First, there were the sounds of delight. The “oohs” and “aahs.” Those are the usual reactions people have when a cute little baby appears.

In this case, the crowd was fixed on Number 5, a little white pinto from the herd of famous Assateague ponies. She was about to be auctioned to the highest bidder during the 93rd Annual Chincoteague Fire Company’s Pony Penning.

The filly was carried out to the auction yard by a hulking man. The man’s T-shirt identified him as a member of the Atlantic Fire Company, who had come to pitch in for the cause.

The two-month-old filly poked her head up so all could see the fuzzy hair in her ears that looked from a distance like it was braided. Her face was speckled with color. She was gently leaning on the cowpoke and appeared to be whispering to him, “Are you my daddy?”

The foal favored the famous Misty of Chincoteague from the book by that name. Finally, the wrangler put her down and let her walk a bit, making the audience squeal some more. The bidding was fast and high. Little Misty seemed unimpressed with the commotion. Fire company spokesperson Denise Bowden, also a member of the town council, said the pony will stay on the islands until October when she will make her way to Washington state to her new home.

She wasn’t the first pony to be sold that day. A Pennsylvania family bought the first pony to appear that day. This young filly, a chestnut foal, awed Julie Ecker, of Cheswick, who stepped up with a smile to pay $1,000. Trailing behind were Lyla, 2, and Eliza, 4. The girls had been “saving for a pony,” according to their hot pink T-shirts.

Jennifer Merrill, of Cheyenne, Wyo., gladly paid $1,900 for her brown colt with blaze. She showed off her bill of sale and heritage certificate when being photographed with her family.

Chincoteague Mayor Arthur Leonard held up a saddle and blanket that were auctioned to benefit the fire company. The mayor was wearing shorts, and spectators could see the tattoo of a pony that adorned his calf.

Fifty-three ponies were sold for a record-breaking $228,400. On average the ponies went for $4,309. The lowest winning bids were $1,000. The highest was $20,000. Other donated items, saddles and gear, brought another $13,000.

In 2016, 57 ponies sold for an average of $2,659 with the high bid being $11,000 and the low bid being $550. Sales that year totaled $151,550.

In comparison, 84 ponies were auctioned in 2000. The average selling price was $2,060. One horse went for $7,500. The fire company made more than $173,000.

In 1999, 86 ponies sold with an average of $1,620 being brought. The low bid of $800 was accepted.

Pony Penning ~ (Continued From Front Page)

The highest was $4,200.
In 1982, 50 colts and fillies brought $15,400. That was $55 less than in 1981.
The auction helps keep the herd size to about 150 horses. That is the maximum number that the government says can be supported on the grazing lands in the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge on Assateague.

Bowden later confirmed an accident occurred during the events. “We had a great swim and a great auction. Thank you from the bottom of our hearts. I guess things were going so smooth was too good to be true. I am so sad to have to tell you all that Butterfly Kisses tragically died this afternoon after a freak accident in the pen at the carnival grounds. Riptide was chasing her, as she was running, she slipped, fell hard to the ground and slid into the fence breaking her neck. The vet and cowboys were right there within minutes. (There was) no chance of survival. She was euthanized and her body was taken back to Assateague where she was buried.”

“Many of you have asked about her foal. We have a blessing in disguise, (the) baby was bought by a local family who owns horses. They immediately came and took the baby home. Baby has already started on a bottle and will be supplemented. We have already heard the negative and the positive as we expected. We feel that we manage this herd very well. It was an accident that has really broken our hearts. I ask that you please keep any negative comments for another day, this has been overwhelming enough and we need to process this and please keep these ponies and cowboys in your hearts. Thank you!”

Wading, Saving, and Searching
For a Chincoteague Pony

It’s easy to get closer to the ponies if you wear your rubber boots, a couple of kids (at right) found out at the 93rd Annual Pony Auction. At bottom left, Lyla, 2, and Eliza, 4, of Cheswick, Pa., bought the first pony sold last week for $1,000. Below at right, John Price, also of Pennsylvania, was chosen as one of two kids to get money for a pony from The Feather Fund. His foal went for $3,500. The group believes “raising a foal teaches children life lessons, including responsibility, good care, love, and ethics.”

Ever wished upon a star? There may be plenty of shooting stars to choose from during the Perseid meteor shower. For an early view, undisturbed by traffic and city lights, come to a barrier island beach.

Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge will host the NASA Astronomy Night Sky Summer Series Aug. 11, and will remain open overnight for a pleasant evening of stargazing, if the weather cooperates.

Start the night learning some background information, with an Astronomy 101 presentation at the Herbert H. Bateman Educational and Administrative Center. The program will be presented three times – 7:30, 8, and 8:30 p.m. – by employees of the NASA Wallops Flight Facility Visitor Center. Auditorium presentations are offered regardless of weather, but space is limited to 140 people per session.

After the program, head to the beach, where experts and telescopes will be available from approximately 8:30 to 9:45 p.m. (weather permitting). To accommodate the event, Parking Lot #1 will close to vehicle traffic from 3 to 10 p.m.

Can’t get enough? Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge is keeping the recreational beach open all night for stargazers! From Saturday evening, Aug. 11, until dawn on Sunday, Aug. 12, visitors are invited to settle in for a full night of sky watching. A red light is recommended to maintain night vision. Don’t forget binoculars and insect repellant.

Visitors wishing to enjoy overnight stargazing must arrive on the refuge before the entrance gate closes at 10 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 11. You may leave at any time. Anyone leaving after 10 p.m. will not be permitted to re-enter until 5 a.m. the following day. Only beach access for stargazers! From Saturday evening, Aug. 11, until dawn on Sunday, Aug. 12, visitors are invited to settle in for a full night of sky watching. A red light is recommended to maintain night vision. Don’t forget binoculars and insect repellant.

Chincoteague’s Kelly Price landed this keeper cobia in the lower Chesapeake Bay.
The Miss Molly was the big winner in last weekend’s 2018 Eastern Shore Marlin Club Billfish Release Tournament. In addition to being the overall winner with two billfish releases, the vessel also took home awards for the first billfish release in the tournament, Top Boat-First Day, Top Boat-Third Day, and the largest dolphin (mahi), a 55-pound, 8-ounce bull! Second Place went to the vessel It’s All Good and the largest dolphin (mahi), as well as took top honors in a number of category awards in the Eastern Shore Marlin Club’s Annual Billfish Release Tournament. In addition to being the overall winner with two billfish releases, the vessel also took home awards for the first billfish release in the tournament, Top Boat-First Day, Top Boat-Third Day, and the largest dolphin (mahi), a 55-pound, 8-ounce bull! Second Place went to the vessel It’s All Good and the largest dolphin (mahi), as well as took top honors in a number of category awards in the Eastern Shore Marlin Club’s Annual Billfish Release Tournament.

Chincoteague - Donna Rae, at Captain Bob’s Marina, reported that the weather has been playing havoc with the fishing. A few flounder were still being caught in Chincoteague Channel between Beebe Road and the American Legion Hall. Some kingfish/whiting were caught in the inlet, but croakers have been scarce. The only consistent action has been with sharks in the inlet and between Buoy 10 and 2TL (Turner’s Lump).

Jimmy Vasilou, of Captain Steve’s Bait & Tackle, reported that the shop weighed in a citation 36-pound dolphin (mahi), caught aboard the Aquaholic. Captain John returned with limits of flounder and seabass from the offshore wrecks as well as a pair of yellowfin caught while chunking. Vasilou said that a few flounder had been caught inside Chincoteague Bay, while some croaker catches have come from off Memorial Park, Buoy 10, and in Queen Sound. Spot catches have come from the surf, especially during the early mornings, and one angler landed a nice 1-pound, 3-ounce pompano from the beach. The shop is hosting a youth croaker/flounder tournament through Aug. 15, with a portion of the proceeds being donated to the Chincoteague Elementary School.

Upper Shore – Captain Matt Abell, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported that there are still a lot of small cobia in the lower bay with a few keepers mixed in. Inshore flounder fishing remained poor, primarily due to dirty water conditions from all the recent rain. A crew fishing with Kyle Krabill reported that flounder action on the rail cars was slow on Sunday, but they quickly limited out by 10:30 a.m. on some of the deeper wrecks. Tuna fishing has been slow locally, but reports of yellowfin coming on the chunk were received by vessels fishing out of Ocean City. A party with Captain Walt, of Light Tackle Charters out of Crisfield, landed some small rock and bluefish in the upper Pocomoke Sound.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. Bill is an I.G.F.A. International Committee Representative and a longtime member of the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee. He is the Virginia Recreation Fishing representative on the ASMFC Striped Bass Management Panel and is a past recipient of the CCA-VA Virginia Outdoor Writer Conservation Leadership Award.

Northrop Grumman’s Cygnus Spacecraft Successfully Concludes Ninth Cargo Supply Mission

Submitted Article

Northrop Grumman Corporation announced that its S.S. J.R. Thompson Cygnus™ spacecraft successfully completed its ninth cargo supply mission to the International Space Station under NASA’s Commercial Resupply Services (CRS-1) contract.

The spacecraft removed more than 6,600 pounds (over 3,000 kilograms) of disposable cargo, a new record for Cygnus. The S.S. J.R. Thompson also successfully executed secondary missions that included the demonstration of Cygnus’ ability to reboost the space station and the deployment of six CubeSats into orbit from a NanoRacks CubeSat deployer.

The mission officially concluded on July 30 at 5:17 p.m. ET when Cygnus performed a safe, destructive re-entry into the Earth’s atmosphere over the Pacific Ocean east of New Zealand. The spacecraft remained docked for 52 days at the orbiting laboratory and departed the space station on July 15.

“From launch to our safe re-entry, the S.S. J.R. Thompson performed every phase of this mission perfectly,” said Frank Culbertson, president, space systems group, Northrop Grumman. “We now turn our attention toward final preparations for the next Cygnus cargo mission later this year with a continued focus on supporting the needs of the crew members aboard the International Space Station, as well as enabling crucial research programs in space.”

The mission began May 21, when Cygnus launched aboard a Northrop Grumman Antares™ rocket from NASA’s Wallops Flight Facility in Virginia. Upon arrival at the orbiting laboratory, Cygnus delivered approximately 7,400 pounds (3,350 kilograms) of cargo, supplies, and scientific experiments to the astronauts.

Pending NASA’s specific cargo needs, Northrop Grumman is prepared to launch an additional CRS mission later this year aboard the company’s Antares rocket from NASA’s Wallops Flight Facility.
