It’s a time-honored tradition to walk the water’s edge, lost in thought as the waves lash against the sand, heaving their daily offerings onto the shore.

The thrill of discovering what is waiting on the beach is enough to compel beachgoers out of bed in the morning, and with 36 miles of beach in the Assateague Island National Seashore, there’s plenty of coastline to explore.

We asked readers about their best beachcombing finds and they did not disappoint.

“One day as I was walking down the beach of Assateague, I was wading in the water and I was grabbing whatever the ocean handed me in the waves,” said Emily Guemple, of Parksley. Handful after handful yielded only sand and broken shells and she was ready to return home, when “that last wave

Chincoteague Bay Field Station received a $25,000 grant from the Eastern Shore of Virginia Community Foundation to support the upgrade and expansion of its transportation fleet.

The grant allowed for the purchase of two used school buses and a used vehicle for the outreach program. A dedicated outreach vehicle will allow the field station to increase programs at local schools, community centers, and events. Specifically, the vehicle will allow the field station to expand its Shore People Advancing Readiness for Knowledge (SPARK) after-school program into Kegotank, Accawmacke, and Pungoteague elementary schools.

Alverne W. Chesterfield, executive director, expressed his appreciation to the community foundation for selecting the Chesapeake Bay Field Station for the grant, saying, “This grant will allow CBFS to enhance its fleet and expand programs and activities offered at CBFS and the surrounding community. The funds provided will have a great impact on our ability to better serve our community.”

“The Eastern Shore of Virginia Community Foundation is a permanent charitable endowment that provides grants to the nonprofits in our community,” said foundation director Julie Badger. “The Chincoteague Bay Field Station’s grant to upgrade and expand its program vehicles matched our grant mission of supporting Eastern Shore organizations that provide services to our community that help it grow over the long term. We are delighted to assist the field station meet their educational, environmental, and community service goals and wish them continued success.”

handed over (the) treasure." At first it wasn't clear she was holding anything special, "but I saw two eye sockets and then two nostrils. ... This thing started looking more and more like a baby dragon skull." Through her research she determined it was a prehistoric sea robin skull that had petrified. A sea robin is a bottom-feeding fish that gets its name from the large pectoral fins which, when in use, resemble a flying bird.

"There are always things washing up here," said Heather McDaniel, lead seasonal interpretive park ranger at Assateague National Seashore. Many variables affect what a beachcomber might find on any given day. "It depends on how far you walk and how slowly you walk," she said. Storms also play a role because "storms dislodge things."

The migratory nature of barrier islands is a factor as well. "Assateague is constantly rolling over itself," said McDaniel, burying what was once visible and uncovering what was buried.

Kimberly Blackwelder, of Landenberg, Pa., has spent many summers on the Assateague beach. She has been visiting Chincoteague since first grade and was married at the Channel Bass Inn in 2009.

Blackwelder recounts the time she floated out in an inner tube "because I could see the sun reflecting off of something." Her parents waved from the shore for her to come back, but "I was determined to see what it was."

What she found was a bottle with a note inside. "My family had a great time opening the bottle and reading the message. I no longer remember what it said, but I have great memories of carrying that bottle back to shore," she said.

Faith Sturgis, of Painter, found something valuable in the sand the summer before her high school senior year. "I was on the beach and just sitting on my towel talking," she said. "I reached my hand in the sand and felt something. It was a class ring." She and her grandmother located and called the school depicted on the ring (at a time before Google) and the school's guidance department helped them get in touch with the young man who had it.

"He said that he and his friends looked for a couple of hours." She mailed it back to him. "He sent me some money for finding his ring, but I sent it back," said Sturgis. "We ended up corresponding during my senior year and guess who showed up to my graduation? Yep, you guessed it!"

Others, like Linda Hess, find beauty in the natural features like shells and driftwood. "I found a beautiful piece of driftwood with a natural cross in the wood," she said. "I had it painted with 'Be still and know that I am God.'"

"Everything washes up here at some point," McDaniel said. Last year, lifeguards found an entire whale vertebrae in the surf and dragged it to shore, stash-ing it under the guards’ chairs. “They educated people about it for a day or so” before taking it to the visitor center. Mammal remains, like the whale vertebrae, are completely off limits for taking from the national seashore.

More common discoveries for beachcombers are “lots of different shells,” egg casings, fish bones, fishing tackle, and jellyfish. “If people have questions about what they have found, they are welcome to come in to the visitor center,” said McDaniel.

One gallon of “unoccupied shells” per person per day may be taken from the beach, so be sure to check shells for snails and hermit crabs or other critters who might have made the shells their home.

“If you take the time to look, you can find some cool stuff,” said McDaniel.

Some say their best finds are not tangible: they are memories of meaningful moments.

“Last time I was there (years and years ago) there was a storm offshore and some dolphins were swimming close to shore,” said Doug Kerins, who now lives in Texas. “That was a super day.”

Denise Brown, of Greenbackville, had a similar experience last fall. She had walked north on the beach to find a quiet spot to sit and enjoy the sea. “I noticed dolphins playing,” she said. “They were fairly close to the shore and the waves were high. All of a sudden three of them ride the wave in. They were actually inside the wave curl.”

She was unable to get her phone out in time to record the moment, but it is one she won’t forget. “It was incredible!”

Beach Paws Photography had a hard time choosing and submitted several images as favorites, including a seal and beached sturgeon (both on Page 4).

Other intangibles mentioned were peace and tranquility.

“Riding down the beach with the ponies walking in the surf beside me, that’s what I found to be extra special to me,” said Roy Ballard, of Exmore.

Perhaps the greatest finds were made not by those looking down for treasure cast upon the shore, but looking up to find their prizes already gazing toward them.

Keith Underhill, who grew up on the Shore but now lives in Texas, said “the love of a beautiful woman” was the best thing he ever found on the beach at Assateague.

Troy Jean, of Suffolk, shared a similar sentiment. He was married there last June 30.

“My wife,” he said, “by far is the best thing I ever found anywhere.”
Safe Cycling
On Chincoteague

By Connie Morrison

During tourism season, Chincoteague’s population swells with visitors seeing the sights, which means more vehicles of every kind are on the road, including bicycles. They are a fun way to explore the island and a great family activity, but nothing can ruin a fun trip like an accident or injury.

To assist cyclists, the Chincoteague Police Department has published a map with recommended routes based on traffic volumes and road features, and scenic routes. The map can be found online at https://chincoteague-va.gov/files/BIKEMAP2.pdf

In some areas, bike lanes and shared-use paths provide an alternative to riding in the travel lane. A dedicated bike lane runs along Maddox Boulevard from Deep Hole Road to the Museum of Chincoteague where the shared-use bicycle/pedestrian path to the wildlife refuge begins. A shared-use path also follows Deep Hole Road from the intersection with Maddox Boulevard to Hallie Whealton Smith Drive. More information about Virginia’s bicycle facility inventory can be found at http://www.virginiadot.org/programs/bikoped/maps.asp

For safety’s sake, bicyclists must not carry articles which prevent them from keeping at least one hand on the handlebars and must not carry more people than the bicycle is designed to accommodate, except for adult bicyclists carrying a child under six years of age securely attached to the bicycle in a seat or trailer designed to carry children. Also, bicyclists may not attach themselves or their bicycles to any other vehicle on the roadway, nor are they permitted to wear earphones in both ears while riding a bicycle.

If a bicycle is operating on the roadway, it is considered a vehicle under the code of Virginia and has the same rights and duties as other vehicles. Some of those are to move in the same direction as traffic, stop at stop signs and signals, signal for turns, and yield to pedestrians in crosswalks.

Bicyclists on sidewalks, shared-use paths, and crosswalks have all the rights and duties of pedestrians under the same circumstance. If crossing highways at clearly marked crosswalks, they must come to a complete stop at stop signs prior to entering such crosswalk. If there isn’t a stop sign or other signal, they aren’t required to stop, but cannot disregard oncoming traffic.

Even though cyclists have to obey all signals, under certain circumstances bicyclists, motorcycles, and mopeds may proceed through a proceed through a nonresponsive solid red light at an intersection, but only if the driver or rider:

- Comes to a full stop at the intersection for two complete cycles of the traffic light or for two minutes, whichever is shorter.
- Exercises due care as provided by law.
- Otherwise treats the traffic control device as a stop sign.
- Determines that it is safe to proceed.
- Yields the right of way to the driver of any vehicle approaching on such other highway from either direction.

There are also stipulations about where bicyclists can ride:

- Ride with the flow of traffic on the right side of the highway.
- If operating on a roadway at less than the normal speed of traffic, ride as close as safely practicable to the right curb or edge of roadway.
- Exceptions to this are when overtaking and passing another vehicle in the same direction, preparing for a left turn, avoiding unsafe conditions, avoiding riding in a lane that turns or diverges to the right, riding on a one-way street where bicyclists may ride near the left-hand curb or edge of roadway, or when the lane width is too narrow to share with a motor vehicle.
- Bicycles are not excluded from riding on the highway shoulder.
- Do not ride between two lanes of Bicycling Map of Chincoteague

Traffic moving in the same direction unless one lane is a separate or mandatory turn lane.
- Do not ride more than two abreast on highways. When riding two abreast, bicyclists cannot impede the movement of traffic and need to move into a single file when being overtaken from the rear. On a laned roadway, bicyclists shall ride in a single lane.
- Bicycles may be ridden on sidewalks unless prohibited by local ordinance or traffic control devices. While on sidewalks and shared-use paths, bicyclists must always yield the right of way to pedestrians and give an audible signal before passing a pedestrian.
- Bicyclists pulling onto a sidewalk or highway from a driveway must yield the right of way to pedestrians or vehicles already on the sidewalk or highway.

Yellowfin tuna offshore and cobia in the lower Chesapeake Bay have highlighted the angling action over the last week as the recent run of nice weather has pleased both anglers and tackle shop operators. One tackle shop reported that every boat they were aware of which ventured offshore to the canyons was rewarded with catches of yellowfins. Cobia remain abundant in the lower bay, but anglers are having to work to find keeper-sized fish.

Lower Shore — Mark Snook at Chris’ Bait & Tackle reported there were plenty of cobia to be found in the area between Cape Charles and the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Small spadefish were being caught around the bridge-tunnel’s fourth island. The fantastic run of red drum seems to have slowed down a bit, but a few small black drum remain in the surf of the lower barrier islands. Croaker catches of up to a half cooler full were being made out of Oyster. Latimer Shoals was producing catches of sea mullet.

Jeb Brady at Bailey’s Bait & Tackle reported there has been “some really good cobia action with anglers having some really good days, but lots of shorts.” He cited the area around buoy 36-A as well as the shoals along the bridge-tunnel as productive locations for cobia. Flounder action was still going on in the “Ditch.”

Wachapreague — Captain Lindsay Paul at Trident Tackle reported that anglers had “a pretty decent weekend” out of Wachapreague. Flounder anglers were finding a few more keepers for their efforts, although there were still plenty of throwbacks. Croakers have arrived, but they are small in size. Captain Paul said that offshore anglers were finding yellowfin tuna in the Washington Canyon, as well as in Bob’s Canyon. A few dolphin (mahi) and even a couple of makos were included in the catches. One of the makos was caught while trolling for tuna, the other was caught while shark fishing along the 20 fathom line. False albacore were “everywhere” from the canyons inshore to the Hills.

Chincoteague — Donna Rae at Captain Bob’s Marina reported that fishing over Blackfish Banks really heated up over the weekend with flounder in the 22- to 24-inch range. Black sea bass, spadefish, and triggerfish rounded out the catches. Offshore, bigeye tuna and large yellowfin tuna catches came in from the Washington and the Poor Man’s canyons. Shark action was on the increase as three-foot-long Atlantic finetooth shark catches were reported. A nice-sized sand tiger was caught and released in the Assateague surf. Croakers measuring 8- to 12-inches, 13- to 14-inch kingfish/whiting, and mostly throwback flounder dominated the action on the inside. Small cobia catches were reported from the Chincoteague Channel in front of the Waterside Inn.

Jimmy Vasilou at Captain Steve’s Bait and Tackle reported that the Rumer Has It won the Frederick Tuna Tournament held last weekend with a 79-pound, 3-ounce bigeye tuna that was caught by Terry Conrad. The shop also weighed in a 177-pound bluefin tuna caught in the Poor Man’s Canyon over the weekend for Robert Dobart. The Huntress had a limit of three cobia, one of which ventured offshore to the canyons, while catches of spadefish, gray triggerfish and a few keeper seabass were being made over some of the inshore wrecks. A 7-foot sandtiger was released by a surf fisherman. Kingfish/whiting and sharks comprised most of the catches being made by surf fishermen. Pinhead croakers were starting to show up, with action reported from the dock at Robert Reed Park as well as in Deep Hole. A few keeper flounder are still around and Bob Miller stopped by the shop with three nice flatfish. A 3-pound, 2-ounce largemouth bass took first place in a recent tournament held at the Wallops Mill Pond.

Upper Shore — Captain Matt Abell reported that the big fishing news centered on the yellowfin tuna bite. Matt reported that everybody caught tuna along with a few dolphin/mahi. Steve Shumaker had a large blue marlin release in the Washington Canyon. Catches of triggers and spadefish were reported from the wrecks and large flounder were caught along the rail cars out of Chincoteague. The best flounder action that was reported came from Wachapreague, where a total of nine keeper fish were made by a three-person fishing party. Brian Sheats and sons had a catch of three cobia, one of which was a keeper, in the lower bay. Bottom fishing in Pocomoke Sound was slow, with only a few kingfish catches reported.

There’s something for everyone at the Chincoteague Cultural Alliance’s Community Center for the Arts, 6309 Church St.

On Saturday, June 23, the Island Farmers and Artisans Market, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., offers food from farm, field, and bay, plus quality arts and crafts. Fresh seafood, meats, eggs, produce, baked goods, smoothies, plants, soaps, jewelry, photographs, and much more can be found along with live music and Captain E’s food truck. The market continues every Wednesday and Saturday.

Also on Saturday at 7 p.m., the winners of CCA’s 15th Anniversary Photo Contest will be on display, and some of the winning photographers will present slide shows of their 20 favorite shots of Chincoteague and Assateague on the big screen. There were so many great photos among the 200 entered that, in addition to Best in Show, First Prize in four categories, and 11 Honorable Mentions, the judges awarded another 16 photos “Best of the Rest.” See them all, meet the photographers, and enjoy light refreshments.

CCA's free summer cinema series begins on Monday, June 25, at 8:30 p.m. in Robert Reed Park. Enjoy the science fiction epic “The Fifth Element” in which a cab driver and ex-military hero unwittingly becomes the central figure in the search for a legendary cosmic weapon to keep Evil and Mr. Zorg at bay. The movie stars Bruce Willis, Milla Jovovich, Gary Oldman, Chris Tucker, and Ian Holm. It is rated PG-13. Bring a chair or blanket. Popcorn and cold drinks will be available at old-fashioned prices. “Monday Movies” continues every other Monday through August.

On Friday, June 29, back at 6309 Church St., it’s the Story Swap, storytelling for adults by adults. This month’s theme is “Road Trips.” Professional and experienced storytellers will tell their tales, and audience members are invited to share theirs. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. and program begins at 7. Admission and refreshments are free.

Throughout the summer, CCA is offering an array of classes in all things creative, including jewelry making on Sunday, June 24, from 1 to 4 p.m. Artist Kim Reyes will instruct students on beading and other jewelry making techniques. Students will complete and bring home their creations that same day. The cost is $35 including all supplies. Pre-registration is required online at www.ChincoteagueCulturalAlliance.org or at Sundial Books (cash or check only). Check the website for details of other classes in painting, turning gourds into art, guitar for adult beginners, and pickling vegetables. At a special weekend painting retreat Aug. 17-19, Nancy Richards West will help artists “Conquer Your Fear of Oils.” Like most classes, the retreat is limited to a small number of students so early registration is encouraged.

Chincoteague Cultural Alliance Serves Summer Interests

This photo by Carol Ward won “Best in Show” in CCA’s 15th Anniversary Photo Contest. It was selected from among 20 entered. On June 23, at 7 p.m., it will be on display, along with winners in four categories. Winners will present slide shows of their 20 favorite shots of Chincoteague and Assateague on the big screen.

This nearsighted Knife Thrower is lucky to hit one out of three tries at popping balloons. Can you figure out which was the lucky toss?

DON’T “WIPE OUT” ON THIS ONE!

Let’s “see” what you know about the “sea.” Above is a stack of eight words, each of which contains the word “sea.” Using the following hints, try to sail home safely in five minutes or less.

1. Part of a pant leg.
2. Result of overheating.
3. A Navy carpenter.
4. To add salt and pepper.
5. To remove from office.
6. A weather protector.
7. A chair for two.
8. An egotistical, self-assured person.

A GIDDYAP GUESSER! A lone cowpoke ambled into Dodge City on Friday, stayed at Ma Bindles boardinghouse for two days, and then ambled back out of town on Friday. That’s a mighty short week. How did he do it?

Answer: "Giddyap, his horse is named, flyby." (CDM: Howl, also saw:
