 years, retiring in 1990 as the deputy commissioner for institutional operations. Following his retirement, he and his wife moved to the Eastern Shore of Virginia. In his retirement, Mr. Duncil was a teacher at Eastern Shore Community College in the Adult Education, GED program, where he was known to many of his students simply as Mr. Bill. He often was heard to say that teaching in the GED program was the most rewarding thing he had done in his entire life.

Mr. Duncil leaves to cherish his memory his wife, Jessica; son, Charles Duncil (and wife, Colleen) of Lemoore, Calif.; brother, Ronald (and wife, Joan) of Richmond, Va.; and several nieces, nephews, and loving friends.

A memorial service will be conducted Saturday, May 7, at 11 a.m. from Thornto Funeral Home in Parksley by Rev. Sam Welch. The family will receive friends tonight, May 6, from 6 to 8 and one hour prior to the service on Saturday at Thornto Funeral Home. A memorial service will be conducted in Farmington at a later date.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice and Palliative Care of the Eastern Shore, 165 Market St., Suite 3, Onancock, VA 23417. To express condolences or sign the guestbook, visit www.thorntonfuneralhome.net

Anne Nelson Bagwell

Mrs. Anne Virginia Nelson Bagwell, 85, passed away Wednesday, April 27, 2011.

A native and lifelong resident of Onancock, she was married to the late Isaiah William Bagwell III for 55 years. She was predeceased by her husband and parents, William Samuel Nelson Jr. and Mary Dryden Nelson. Mrs. Bagwell was educated at Hood College in Frederick, Md., and Columbia University in New York City. After working as a legal secretary, she became an officer of Bagwell Oil Company, her husband's fuel distribution business, serving as its secretary.

A lifelong member of Naomi Makeemie Presbyterian Church, she served at various times as an elder, a deacon and church treasurer. She was past president of the Garden Club of the Eastern Shore, and a member for more than 50 years. She was also a charter member of the Men's Club of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Historical Society and the Virginia Yacht Club, and a founding member of the Friday Night Group, a group of friends who got together on Friday nights for more than 20 years.

In addition to gardening, she and her husband enjoyed boating on the Chesapeake Bay and Intra-coastal Waterway. In later years, they were able to travel extensively. Mrs. Bagwell served as treasurer for a women's investment club for many years. She was an avid reader and enjoyed solving crossword puzzles and playing card games with her grandchildren.

Mrs. Bagwell is survived by her children, Linda Bagwell Custis (and husband, Henry), Isaiah William Bagwell IV (and wife, Claudia), all of Onancock, and Jean Bagwell Styer (and husband, Bruce) of Glen Allen, Va.; grandchildren, Anne Taylor Custis of New York City, Nell Custis Mitchell (and husband, Bill) of Atlanta, Ga., Anna Turner Bagwell of Onancock, Isaiah William Bagwell V of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., William Daniel Styer of Rochester, N.Y., and Nathan Samuel Styer, of Richmond; great-grandson, Henry Stair Mitchell; cousin, Lovey Jane Long; and several nieces and nephews.

A private family burial was held at Fairview Lawn Cemetery in Onancock, followed by a memorial service at Naomi Makeemie Presbyterian Church in Onancock on Saturday, April 30.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of the Eastern Shore, 165 Market St., Suite 3; Naomi Makeemie Presbyterian Church, P.O. Box 397, or Onancock Volunteer Fire Department, P.O. Box 28, all in Onancock, VA 23417. Memory tributes may be shared at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com

Arrangements were made by Williams-Onancock Funeral Home.

Ex-County Employee Dies

Mr. Ivan "Lee" Ruark, 53, of Accomac passed away Friday, April 29, 2011, at his residence.

Born in Nassawadox, he was a son of the late Henry Farkum and Helen Jones Ruark. Mr. Ruark was a former employee of Accomac County Public Works Department, and a heavy equipment operator.

Survivors include his significant other, Linda Moet; daughter, Denise Johnson (and husband, David) of Southside Chesonnaess; sisters, Betty Coloma (and husband, Robert) of Parksley, Teresa Horn and Melissa Bullock, both of Federalsburg, Md.; brothers, Robert L. Ruark of Miami, Fla., and Keith Farkum of Hurlock, Md.; grandchildren, Max, Jenna and Emily; sister-in-law, Mary Alice Finney; several nieces and nephews; and his precious little girl, "Lady."

A memorial service was conducted from Hollies Baptist Church in Keller Tuesday, May 3, by Rev. Joe McEntire.

Memorial donations may be made to Hollies Baptist Church, P.O. Box 7, Keller, VA 23401. Memory tributes may be shared with the family at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com

Arrangements were made by Williams-Parksley Funeral Home.

Onancock Resident Dies

Col. David Gillies Roberts II, 82, husband of Dayl H. Reid-Roberts of Onancock, formerly of Bethesda, Md., passed away at his residence Sunday, May 1, 2011.

By Linda Cicotra

In the 12th century, a church promised a side of bacon to any married man who could swear that he had not fought with his wife for a year and a day. It was that hard work and not the usual labors associated with a paycheck from which the term "bring home the bacon" originated.

Am I reporting this trivia because I think I should claim my pork product? Hardly. Ditto for my husband. Some would call us fussy by nature. We have some so-called friends who refer to us by the names of a television series couple that I wouldn't mention if I were tortured. Go ahead and guess. I'm not telling.

We're not much on giving gifts to each other for wedding anniversaries either. The next such holiday is in September. It will be the 22nd milestone of our marital bliss. On this occasion, I will have a bone to pick with tradition. There isn't any. After that many years, I would think someone somewhere would list a gift suggestion.

Oh, yeah, a "modern" list calls for copper. So beware, the husband and I may have a penny war in our front yard. Hundreds of years from now, someone with a metal detector will wonder why there are little coins all over the yard.

Anyway, back to the subject. Once a couple hits the 15-year anniversary mark, they must wait every five years to be listed for a "traditional" present. There is something very wrong with that. I'm waiting for my letter from the president, our state senators and all the local leaders. Actually, I was waiting for that in October of 1998 when I checked the calendar after one month. Just kidding, Lloyd.

Everyone knows what I mean. Those who have managed to stay devoted to one another for 25 years are awarded with silver. Those with 30 years behind them get pearls, etc. I find it hilarious that the modern list doesn't skip around until it gets to 50 years. And a woman (whom I call a saint) who is married for 100 years gets a 10-carat diamond. Will I live to be 128? Yeah, right. I'll be lucky to get a good book to read on my 47th anniversary. There's a hint in there somewhere. Oh wait, the 44th anniversary is celebrated with groceries. Lloyd, are you going shopping for generic items again?

I love that man. And he loves a bargain. But please, no store-brand toilet paper or ketchup, turn off the porch lights and put your aspirin bottle back in the cabinet and I'll promise to close doors, put my plate in the dishwasher and watch mindless action films. Oh, and by the way, remember when you said I wouldn't use my exercise machine for more than eight weeks? You owe me $5.

Please Allow Us To 'Sound' Off

It's all about the systems. Sometimes it's a sound system. Other times it's the heating/air-conditioning system. It even can be students in an upstairs classroom. And beyond all that it's the way our leaders choose to get things done.

While Accomack's Board of Supervisors has had its problems with its sound system during meetings, in the case of Onancock Town Council, it's all of the above.

"I motion that we" BUZZ CRACKLE "why don't we let the public tell us" BUZZ CRACKLE BUZZ "we can't hear you."

That is a town council meeting at work.

Last week with a gallery full of citizens, the town leaders didn't wait for the system to quiet down. They just plunged ahead, giving the impression that they didn't want to be heard. Council was repeatedly told by constituents that something needed to be done to alleviate the problem. But nothing was.

Maybe, it was because they couldn't hear each other? Oh but wait. They could. Or at least they must have because they were able to get irate with one another. That's when their voices seemed to finally rise to an acceptable level.

Then there was the sound of the air-conditioning kicking in. It was a welcome relief to the hot day. Still, it was sporadic and quite noisy.

Teenagers could perhaps use the combination of cooling system and cracking microphones to make music and send their parents into orbit.

No one had any problems hearing the former mayor who spoke from the back of the room.

One resident's unsolicited comment stated it clearly. "As to the static, their apparatus is flawed in every way. How does the Board of Supervisors do their live streaming? While that audio also leaves much to be desired, at least the Web site permits users to listen to the meetings in the comfort of their homes instead of the suffocating town hall."

Still, count your blessings. During this session there wasn't a karate class going on upstairs. Then it would have been BOOM BUZZ CRACKLE or CRACKLE BUZZ BUZZ or BOOM CRACKLE BUZZ or BUZZ CRACKLE BOOM or even BUZZ BOOM CRACKLE.

Learn Barrier Island History

Dear Editor:

In a recent trip "home" to the Shore (born in Accomac, grew up there, left in 79), my family decided to help celebrate my father's 85th birthday by spending an hour or two at the Barrier Islands Center on Route 13 near Machipongo. My dad is a history buff/farmer/waterman, so we thought he'd enjoy a narrated tour at the BIC, which happened upon a few months ago. We were all in for a real treat.

Our group's ages ranged from my son, who is 17, to my mom and dad, 85, so we weren't necessarily an easy-to-please bunch. The word "guide" does not do Jerry Doughty justice. That man is the Shore version of a national treasure. He entertained us with fascinating facts and stories on all three levels of that building and its contents. Shore blood runs strong in me and I thought I knew a lot of the area's history, but I was floored by the wealth of knowledge in that man.

It seems presumptuous of me to suggest that people go there if they haven't, since I have lived off the Shore for the last 32 years, but I would strongly recommend it to anyone living on or off that precious peninsula.

A warm welcome from Laura Vaughn and the intriguing history of the barrier islands as presented by the knowledgeable staff is a wonderful way to spend a morning or afternoon.

Ann P. Aleo, Spotsylvania, Va.
