Welcome to the Manna Cafe

Hannah Ferrell and Harmony Meekins, both ninth grade students at Chincoteague High School, prepare hot dog buns for the weekly meal at the Manna Cafe on Chincoteague Island. The cafe welcomes anyone who wants to come for a free weekly meal and is averaging about 350 guests each week in the dining hall and 40-45 delivered meals. Get the full story, beginning on page 4, and meet the volunteer crew that turns up each week to prepare hot meals for neighbors, friends, and new friends, because as a Hitching Post reporter found, no one is a stranger at the Manna Cafe.
They Ride Bicycle Broncos at This Rodeo

The June 2 bicycle rodeo sponsored by the Chincoteague Police Department drew more than a dozen participants to demonstrate their skills. The rodeo’s objective is to teach kids bicycle safety. All participants were provided free bike helmets, and rodeo winners took home new bicycles as well.

Manna Cafe’s Mission To Feed the Hungry Becomes Ministry That Feeds the Heart of an Island

Story and Photos by Connie Morrison

In the Bible, manna is the miracle food God sent the wandering Israelites. It might be a stretch to call the food served by Chincoteague’s Manna Cafe miraculous, but the ministry, which offers a free meal open to everyone in the fellowship hall of Chincoteague’s Christ United Methodist Church every Monday from 11 a.m - 1 p.m., is based on biblical principles for its success.

The cafe feeds more than 400 each week. Most would find that overwhelming, but cafe founders Bill and Fran Lytle cut their teeth on a feeding ministry in Princeton, N.J., their home before moving to Chincoteague 10 years ago.

Fran Lytle cited two biblical principles. The first is to help those who cannot repay you. The second is to use your talents. “God gives every one of us gifts,” she said. “Bill and I have gifts for hospitality.”

“We had the skill set,” she continued, “the managing, shopping, cooking,” and the couple knew there were food insecure people on the island, so with a cadre of core volunteers, they began their food ministry. Bill Lytle is the head chef and Fran Lytle is the director. Sixteen people turned up to eat the first week in January 2017.

With some publicity it started to grow and to draw not only those who needed food but those in need of connection and conversation, including “the elderly, who can become lonely or isolated,” Fran Lytle said. Donations have been plentiful and sponsors have kicked in for entire meals. The June 4 meal was sponsored by Taylor Bank.

The Lytles, branding consultants by trade, re-packaged the cafe’s message to “everyone is welcome,” and soon everyone was there. By the summer of 2017, more than 300 guests were joining the weekly meals, and they are closing in on 400 in the hall and more than 40 meals delivered each week.

It is so much more than a meal, says Fran Lytle. Senior citizens greet friends and make new ones. Island visitors come to hear stories from local residents. “It evolved based on the actual needs of the people on the island,” she said. One of the volunteers said it’s like the TV show “Cheers.”

“Without beer,” Lytle quipped.

“It’s a nice place for senior citizens,” said Susan Jester who was dining at the cafe recently. Donald Jester said he enjoys making new friends. “Everyone is so gentle,” he said.

A nice side benefit of everyone dining together is it’s hard to know who is there out of necessity, so there is no stigma attached to dining at the Manna Cafe. “I think it makes everyone more comfortable,” said volunteer Valerie Tolbert.

From 9 until about 10:30 a.m. kitchen volunteers are busy readying the day’s meal, servers are bustling to prepare their stations, a two-person cleanup team is at the ready for quick dish turnaround, and a group of committed volunteer drivers is staging to package meals to be taken to homebound residents.

The menu was hot dogs, chili, sauerkraut, baked beans, salad, watermelon, desserts, and beverages. In the dining hall, 383 guests were served. Forty-four meals were taken to homebound neighbors.

Each week tables along sidewalls invite guests to select a food or personal care item to take home. In the back of the room is the Loving Hearts and Hands table, where guests can purchase items for “any amount or no amount at all,” Lytle said. Volunteer Joyce Westberry started the tables after bringing in a few items she made and putting them on the “take one” tables. She noticed they went quickly and thought maybe lunch guests would like the chance to find inexpensive items for their homes or family members. The informal shop has proven very popular. “As soon as they walk in the door they come right back,” she said.

Some volunteers have been with the Lytles since the beginning, and others cycle in and out, but one thing is clear: being at the cafe is a joyful experience. “Everyone is happy. I don’t think I’ve seen a grumpy face since we started,” said Barbara Mason. “They walk in the door and they’re looking for us.”

“We don’t want to miss it,” added Marjorie Hiob, another volunteer.

The volunteers get to know the guests by name, and ask about their family members who usually come along if they don’t see them, said Lytle.

The meal delivery drivers, from St. Andrews Catholic Church, also look out for the people on their meal routes. “I’m very attached to these people,” said Amy Jo Krystek, many of whom can’t come to the door for their meals. In some cases the drivers are their best links to the outside world, reporting back when assistance is required or taking winter coats when needed.

The Manna Cafe has fans far and wide. “The generosity and compassion shown by the people of this little island is what drew me in on my first visit over 20 years ago,” commented Elizabeth Wray, of Pulaski, Va. “Manna Cafe is a perfect example of what can be done with a little effort and a lot of love!”

Wray’s comments were left on Facebook in response to a nomination of Manna Cafe as one of Reader’s Digest’s Nicest Places in America. A “nicest place” is “one where the people believe in kindness, civility, and each other, neighbors help each other out, and strangers are welcomed as friends,” according to the magazine website.

Judging began on June 5. Qualifying entries will be viewable on www.rd.com, and finalists will be viewable at www.10Best.com.

There could be more “nice places” springing up. Several of the tourists who have visited the Manna Cafe have been very impressed with the operation. “They go back home and start initiatives like this in their own communities,” said Lytle. “Isn’t that a wonderful thing?”

Wachapreague — Captain Lindsay Paul at Trident Tackle reports that anglers are finding “a few flounder, but nothing hot and heavy recently.” Captains Sam Parker and Nat Atkinson found decent numbers of flatfish over the weekend but had lots of throwbacks just below the 16.5-inch minimum size limit. One captain returned from an offshore trip with a catch of tasty tilefish. Catches of false albacore were made over the Lumpy Bottom and Sam’s Hill.

Chincoteague — Donna Rae at Captain Bob’s Marina reported that flounder action has improved during periods between the recent wind and rain. Flounder action was reported on the north and south side of Queen Sound bridge, up to the area around Buoy #4. Action in Assateague Channel has fallen off, probably due to the intense concentration of anglers targeting flounder there over the last few weeks. Increasing numbers of small croaker, as well as larger-sized kingfish/whting, are showing up in the inlet. Keeper gray trout catches have come from the southwest area of Queen Sound, opposite the sandbar, directly in front of the marina and catches of bluefish have come from inside Chincoteague Channel. The annual Captain Bob’s Marina Flounder Tournament started on June 7 and will run through Sunday, June 10. The largest flounder will be worth $1,500 to the angler!

Jimmy Vasilou at Captain Steve’s Bait & Tackle reported that the waters of Assateague Channel were hot last weekend, producing some nice-sized flounder. Gulp baits combined with minnows or silversides and fished on Aqua Clear rigs have been very successful producers, second only to the East Coast flounder rigs in the chartreuse color version. Bob and Bonnie Jagger enjoyed a successful flounder trip on Monday, using Berkley Gulp and minnow combinations. Black drum are still dominating the action in the Assateague surf, with the biggest recent catch made by Sheryl Turner weighing in at 70 pounds. King can be found in numbers and are hitting bloodworms or Fish Bites.

Upper Shore — Captain Matt Abell at the Sea Hawk Sports Center reports that anglers have seen a slight increase in the number of speckled trout inside Pocomoke Sound recently. A good bite was reported on Saturday, mostly by anglers casting artificials. Hunter Hickman boated a 26-inch speckled trout on Monday. Flounder action has been very good on the flats during last of the ebb tide through the first of the flood. A recent charter boated 35 flounder, finding seven keeper-sized fish. Matt verified the good start to the cobia season as customers reported fish up to 47 inches in the lower Chesapeake.

By Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. Bill is an IGFA International Committee Representative and a longtime member of the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee. He is the Virginia Recreation Fishing representative on the ASMFC Striped Bass Management Panel and is a past recipient of the CCA-VA Virginia Outdoor Writer Conservation Leadership Award.

Now there is a perfect beer for everyone. Even me and I don’t usually like the stuff. It’s called “Cranky,” which is probably part of the reason I fell for it. But don’t believe the name. It depicts an ill-tempered or irritable grouch, but it is none of that.

In a way, it is typical Eastern Shore. It’s described one way and is really the opposite. Example: “That Chincoteague Pony is lame,” he said after it kicked him in the ribs. “She’s an ugly one,” he said, describing a most beautiful woman.

Cranky is a light farmhouse ale created at the Black Narrows Brewing Company on Chicken City Road, on Chincoteague, which is the first craft brewery on the Shore. It is part of the Infinite Sky Collection and includes melon, black pepper, and shortbread. And it is the smoothest beer I have ever tasted.

Okay, so my experience with beer is limited. I drank a few Schlitz in college. And I never fared well with that. I tried the little “pony” Millers that family members drank. Blah. Then, I tasted a beer with lime in it and it left me sour. But now, if there was nothing to drink and I was on a remote barrier island thirsting to death, I would turn and ask for a Cranky. Oh yes, I would. I’m just trying to sound like a true Eastern Shore woman.

Last weekend, I was on the island on my way to the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge with the goal of photographing some of the awesome birds there. My boyfriend, Doug, came along to check out the brewery. So, we stopped by and he ordered the sample combo. There were six four-ounce beers served in canning jars. They were separated in half and came in crate-like holders.

We were told Cranky was the favorite. I usually don’t follow the crowd so I wasn’t impressed by that information. But I thought I would give it a try. I thought I would try little sips of a couple of them before asking for a bottle of water. I was surprised to find I could put my stamp of approval on three. Cranky, Salts, and Little Bay, in that order, won. Yippee!

Salts, considered the “Mainstay,” has tart oyster and wheat and is described as briny, marsh, and lemon. It had the flavor of oyster juice left in the shell after downing the raw mollusk. I could imagine it with melted butter on top. Yippee!

Little Bay, also called Eastern Shore Saison, was described as bright, funky, and floral. It wasn’t particularly flowery or funky. But it was a contender for bright.

Doug, who is a beer enthusiast, also favored Cranky and finished the glass. The same went for some stuff called “Good Morning, Good Afternoon, Goodnight,” that was a cocoa bean stout described as smooth, roasted, and mocha. That was the strongest and to me tasted bitter. Doug said it was “sweet.”

Neither of us was impressed with the beer called “Plum Wild.” We are going to be nice and leave it at that. Well, let me try again, I guess people could rinse their hair with it.

Ulysses’ Revenge, a fruited wild ale with strawberry, is also not for me. Ugh, I can’t eat strawberries, they make my face breakout. But others seemed to enjoy it.

There were two Philadelphia men sitting on the other side of me. The older one wouldn’t give his name or let me take his picture. He was mixing the cocoa bean stout with the Cranky and called it black and tan, a favorite of western Pennsylvanians, he said. His son-in-law was much friendlier. He posed for a photo, spelled his name, Vittorio Meronyck Jr. (above left), and was enjoying Salts. They were visiting Chincoteague for a birthday celebration.
The Chincoteague Island Arts Organization and the Chincoteague Cultural Alliance are pleased to sponsor a concert performed by Merz Trio, the winners of the Chesapeake Chamber Music Competition. The competition takes place biennially in April with the winners performing at various regional venues in June. Begun in 2004, the competition has rapidly grown to become a notable international event. It is sponsored by Chesapeake Music Inc., a nonprofit organization that for 30 years has brought outstanding music to the Delmarva peninsula.

Formed in January 2017 as a collaboration between pianist Lee Dionne, violinist Brigid Coleridge, and cellist Julia Yang, Merz Trio has quickly gained a standing as a unique and award-winning ensemble. In addition to winning the Chesapeake competition, the trio also won the Audience Choice award. Later this year, they will serve as the New England Conservatory’s graduate piano trio-in-residence. They will also travel to Melbourne, Australia, to perform two recitals presented by Musica Viva and compete as one of eight piano trios invited to the Melbourne International Chamber Music Competition.

The program includes Brahms Piano Trio No. 1 in B major, Op. 8, Johannes Maria Staud 10 Miniaturen für Klaviertrio, and Beethoven Piano Trio in E flat major, Op. 70, No. 2.

The concert will take place at the Island Theatre on Saturday, June 16, at 4 p.m. Tickets are $15 and available at H&H Pharmacy, Sundial Books (cash or check), and online (credit card) at www.chincoteagueculturalalliance.org. Youth 18 and under and students with ID are admitted free of charge. A free reception follows the concert.

Mark your calendars now for this unique musical performance. For additional information, please visit www.chincoteagueculturalalliance.org or www.ciarts.org.

There are 13 black hexagons in the puzzle. Place the numbers 1–6 around each of them. No number can be repeated in any partial hexagon shape along the border of the puzzle.

DO YOU KNOW what nut is a pleasant winter’s drink? Connect the dots and find out!

A LUCKY PROBLEM! Professor Flunkum challenges you to write a math expression, using seven 7’s, that will equal 100. You have seven minutes to pass this test.

CHAIN REACTION! Take the seven letters printed below our diagram and place them in the circles so that eight four-letter words can be read, top to bottom, along the connecting lines. All the words will begin with the letter in the top circle.
